

THE WORKS
OF
PETER PINDAR, ESQ.

TO WHICH ARE PREFIXED
MEMOIRS OF THE AUTHOR'S LIFE.

A NEW EDITION,
REVISED AND CORRECTED, WITH A COPIOUS INDEX

IN FIVE VOLUMES

VOL IV

LONDON.

PRINTED FOR J. WALKER, G. WILKIE AND J. ROBINSON, G. ROBINSON, PATERNOSTER-BOW; AND G. GOULDING
AND CO. SOHO-SQUARE.

1812.

CONTENTS.

1. PINDARIANA	1
2 NIL ADMIRARI	253
3 LORD AUCKLAND'S TRIUMPH	299
4. ODES TO INS AND OUTS	341
5 TALES OF THE HOY	379
6 THE MIDDLESEX ELECTION	429
7 PITT AND HIS STAFUE	497

PINDARIANA,
OR,
PETER'S PORTFOLIO:

CONTAINING

TALE,	ODE,	SONG,
FABLE,	ELEGY,	PASTORAL,
TRANSLATION,	EPIGRAM,	LETTERS,

WITH EXTRACTS FROM

TRAGEDY, COMEDY, OPERA, &c

Non satis est, pulchra esse poemata HORACE

To me a tuneful line is dear,
And yet, it only wins the ear
Verses should win the heart too, dulcia sunt
Such Verses sue success command
The game is in the Poet's hand,
Spadillo and Manillo, Basto, Punto

TO THE PUBLIC.

READER,

PLEASANT and numerous are the volumes in ana, viz Scaligeriana, Thuana, Huetiana, Menagiana, Chævreana, Carpenteriana, &c to which I have added, for thine amusement, Pindariana May the spirits of Chaucer, of Shakspeare, of Cervantes, of Rabelais, of Sterne, of Fontaine, of Tibullus, of Horace, of Martial, of Theocritus, and my great old Cousin of Thebes, have entered my Portfolio, and animated my Leaves !

Ah ! may no eye wax dim upon my page ;

The lid, all heavy laden, dully closing ;

The drooping head, as though from palsied age,

Reclining lumpish on the breast, and dozing,

While from th' ungrasping hand, tremendous sound,

The poor forgotten Volume greets the ground !

May no fastidious Critic be able to say of my Lucubrations, what the blaspheming Doctor Johnson, with his oracular and growling pomposity, asserted of the sublime Ossian, “ that as good a thing might be written by many men, many women, and many children !”

PINDARIANA

Grieved should I be, could my poetic spaw
Produce one melancholy, damning yawn

Oh let me feel the Muse's warmth divine !
Perdition seize a soporific line !

Ne'er may the leaden lumber load my brain !
Avaunt the sleepy Verse ! confound the Song
That dragging, heavy, Snail-like, crawls along !
Oblivion, bid thy mud o'erwhelm the Strain.

I hate it, as old Snuffle I abhor :

The parson who, with one unvarying tone,
Sets all the jaded Audience in a snore ;
Such the strong opiate of his drowsy drone.

Nor, O ye Powers of Poesy ! be mine
The roaring, blustering, mad, and bullying line
As though the Muses all were lying-in
Of some wild Calibanish mountain-form,
An earthquake, or volcano, or a storm
So huge the sound, so horrible the din

Nor let me prove so pompously obscure
(A mode of writing I detest, abjure),
With stiff inversions the poor sense to screen
From every aching brain, and poring eye,
And in a rage to make the Reader cry,
“ Why, what the devil can the booby mean ?

Thus too with epithets to cannonade us,
As if the beast were vomiting a Gradus !”

Let me not act the Goose, screaming and waddling,
Poking his silly head, in mud-pools paddling

No with a lofty pinion let me rise,
Face with an Eagle-wing the solar beam,
Drink with undazzled gaze th’ effulgent stream,
And with the rush of Whirlwinds sweep the skies.
Thence, in an instant be the humble Wren,
Twittering his love-notes sweet to Mistress Hen

O Versatility, I hold thee dear

The Proteus power be mine, to take each shape,
Skip like a Will-o’-wisp, be here, be there,
Now the grave Moralist, and now an Ape.—

Now roar the Savage of the Libyan shade,
Where Horror listens to the shrieking Ghost,
Now Pompey in Belinda’s bosom laid,
Or whining, pawing for a piece of toast.—

Now roll the Monarch of the stormy Deep,
The floundering terror of the finny race,
Now the slim Eel, of ponds so lucid, creep;
Now leap a Salmon, and now glide a Plaise.

Thrice-happy change of soul-delighting Song^f

Thus were my talent, blest would Peter be

But who, alas¹ is thus divinely strong²

Shakspeare, that envied power I mark in thee.

Let me inform thee, Reader, that no order will be observed with respect to the various Pieces Thou wilt receive them as they leap from the Portfolio, so that there will subsist as little connection between one and another, as between Lady Mary and the Graces, Lord Thurlow and the Lord's Prayer, Signor Marchese and creation, Sir Joseph Banks and Philosophy, Sir William Hamilton and the Secrets of Mount Vesuvius, Judge Kenyon and a whole Bottle of Port, Judge Buller and Reprieve.

Various will be the Subjects of the Muse, Ode, Elegy, Fable, Tale, Ballad, Epigram, &c A version, at times, of parts of the venerable Classics, whose spirit has been but feebly transfused through our modern languages, will be given,

Whose oaks so lofty (what abomination¹)

Are changed to paltry broomsticks by translation.

Their Pyramids, a little Village Spire;

Their Skies, blue Paper , their ear-rending Thunder,
With Lightnings darting danger, blazing wonder,
A poor Coal Coffin bouncing from the fire ,
Their Cities, Emmets' Nests, a Spider's Hole ,
Their Mountains, what? the Mansion of the Mole.

Too oft the Roses of th' Athenian vale
Resign their blushes for a deadly pale ,
An Attic Sun converted in a trice
To a dull torpid Cake of shivering Ice ,
A Rill, their Oceans that no longer roar ,
Then Storms, a Wind's small Whistle through a door ,
The sun-clad Eagle, a weak flickering Bat ,
And Afric's Royal Brute, a squeaking Rat

The tender passion will make a prominent figure on the canvas , and why not, as it is one of the most prominent features of Nature? Who is there that has not sacrificed to the Amorous Goddess?

When dew-clad Evening's modest blushes fade,
And Nature sinks amid the deepening shade,
And Labour pauses on the fainting light ;
When beetles hum, and bats in circles skim,
When hills and hamlets, trees and towers, grow dim,
And Silence steals upon the gloom of night ,

With joy I tread the secret grove,
To meet the Idol of my Love

What a monster, who never felt the soft emotion !

Ah ! whence art thou, of Wealth the slave ?
Go, seek the haunted gloom, the grave ,
Whose eye, on Money taught to roll,
Admits not Beauty to the soul
Fly thou the day, who scorn'st the Fair ,
For thou wert born an Imp of Care

But who art thou, with anxious eye,
With panting hope, and melting sigh,
Who biddest tempting Gold depart,
And only woo'st the Virgin's heart ?
Go thou where Beauty holds her throne ,
For bliss was form'd for thee alone

Next to the contemner of the charming Sex, is the savage who abuses it. Poor Marian ! sweet is thy song of sorrow .—

MARIAN'S COMPLAINT.

SINCE truth has left the Shepherd's tongue,
 Adieu the cheerful pipe and song,
 Adieu the dance at closing day,
 And, ah ! the happy morn of May

How oft he told me I was fair,
 And wove the garland for my hair !
 How oft for Marian cull'd the bower,
 And fill'd my lap with every flower !

No more his gifts of guile I'll wear,
 But from my brow the chaplet tear,
 The crook he gave, in pieces break,
 And rend his ribbons from my neck.

How oft he vowed a constant flame,
 And carved on every oak my name !
 Blush, Colin, that the wounded tree
 Is all that will remember me

Rich fragments of the Tragic and Comic Muse, not forgetting the Muse of Ballad, yclept Opera, will occasionally pour their coruscations through the Work. Moreover will I present thee with delicious scraps of Criticism thou shalt likewise have Apophthegms ; so that a part of my labours may with propriety be baptized " the Wisdom of Peter " The Wisdom of Solomon is well known Plato and Xenophon, the two famous disciples of Socrates, gathered the good things of their sublime Master , fancying every Sentence that dropped from his mouth, a Gem of inestimable value Pythagoras uttered sage maxims for the benefit of posterity Nor did the good Marcus Aurelius think it beneath his dignity to turn collector. The Eastern hemisphere glitters with apophthegmatic Constellations, and now behold a Bard resolved to add a Star to that of the West !

Reader, thou shalt have more than all this Thou shalt be presented with some of the Travels of the Bard , who, like the Hero of the Odyssey, mores hominum multorum vidit et urbes But expect no wonders ; as I am neither a Mandeville, a Psalmanazar, nor an Abyssinian Bruce Unfortunately I have met met with no " Anthropophagi, and men whose heads do grow beneath their shoulders "

How many Numbers I shall offer thee, is a mystery even to myself Should we not be eaten up by the threatening and hungry sans culottes, by the blessing of Apollo and the Nine Ladies, a handsome Volume or two may be produced and to give thee my sentiment on the sans culottes subject, I really think we shall not be devoured.

Howl thyself hoarse, wild War of this fair Isle
The happy Natives shall for ever smile,

While by thy rage the Kingdoms bleed around;
Safe as the chirping Birds amid the Oak,
'That bids defiance to the tempest's stroke,
And keeps with stern sublimity his ground.

Adieu

PINDARIANA.

PROLOGUE.

TO THE CRITICS

Now Winter gathers all his glooms,
And faintly Sol the World illumines,
• Weak wanderer, skirting pale the southern sky.
Yet squinting on the old blue road,
In summer with such splendour trod,
Now far, alas ! above his watry eye

Well, just as Winter comes, so drear,
Behold the Man of Rhymes appear !
Much like the Woodcock, bird too often bit ,
When out are dogs, and sportsmen dire,
To try to fit him for the fire
Doom'd soon to turn, poor fellow, on the spit.

Lo, from his sheltering shade he vainly springs !—
With bleeding breast, crush'd legs, and broken wings,

And scatter'd plumes a cloud, and hanging head,
 Down falls the emigrant, a lump of lead.
 Soon seized by Tray, expecting much applause,
 Who, wriggling, brings the prisoner in his jaws

Thus may it most unfortunately be,
 Most venerable Greybeards, with poor me,
 Condemn'd, for want of poetry and wit,
 To turn perchance upon your piercing spit

Yet, Sirs, I thank you for all favours past,
 Hoping moreover they won't be the last
 And, Sirs, whatever fate you may allot me,
 Thanks, thanks, that hitherto you have not shot me.

So much to the liberal Critics. What shall I say to the illiberal ?

Rake, if you please, the Kennel of your Brains,
 And pour forth all the loaded head contains,
 I shall not suffer by it, I am sure
 Nay, my poetic Plants will better thrive,
 Exalt their heads and smile, be all alive,
 As mud is very excellent manure.

Brother-authors, attend unto the wisdom of Peter Aie the cries of the malevolent and envious against you, be silent, and let your Works fight their own battle Aie they good for nothing, let them die
Possess they merit, they need not be afraid bid your Minds then sit calmly on their thrones, amidst the hurly-burly of critical attacks

Go take a lesson from the glorious Sun,
Who, when the elements together run

In wild confusion, earth and wind and water,
Looks on the tumult down without dismay,

Nay, bright and smiling, seeming thus to say,

“ Lord ! bustling gentlefolk, pray what’s the matter ?”

HYMN TO THE GUILLOTINE

DAUGHTER of Liberty, whose knife
So busy chops the threads of life,
And frees from cumbrous clay the spirit,
Ah! why alone shall Gallia feel
The beauties of thy ponderous steel?
Why must not Britain mark thy merit?

Hark! 'tis the dungeon's groan I hear,
And lo, a squalid band appear,
With sallow cheek and hollow eye!
Unwilling, lo, the neck they bend!
Yet, through thy power, their terrors end,
And with their heads the sorrows fly.

Oh let us view thy lofty grace!
To Britons show thy blushing face,
And bless Rebellion's life-tired train.—
Joy to my soul! she's on her way,
Led by her dearest friends, Dismay,
Death, and the Devil, and Tom Paine

BE deaf, O Man, to the insinuations of PRIDE It is the poisonous Weed of the Heart, that suffers not a Flower of beauty or fragrance to bloom near it.

Boast not of the Antiquity of thy line, for, to thy mortification, be it known, that the family of hogs was created before thee

WHAT can the wisest boast? alas, how little!
Then, Pride, be sparing of thy saucy spittle,
Nay, do not squirt it in the humblest face
The wheel of Fortune is for ever turning,
Joy's Birthday-suit may soon be chang'd to Mourning;
Nimrods become the victims of the chace

Yes, Pride, I hate thee, canker of our nature.
Why look contemptuous on a fellow-creature,
Because it is a monkey or a pig?
They too have qualities, or I'm mistaken.
What Man excels a Hog in making bacon?

What Mortals, like a Monkey, dance a jig?
What man, from bough to bough, like Jacko springs?
Ingenuous rogue! who twists his tail, and swings

Dare we despise, because they cannot preach,
Forsooth, ungifted with the powers of speech?

That were a joke indeed to make a song :
Ah me ! what numbers of the human race
Most fortunately had escaped disgrace,
Had Heaven forgot to give their mouths a tongue !

In vain I preach Pride laughs at all I say ,
Resolved, the fool, to keep her distant way

THE PROUD OLD MAID.

A WINKING, hobbling, ciabbed, proud Old Maid,
Whose charms had felt a heavy cannonade
From Time's strong battery ; to whose lofty nose
A rotten Reputation was a rose ,
Lived in a country town there spit her spite,
And dwelt on Scandal's stories with delight

Proud of her name (though poor) indeed was she ,
In genealogies, an epicure .
Knew, to a hair, each person's pedigree ,
From that of splendour, to the most obscure.

Madame Georgina Howard was her name ;
An appellation always carrying fame,
As every Howard kins with Norfolk's Duke .

Moreover, every Campbell of our Isle,
 Cobler or chimney-sweeper, claims Argyle;
 And she to Queensbuiy doth a Douglas look;
 Boasting a certain portion of that blood,
 Not to be wash'd away by Noah's flood.

"Cousin of Norfolk" would she often name,
 When conversation ask'd for no such kin.
 "Cousin of Norfolk" then untimely came;
 Nay, by the head and shoulders was lugg'd in

This Lady, on a certain darksome night,
 From cards returning by a lantern's light,
 The lantern by her servant Betty held,
 Who walk'd before this Dame, to show the way,
 When thus it happen'd, sadly let me say,
 Such is th' unhappiness of blinking Eld.—

As her two eyes so dim could only stare,
 And therefore wanted cleaning and repair;
 Against some head her poking head she popp'd
 Dash'd with confusion, suddenly she stopp'd,
 Drew back, and bent for once her rusty knee:
 "I beg your pardon, Sir," said she.

Then followed Mistress Betty. "Bless us, Bet,
 Tell me, who was the Gentleman I met,

Whose face I bounced so hard against with mine ?”
 Bet could not for her soul the laugh resist
 “A gentleman ' a jack-ass, Ma'am, you kiss'd ;
 I hope you found Jack's kisses very fine.”—

“An ass !” with anger swelling, screech'd the Dame
 “An ass ! Lord ! Betty, I shall die with shame.
 Give me a knife, I'll spoil the rascal's note :
 Give me a knife, I'll run and cut his throat.
 Betty, don't say a word on't, that, alas !
 I curtsied, and ask'd pardon of an ass ”

EARLY PROPENSITIES

How early, genius shows itself at times !
 Thus Pope, the pride of Poets, lisp'd in Rhymes ;
 And thus the great Sir Joseph (strange to utter !),
 To whom each insect-eater is a fool,
 Did, when a very little boy at school,
 Munch spiders spread upon his bread and butter*.

* Sir Joseph Banks, the President of the Royal Society, who has often declared this rare fact of himself, and who is so improved in power as to be able to devour an algator

INVITATION TO CYNTHIA.

COME, Cynthia, to thy Shepherd's vale,
 Though tyrant Winter shade the scene,
 The leafless grove has felt his gale,
 And every warbler mourns his reign

Yet what to me the howling wind?
 Thy Voice the Linnet's Song supplies
 Or what the cloud to me, who find
 Eternal Sunshine in thy Eyes?

 KISSES.

Hawser. DEAR Susan, "one kind Kiss before we part"

Susan. Not the thousandth part of one, Mr. Lieutenant, I assure you. Keep your distance, pray, kind Sir Kisses indeed! I wonder what fool first invented the nonsense.

Hawser. Nonsense! Sense, Susan. rapture, Susan.

SONG

WHEN we dwell on the lips of the Lass we adore,
 Not a pleasure in nature is missing
 May his soul be in Heaven (he deserved it, I'm sure)
 Who was first the inventor of Kissing !

Master Adam, I verily think, was the man ;
 Whose discovery will ne'er be surpast
 Well, since the sweet game with Creation began,
 To the End of the World may it last !

[Catches Susan, and kisses her.]

I DO not love a Cat his disposition is mean and suspicious. A friendship of years is cancelled in a moment by an accidental tread on his tail or foot. He instantly spits, raises his rump, twirls his tail of malignity, and shuns you. turning back, as he goes off, a staring vindictive face, full of horrid oaths and unforgivingness ; seeming to say, " Perdition catch you ! I hate you for ever " But the Dog is my delight. tread on his tail or foot, he expresses, for a moment, the uneasiness of his feeling ; but in a moment the complaint is ended. He runs around you, jumps up against you , seems to declare his sorrow for complaining, as it was not intentionally done , nay, to make himself the aggressor , and begs, by whinings and lickings, that Master will think of it no more. Many a time, when Ranger, wishing for a little sport, has run to the gun, smelt to it, then, wiggling his tail, and with eyes full of the most expressive fire, leaped up against me, whining and begging, have I, against my inclination, indulged him with a scamper through the woods or in the field , for many a time he has left a warm nest, among the snows of winter, to start pleasure for me. Thus is there a moral obligation between a Man and a Dog.

THE OLD SHEPHERD'S DOG.

THE old Shepherd's Dog, like his Master, was grey,
His teeth all departed, and feeble his tongue ;
Yet, where'er Corn went, he was followed by Tray .
Thus happy through life did they hobble along

When, fatigued, on the grass the old Shepherd would lie,
For a nap in the sun , 'midst his slumbers so sweet,
His faithful Companion crawl'd constantly nigh,
Placed his head on his lap, or lay down at his feet.

When Winter was heard on the hill and the plain,
 And torrents descended, and cold was the wind,
 If Corin went forth 'mid the tempest and rain,
 Tray scorn'd to be left in the chimney behind.

At length in the straw Tray made his last bed,
 For vain, against Death, is the stoutest endeavour
 To lick Corin's hand he reai'd up his weak head,
 Then fell back, closed his eyes, and, ah! closed them
 for ever.

Not long after Tray did the Shepherd remain,
 Who oft o'er his grave with true sorrow would bend;
 And, when dying, thus feebly was heard the poor Swain,
 " Oh bury me, Neighbours, beside my old Friend!"

NOTWITHSTANDING the general contempt of poor Steinhold and Hopkins, of psalm-imitating memory, I do not deem them beneath the dignity of some imitation. I fear that too many a Poet of the present day is affected (if I may coin an expression) with a phusiophobia, or a dread of nature and simplicity, and, if I may judge from the difficulty of comprehending their meaning, they fancy Obscurity to be the genuine parent of the Sublime In the following Ballad I have endeavoured to steer between the two, assuming a little liberty with historical truth, respecting Jenny and the celebrated Auld Robin

JENNY'S COMPLAINT

THE night was still, and full of fear,
And all the World seem'd dead ;
When, pondering on poor Robin Gray
I went with sighs to bed
There, while my heart did heave with grief,
The Moon, that wanderer pale,
In at my window peep'd, and shined
So faint against the wall.
I closed my eye in vain to sleep,
And sighed " Ah well-a-day !"
For then I dwelt on my dear Love,
My buried Robin Gray
As on my arm I lean'd my head,
All dreary and forlorn,
My hair did drink the briny tears
That down my cheek did mourn

Sudden a Cloud, like Ink so black,
The Moon's pale face o'ercast,
The window shook, and Horror howl'd
Amid the hollow blast.

The oaks that proudly look'd on high,
Their lofty heads bent low ,
And 'midst their mighty branches roar'd,
As if they scorn'd to bow.

But, like a Giant in his course,
The Storm went rushing on,
Scattering their limbs and leaves so thick,
As heedless what was done.

Now thunder from the black cloud broke,
And terrified the night,
And lightnings, with a dangerous blaze,
Made all the darkness bright.

But my poor bleeding heart forlorn
Did sink with no dismay,
Since often it had wish'd to die
For dear Auld Robin Gray.

Now did a Spectre-form appear,
All aged, pale, and wan ,
And, by his visage, I could spy
He was my lost Auld Man

Now on my bedside did he sit,
As harmless as a Dove ,
And, though he had two hollow eyes,
They look'd with tenderest love.

Forth from their sockets then did rush
Full many a Drop of woe
So from the cave or rugged rock
The pearly Waters flow.

“ Jesu !” I cried, and stretch'd my arms
To clasp him round the waist ,
But nought of his poor Spectre drear
My longing arms embraced

“ O Jenny !” then he said, “ in vain
Thy arms would clasp me in ;
For Spirits, such as thou behold'st,
Have neither bones nor skin.”

Full on his visage did I gaze,
All hurried with surprise,
And, eager to devour each look,
My soul rush'd through my eyes

Now did I strive to catch his hand,
That press'd so often mine
But 'twas in vain, 'twas nought but air,
Which made my heart to pine.

And yet his hands so shrivell'd were,
As made of flesh and blood —
But God knows best what should be done,
And God is very good

“ And art thou happy then,” I cried,
“ In this thy present state?”—
He smiled like Angels then, and said,
“ God well hath changed my fate

“ Let innocence, O Jane ' be thine,
And peace shall dwell with thee,
And, when just Heaven shall call thee hence,
With Robm thou shalt be ”

With that he look'd a sweet farewell
And raised each wetted eye
Then glided off, and, as he went,
I heard the kindest sigh

“ Adieu !” I cried, half-choked with grief,
“ Soul of my soul, adieu !
My bosom throbs to leave this world,
And thy dear flight pursue

“ But Robin, Robin, stay awhile,
Ah ! stay awhile,” I said .
“ As Jemmy is come home from sea
May I with Jemmy wed ?”

But Robin answer'd not a word,
But off his Ghost did go ,
Which made me wonder but perhaps
His Ghost had answer'd, “ No.”

Auld Robin's kindnesses to me,
While we in love did live,
Deserve more streams from these sad eyes,
Than they have drops to give.

The evening that he sought his grave,
Did wear a dismal gloom ,
And all who did the burying see,
With eyes so red went home.

The honest tribute of their tears,
I thought was sweetest fame ,
And when I die, God grant my bier
Be sprinkled with the same !

The harmless Children too, in bands,
Did pour their little sighs ,
And on the coffin near the grave
They strain'd their watry eyes.

And when into the earth below
His corpse at length was given,
They look'd towards each other's eyes,
And sigh'd, " He's gone to Heaven."

Then on his grave they sat them down,
And hush'd his name with praise,
Till all the little wights did wish
To be Auld Robin Grays.

ODE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

Love is a pretty passion, to be sure,
 And long, say I indeed, may Love endure !
 Yet now and then to Prudence should it look ;
 Yes, take a little leaf from Wisdom's book.

Our Boys, alas ! begin too soon to sigh,
 Mourn the pierced heart, and lay them down to die ;
 Just like expiring Swans, with tuneful breath,
 Sweet rhyming in the agonies of death.

Too soon the Girls abuse of pens the nib,
 And pour their little groaning souls on paper :
 Love should not come till Time removes the bib,
 Misses should learn to walk, before they caper

Love, though it deals in sweets, has many sours ;
 It does not always furnish happy hours,
 Putting us oft in dismal situations
 The novelty sets people's souls a longing
 What thousands to their ruin thus are thronging !
 Indeed we see the evil in all nations.

I fear, Love does at times a deal of harm
It keeps the World alive, it is confess'd ,
So far indeed I like the pleasing charm
Yet, yet, through Love, what thousands are distress'd !

“ Give me,” exclaims the Youth, “but heavenly kissing,
And lo, I seek nought else ; for nought is missing
Let me for ever dwell on Chloe's lip ;
On Chloe's bosom let me only lie ,
There pour in sweetest ecstasy the sigh,
And, like the Bee, the honey'd treasure sip

“ I heed not fragrant wines, nor flesh, nor fish
Chloe is all I want, and all I wish.”

And thus again the raptured Nymph exclaims :
“ Sweet are of Love the sighs, and dear the flames ,
Love smiles away the darkening clouds of life
Love feels no rains, nor storms, nor pinching cold ,
Love wants not fire nor candle, meat, clothes, gold .
All bliss is centred in that one word, wife.”

THE OWL AND THE PARROT

AN Owl fell desperately in love, poor soul !
 Sighing and hooting in his lonely hole ;
 A Parrot the dear object of his wishes,
 Who in her cage enjoyed the loaves and fishes :
 In short had all she wanted, meat and drink,
 Washing and lodging , full enough, I think.

Squire Owl most musically tells his tale ;
 His oaths, his squeezes, kisses, sighs, prevail :
 Poll cannot bear, poor heart ! to hear him grieve ;
 So opes her cage, without a “ By your leave.”
 They’re married, go to bed with raptured faces,
 Rich words, and so forth , usual in such cases.

A day or two pass’d amordusly sweet ;
 Love, kissing, cooing, billing, all their meat :
 At length they both felt hungry “What’s for dinner ?
 Pray what have we to eat, my Dear ?” quoth Poll.—
 “ Nothing, by all my wisdom,” answer’d Owl :
 “ I never thought of that, as I’m a sinner.

But, Poll, on something I shall put my pattes ‘
What say’st thou, Deary, to a dish of rats ?”—

“ Rats, Mister Owl ! d’ye think that I’ll eat rats ?
Eat them yourself, or give them to the cats,”

Whines the poor Bride, now bursting into tears.—

“ Well, Polly, would you rather dine on mouse ?
I’ll catch a few, if any in the house

Thou shalt not starve, Love ; so dispel thy fears.”—

“ I won’t eat rats, I won’t eat mice, I won’t ;
Don’t tell me of such dirty vermin, don’t :

Oh that within my cage I had but tarried !”—

“ Polly,” quoth Owl, “ I’m sorry, I declare,
So delicate, you relish not our fare

You should have thought of that before you married.”

THIS Fable aptly also will apply
To Frenchmen, sans-culottes men.—Aye ! how ? why ?

The French are changeful fellows, all must grant ;

Cameleons ; but, ah ! changing for the worse :

Poor ignorants, scarce knowing what they want ;

Bartering too often blessings for a curse.

All good in one word, "Novelty," they see,
So strong within them is of change the leaven.
A Frenchman's fluttering soul would feel ennui
Even 'midst the blessed constancy of Heaven.

AN ANACREONTIC.

TO A KISS.

SOFT Child of Love, thou balmy bliss,
Inform me, O delicious Kiss,
Why thou so suddenly art gone;
Lost in the moment thou art won

Yet go, for wherefore should I sigh?
On Delia's lip with raptured eye,
On Delia's blushing lip, I see
A thousand full as sweet as thee.

A PANEGYRIC ON TEA,

BY KIEN LONG

WRITTEN IN HIS TENT, DURING A HUNTING-EXCURSION, NEAR

MOUKDEN

Mei-hoa ché pou yao
Fo-cheou huang tsue kié,
Soung-che ouei fang ny,
San pin tchou tsing kúé.
Pong y tché kio tang,
Ou tché tcheng koang hué,
Houo heou pien yu hié,
Ting yen y cheng mié.
Yué Ngueou po sien jou,
Tan lou ty tchan yué,
Ou yun king tai pán
Ko ou, pou ko choué.
Fou fou teou lo ty
Ho ho yun kiang tché
Ou-tsuen y ko tsan
Lin-fou chang ché pié
Lan ku Tchao-tcheou ngan

Po siao Yu-tchouan kuu
Han siao tung sing leou
Kou yué kan huen tsué.
Joan pao tchen ki yu
Tsiao king sing ou kié
Kien-long ping-yn
Siao tchun yu Ty.

A TRANSLATION

OF THE PRECEDING IMPERIAL PANEGYRIC ON TEA

THE Flower mehó is not so bright,
 And yet it gives the eye delight,
 It likewise has a charming smell.
 The Pines too are a pretty fruit,
 That much indeed my palate suit,
 And much in flavour too excel

Get an old Kettle, if you please,
 For such a thing is found with ease,
 That has three legs, and therefore shows
 Its ancient services then fill
 With water, and, what's best, the rill,
 The lucid rill, from melted Snows.

Heat in this kettle, to your wish,
The Water, fit to boil a fish,
Or turn the blackest lobster red :
Pour then the water on the Tea ;
Then drink it ; and 'twill drive, d'ye see,
All the blue devils from your head.

Far from the toil of state-affairs
I steal away, to drown my cares,
For which I take of tea a cup ;
And then I snap the rich fochu,
Fine to the taste, and to the view ;
And then again the Tea I sup.

Now on the rare mehó I gaze ;
Now of the ancients, with amaze,
I think, and also with delight .
And now upon the great Otsén,
The best and frugallest of men,
Who lived on pine from morn to night.

With envy on this mighty man I think ;
And then I drink :
Then I crack nuts, and eat the kernels too ;
Then think on that great gardener, great Linfou.

When, lo ! I pass from great Linfou
To that great prince, yclept Tchao-tcheou ;
Then upon You-tchouan I ponder :
Thus do I sit, and eat, and drink, and wonder.

The first, my fancy plainly sees
Surrounded by all sorts of trees ;
Now tasting this rich fruit, now that so fine :
I mark the second quaffing the rich water ;
But, knowing very little of the matter,
Thank Heaven his vulgar taste was never mine.

I hear, I hear, the evening drum,
Sounding aloud, "Go to bed, Tom."
Good me ! how pleasant is the starry night !
Lo, on each dish, and silver spoon,
And plate, and porringer, the Moon
Peeps through my tent with friendly light

Now this is charming, I must own ;
My stomach too so easy grown.
And now I'll take a nap.—Thus ends my Song,
Composed by me (a humble Bard) Kien Long.

ODE TO COFFEE

IN THE MANNER OF KIEN LONG

DELICIOUS Berry, but, ah' best
When from the Eastern Ind, not West;
Nought richer is, I think, than thee.
Into a roaster, with my hand,
I put thee, and then o'er thee stand,
And then I catch thy smell with glee.

And now I shake thee round about;
And, when turn'd brown, I take thee out,
And then I put thee in a mill,
And, when to powder thou art crush'd,
Into a tin pot thou art push'd,
To feel the boiling smoking rill.

And now from my tin pot's long nose
The fragrant fluid sweetly flows;
And now I put the lily cream,
And sugar too, the best of brown;
And, happy, now I gulp thee down,
Keeping my nose upon the steam,

On Hastings now my senses work ;
 And now on virtuous Edmund Burke,
 Who calmly let Sir Thomas scape
 And then unto myself I say,
 “ Is Honour dead ? ah, well-a-day ! ”
 And then my mouth begins to gape.

Now on Sir Joseph Banks I ponder ;
 And now at his rare merit wonder,
 In flies and tadpoles deep
 And now to many a drowsy head
 I hear the drowsy Blagdon* read ;
 And then I fall asleep.

O D E.

WHEN Flattery sings, Age opes his eyes so clear,
 And claps so brisk the trumpet to his ear,
 So wondrously inspired, he lists, and sees.
 When Flattery sings, pale Colic's pains are off,
 Consumption pants not, but forgets his cough,
 And Asthma's loaded lungs forbear to wheeze.

* Sir Joseph's right hand, and Secretary to the Royal Society, who has very often read the very respectable meetings of the Royal Society to slumber

Stung is the soul with Hyp's rope-offering evils,
Flattery's a Talisman to drive the devils.

Sweet on the listening ear of stilly Night,
As warbling dieth Philomela's song,
So on the ear of man, with rich delight,
The lulling music flows from Flattery's tongue.

Show me the man, and I will thank thee for it,
Who says with truth, "Poh! Flattery? I abhor it"—
'Tis a non-descript, by Sir Joseph bred,
A Soho monster, born without a head

Flattery's a perfect mistress of her art,
With picklock keys to open every heart.

What mortal can withstand the fire of Flattery?
No one: 'tis such a most successful battery
No head, however thick, resists its shot;
Yet each pretends to mock it: what a sot!

SUSAN AND THE SPIDER.

"COME down, you toad," cried Susan to a Spider,
High on the gilded cornice a proud rider,
And wanton swinging by his silken rope;

“ I’ll teach thee to spin cobwebs round the room.

You’re now upon some murder, I presume

I’ll bless thee, if I don’t, say I’m no pope.”

Then Susan brandish’d her long brush,

Determin’d on a fatal push,

To bring the Rope-dancer to ground,

And all his schemes of death confound.

The Spider, blest with oratory-grace,

Slipp’d down, and, staring Susan in the face,

“ Fie, Susan ! lurks there murder in that heart ?

O barbarous, lovely Susan ! I’m amazed

Oh ! can that form, on which so oft I’ve gazed,

Possess of cruelty the slightest part ?

“ Ah ! can that swelling bosom of delight,

On which I’ve peep’d with wonder many a night,

Nay, with these fingers touch’d too, let me say,

Contain a heart of cruelty ? No, no

That Bosom, which exceeds the new-fall’n Snow,

All softness, sweetness, one eternal May ”—

“ How ! ” Susan screech’d, as with disorder’d brain .

“ How, Impudence ! repeat those words again

Come, come, confess with honesty, *spe*ak, *spe*ak :

Say, did you really crawl upon my neck ? ”—

“ Susan, by all thy heavenly charms, I did.

I saw thee sleeping by the taper's light,

Thy cheek so blushful, and thy breast so white :

I could not stand it, and so down I slid ”—

“ You did, sweet Mister Spider ? so you saw ! ”—

“ Yes, Susan Nature is a powerful law ”—

“ Arn't you a murderer ? ” gravely Susan cries .

“ Arn't you for ever busy with that claw,

Killing poor unoffending little Flies,

Merely to satisfy your nasty man ? ”—

“ But, Susan, don't you feed on gentle lamb ?

Don't you on pretty little pigeons cram ?

Don't you on harmless fishes often dine ? ”—

“ That's very true,” quoth Susan ; “ true indeed :

Lord ! with what eloquence these Spiders plead !

This little Rascal beats a grave Divine

It was no Snake, I verily believe,

But a sly Spider, that seduced poor Eve.

“ But then, you are so ugly ”—“ Ah, sweet Sue !

I did not make myself, you know too well :

Could I have made myself, I had been you,

And kil'd with envy every beauteous Belle.”— “Heavens! to this Spider what a witching tongue!

 Well, go about thy business, go along
 All animals indeed their food must get
 And hear me shouldst thou look with longing eyes,
 At any time, on young fat luscious Flies,
 I'll drive the little rascals to thy net
 “Lord then! how blind I've been to form and feature!
 I think a Spider now a comely creature”

VERSES

TO A WHITE SATIN PETTICOAT,

BELONGING TO MISS MOLLY M*, BUT SPOILED BY THE AU-THOR'S INADVERTENT STUPIDITY, IN THROWING ON IT A CUP OF COFFEE

O FAIR protectress of the fairest Maid,
 How shall the Poet for his crime atone?
 So lately blest as thou, I'm sore afraid
 I have no recompense to offer; none.

But Molly parts with thee with pitying eye:
 Then from this moment do not dare complain.
 Nay more, the Nymph surveys thee with a sigh:
 Then boast, the envy thou of every Swain.

THE TINKER
AND
THE MILLER'S DAUGHTER.

A TALE.

THE meanest creature somewhat may contain,
As Providence ne'er makes a thing in vain.

Upon a day, a poor and travelling Tinker,
On Fortune's various tricks a constant thinker,
 Pass'd in some village near a Miller's door .
Where, lo ! his eye did most astonish'd catch
The Miller's Daughter peeping o'er the hatch ;
 Deform'd, and monstrous ugly, to be sure

Struck with th' uncommon form, the Tinker started,
Just like a frighten'd Horse ; or Murderer carted,
 Up gazing at the gibbet and the rope :
Turning his brain about, in a brown study,
(For, as I've said, his brain was not so muddy,)
 " Sbud ! " quoth the Tinker " I have now some hope ;
Fortune, the jade, is not far off perchance "—
And then began to rub his hands, and dance

Now all so full of love, o'erjoy'd he ran,
 Embraced and squeezed Miss Grist, and thus began
 " My Dear, my Soul, my Angel, sweet Miss Grist,
 Now may I never mend a kettle more,
 If ever I saw one like you before !"—
 Then, "nothing loth" (like Eve), the Nymph he kiss'd

Now, very sensibly indeed, Miss Grist
 Thought opportunity should not be miss'd,
 Knowing that Prudery oft lets slip a joy -
 Thus was Miss Grist too prudent to be coy
 For really 'tis with Girls a dangerous farce,
 To flout a Swain, when offers are but scarce.

She did not scream, and cry, " I'll not be woo'd -
 Keep off, you smutty fellow ; don't be rude
 I'm meat for your superiors, Tinker "—No
 Indeed she treated not the Tinker so.

But lo, the Damsel, with her usual squint,
 Suffer'd her Tinker-lover to imprint
 Sweet kisses on her lip, and squeeze her hand,
 Hug her, and say the softest things unto her,
 And in Love's plain and pretty language woo her,
 Without a frown, or even a reprimand.

Soon won, the Nymph agreed to join his bed ;
And, when the Tinker chose, to church be led.

Now to the Father the brisk Lover hied,
Who at his noisy mill so busy plied,
Grinding, and taking handsome toll of corn ,
Sometimes indeed too handsome to be borne

‘ Ho, Master Miller ! ’ did the Tinker say.—
Forth from his cloud of flour the Miller came — “ Nice weather, Master Miller, charming day .
God’s very kind ”—The Miller said the same

“ Now, Miller, possibly you may not guess
At this same business I am come about
’Tis this then , know, I love your Daughter Bess .
There, Master Miller, now the riddle’s out.
I’m not for mincing matters, Lord ! d’ye see .
I likes your Daughter Bess, and she likes me ”—

“ Poh ! ” quoth the Miller, grinning at the Tinker,
“ Thou dost not mean to marriage to persuade her :
Ugly as is the Devil I needs must think her ,
Though, to be sure, ’tis said, ’twas me that made her.

“ No, no, though she’s my Daughter, I’m not blind .
But, Tinker, what hath now possess’d thy mind ?

Thou'rt the first offer she has met, by Gad
But tell me, Tinker, art thou drunk or mad ?"—

"No, I'm not drunk, nor mad," the Tinker cried,
"But Bet's the Maid I wish to make my Bride,
No Girl in these two eyes doth Bet excel."—

"Why, Fool," the Miller said, "Bet hath a hump,
And then her Nose, the nose of my old Pump"—

"I know it," quoth the Tinker, "know it well."—

"Her face," quoth Grist, "is freckled, wrinkled, flat;
Her Mouth as wide as that of my Tom-cat ;

And then, she squints a thousand ways at once .
Her Waist, a Corkscrew ; and her Hair how red !
A downright bunch of Carrots on her head.

Why, what the devil is got into thy sconce ?"—

"No devil's in my sconce," rejoin'd the Tinker ;

"But, Lord ! what's that to you, if fine I think her."—

"Why, man," quoth Grist, "she's fit to make a Show,
And therefore sure I am that thou must banter."—

"Miller," replied the Tinker, "right ; for know,
'Tis for that very thing, a Show, I want her."

—

MELANCHOLY

HERMIONE

A SIGHING solitary Form I roam;
A Tear on Nature's universal Smile
Thou Genius of my natal hour, whose hand
Pierces my moments with the thorns of woe,
When will the measure of my grief be full?
When will the silent asp of hopeless love
Withdraw his fang of torment from my heart?
How lately joy was mine! but where is joy,
That cheerful pour'd a sunshine o'er my soul?
Gone, like the last, last Sun, to sink in night,
Nature's last night, and gild a morn no more

Enter CAMILLA.

My loved Hermione, I heard thy sigh,
And left my sleep to soften thy affliction
Why killest thou that gentle Frame with weeping?
Sorrowing, thou seemest to delight in woe,
And feed existence upon sighs and tears.

HERMIONE.

Camilla, the dread silence of the hour
 Suits but too well the colour of my soul
 Night, who to others brings the balm of sleep,
 And happy dreams to sooth the peaceful breast,
 Pours on my wakeful eye far different guests,
 The foulest, darkest demons of despair.
 Lorn, at the midnight hour, when all is hush'd,
 I wander restless . sadly now I sit,
 My brimful eyes for hours both motionless,
 Swimming with woe, towards the passing Moon ;
 Who on me, as she lonely glides along,
 Casts a pale beam of melancholy light,
 That seems a ray of pity on my fate.

DRUID HYMN TO THE SUN.

O SACRED Fount of Life to all !
 Before thy glorious beam we fall,
 And strike with raptured hand the Lyre :
 To thee we lift our wondering eyes ;
 To thee the Hymn of Morn shall ~~rise~~;
 And bless thy ~~mounting orb~~ of fire.

Chorus

Hail to that Orb, from whose rich fountain flow
Beams that illume and glad the World below !

Unseen by thee, had Nature mourn'd ,
No smile her Ethiop cheek adorn'd :
Pale Night had spread her spectred reign,
And death-like Horror ruled the scene.

Chorus.

All hail the beams that Night destroy,
And wake an opening World to joy ;
Bright spreading o'er the vast of gloom,
That chase the Spectres to their tomb !

TO CHLOE.

CHLOE, no more must we be billing ;
There goes my last, my poor last shilling :
Vile Fortune bids us part
Yet, Chloe, this my bosom charms ;
That, when thou'rt in another's arms,
I still possess thy heart.

Fortune's a whimsical old Dame,
And possibly may blush with shame

At this her freak with me
But should she smile again, and offer,
Well fill'd with gold, an ample coffer,
I'll send the key to thee

THE BLIND BEGGAR

WELCOME, thou Man of Sorrows, to my doors !
A willing balm thy wounded heart shall find ;
And lo, thy guiding Dog my care implores !
Oh haste, and shelter from th' unfeeling wind,
Alas ! shall Misery seek my cot with sighs,
And humbly sue for piteous alms my ear ;
Yet disappointed go with lifted eyes,
And on my threshold leave th' upbraiding tear ?
Thou bowest for the pity I bestow :
Bend not to me, because I mourn distress ;
I am thy debtor, much to thee I owe ;
For learn,—the greatest blessing is, to bless
Thy hoary locks, and wan and pallid cheek,
And quivering lip, to fancy seem to say,
“ A more than common Beggar we bespeak ;
A form that once has known a happier day.”

Thy sightless orbs, and venerable beard,
And, press'd by weight of years, thy palsied head,
Though silent, speak with tongues that must be heard;
Nay, must command, if Virtue be not dead.

Thy shatter'd, yet thine awe-inspiring form,
Shall give the Village-lads the soften'd soul,
To aid the victims of life's frequent storm,
And smooth the surges that around them roll;

Teach them, that Poverty may Merit shroud;
And teach, that Virtue may from misery spring;
Flame like the Lightning from the frowning cloud,
That spreads on Nature's smile its raven wing.

Oh let me own the heart which pants to bless;
That nobly scorns to hide the useless store;
But looks around for objects of distress,
And triumphs in a sorrow for the Poor.

When Heaven on man is pleased its wealth to show'r,
Ah, what an envied bliss doth Heaven bestow;
To raise pale Merit in her hopeless hour,
And ~~lead~~ Despondence from the tomb of Woe!

Lo, not the little Birds shall chirp in vain,
And, hovering round me, vainly court my care :
While I possess the life-preserving grain,
Welcome, ye chirping tribe, to peck your share

How can I hear your songs at Spring's return,
And hear while Summer spreads her golden store,
Yet, when the gloom of Winter bids you mourn,
Heed not the plaintive voice that charm'd before !

Since Fortune, to my cottage not unkind,
Strews with some flowers the road of life for me,
Ah ! can humanity desert my mind ?
Shall I not soften the rude flint for thee ?

Then welcome, Beggar, from the rains and snow,
And warring elements, to warmth and peace,
Nay, thy Companion too shall comfort know,
Who shivering shakes away the icy fleece.

And lo, he lays him by the fire, elate ;
Now on his Master turns his gladden'd eyes ;
Leaps up to greet him on their change of fate,
Licks his loved hand, and then beneath him lies.

A hut is mine, amidst a sheltering grove •

A Hermit there, exalt to Heaven thy praise ,
There shall the Village Children show their love,
And hear from thee the tales of other days.

There shall our feather'd Friend, the Bird of Morn,
Charm thee with orisons to opening day,
And there the Red-breast, on the leafless thorn,
At eve shall sooth thee with a simple lay.

When Fate shall call thee from a world of woe,
Thy friends around shall watch thy closing eyes ;
With tears, behold thy gentle Spirit go,
And wish to join its passage to the skies.

ANACREONTIC SONG.

TO MY LUTE.

WHAT shade and what stilness around !
Let us seek the loved cot of the Fair ;
There soften her sleep with thy sound,
And banish each phantom of care.

The Virgin may wake to thy strain,
And be sooth'd, nay, be pleased, with thy song
Alas ! she may pity the Swain,
And fancy his sorrows too long

Could thy voice give a smile to her cheek,
What a joy, what a rapture, were mine !
Then for ever thy fame would I speak.
O my Lute, what a triumph were thine !

Ah ! whisper kind love in her ear,
And sweetly my wishes impart .
Say, the Swain who adores her, is near ,
Say, thy sounds are the sighs of his heart.

A PASTORAL SONG.

FAREWELL, oh farewell to the day
That smiling with happiness flew !
Ye ~~verdures~~ and blushes of May,
Ye songs of the linnet, adieu !
In tears from the vale I depart ;
In anguish I move from the Fair
For what are those scenes to the heart
Which Fortune has doom'd to despair ?

Love frowns, and how dark is the hour !

Of rapture, departed the breath
So gloomy the grove and the bow'rs,
I tread the pale valley of death

With envy I wander forlorn,

At the breeze which her beauty has fann'd,
And I envy the Bird on the thorn,
Who sits watching the crumbs from her hand.

I envy the Lark o'er her cot,

Who calls her from slumber, so blest ;
Nay, I envy the Nightingale's note,
The Syren who sings her to rest

On her hamlet, once more let me dwell :

One look (the last comfort) be mine
O Pleasure and Delia, farewell !
Now, Sorrow, I ever am thine.

Tax not, O Parson, the great Author of Nature with cruelty to his creatures

Too often dost thou impudently endeavour to put off thy folly for his wisdom.

' Thy anathemas are not his anathemas ; nor is his morality thy morality.

Oh think not, that, like the Lord Mayor of London,
he punisheth the sale of every article on the Sabbath-
day, except milk and mackarel.

GOOD FRIDAY

SIR HARRY, a high Priest, and deep Divine,
Ambitious much 'mid modern Saints to shine,

On a Good Friday evening took an airing
Not far had he proceeded, ere a sound

Did the two ears of this good Priest astound,

Such as loud laughs, commix'd with some small swearing.

Now in an orchard peep'd the Knight so sly,
With such a staring, rolling, frenzied eye;

Where, lo! a band of rural Swains were blest.
Too proud to join the crew, he waved his hand,
Beckoning to this unholy playful band.

Forth came a Boy, obedient to the Priest.

"What wicked things are ye all doing here,
On ~~this~~ most solemn day of all the year?"—

"Playing ~~to~~ skittles," said the simple Lad.—

"Playing at skittles, Devils! Are ye mad?"

“ For what ? ” — “ A Jack-ass, Sir,” the Boy replies.—
 “ A Jack-ass ! ” roars the Priest, with Wolf-like eyes
 “ Run, run, and tell them Heaven will not be shamm’d;
 Tell them this instant, that they’ll all be damn’d.” —

“ I wull, Sir Harry iss, I wull, Sir Harry ” —
 Then off he set, th’ important news to carry,
 To warn them what dread torments would ensue :
 But suddenly the scampering Lad turn’d round,
 And thus, with much simplicity of sound,
 “ Sir Harry, must the Jack-ass be damn’d too ? ”

ODE TO A PRETTY BAR-MAID.

SWEET Nymph, with teeth of pearl, and dimpled chin,
 And roses that would tempt a Saint to sin,
 Daily to thee so constant I return,
 Whose smile improves the coffee’s every drop,
 Gives tenderness to every steak and chop,
 And bids our pockets at expenses spurn.

What Youth, well powder’d, of pomatum smelling,
 Shall on that lovely bosom fix his dwelling ?
 Perhaps the Waiter, of himself so full :

With thee he means the coffee-house to quit,
Open a tavern, and become a cit,
And proudly keep the head of the Black Bull.

'Twas here the Wits of Anna's Attic age
Together mingled their poetic rage ;
Here Prior, Pope, and Addison, and Steele,
Here Parnell, Swift, and Bolingbroke, and Gay,
Pour'd their keen Prose, and tuned the merry Lay,
Gave the fair toast, and made a hearty meal.

'Twas here, o'er fragrant coffee to unbend,
The Wits their Epigrams so happy penn'd,
And bade in Madrigals a Chloe shine,
A Mira, a Belinda, and a Phyllis ;
Who boasted roses possibly, and lilies,
Such as now deck that cheek and breast of thine.

Nymph of the roguish smile, which thousands seek,
Give me another, and another steak .
A kingdom for another steak, but given
By thy fair Hand, that shames the Snow of Heaven

Give me a glaſs of punch, O smiling Lass !
And let thy luscious lip embalm the glass,
Touch it, and spread a charm around the brim.

Health to thy beauties, Nancy, and may Time
Ne'er meddle with thy present healthful prime,
Thy ringlets spoil, and eyes of diamonds dim

Lo, from each box, thy lute-toned voice to hear,
Youth nimbly turns him round, with wanton leer
Nay, wrinkled Age himself, with locks so white,
Findeth within a kind of bastard fire,
Whose mouth, poor Cripple, watering with desire,
Opes toothless on thy beauties in delight.

Now for thy lamb-like flesh he seems to hunger
He feels himself a pair of ages younger.

Tell me again, O Nymph, whose happy arms
Are doom'd, for life, to circle those bright charms,
And to that bosom give brave girls and boys?
That lucky lot, alas! will ne'er be mine:
A gaze, a squeeze, perchance a kiss divine,
Must form the bounds, O Nancy, of my joys

Yet if rich favours, far beyond a smile,
So kind, thy Poet's moments to beguile,
Thou wishest to bestow, in Love's name, give 'em;
And, thankful, on my knees will I receive 'em.

ANACREONTIC

SONG

WHO dares talk of hours? Break the bell of that Clock;
 Seize his hammer, and cut off his hands
 To the bottle, dear bottle, I'll stick like a rock,
 And obey only Pleasure's commands

Let him strike the short hours, and hint at a bed
 Waiter, bring us more wine, what a whim!
 Say, that Time, his old master, for Topers was made,
 And not jolly Topers for him

O MAN, be not puffed up with the pride of Offspring;
 as the triumphs of Papa are too often smiled at in secret by wiser Mamma.

ODE TO A HEDGE-SPARROW,

NURSING A YOUNG CUCKOO

AH, whining, anxious, restless Bird!
 Thou art a fool, upon my word.
 Now on the bush, and now upon the ground;

Now hovering o'er my head, and saying
Such bitter things, now begging, praying,
 Poor wretch, surveying me so sharp all round,
Imploring me to leave the nest
Where all thy dearest wishes rest.

How busy thou in catching grub and fly,
As soon as dewy morning paints the sky,
Now twittering near the nest such strains of joy,
Proclaiming to the World a hopeful Boy!

Great is thy triumph in thy fancied Child!
Immense thy pride, thy ecstasy how wild!
 Yet not one trait of thee doth he display.
Indeed thou never didst beget the Youth,—
And more, to tell thee an unpleasant truth,
 His father will be here the first of May.

Not singular art thou; for, lo!
A little gamesome Knight we know,
 Who fosters Children, loves them to distraction;
Shows them about from morn to night,
Drinking such draughts of rich delight
 From every feature, so much satisfaction!

Sees his own eyes, own mouth, own lip, own ear,
Own nose, own dimple, in each pretty dear.—

But who's the real parent?—Amorous John,
Good-natured fellow, made them every one

TO ANACREON.

GHOST of Anacreon, quit the shades,
 And with thee bring thy sweet old Lyre,
 To praise the first of British Maids,
 Whose charms will set thy soul on fire.

But hold, 'twere better, keep away:
 Of justice must thy Harp despair,
 Which suited very well thy day,
 That saw no Damsel half so fair.

THE CAPTIVE QUEEN.

(THE LINES ARE SUPPOSED TO BE SPOKEN BY A FRIEND OF THE UNFORTUNATE ANTOINETTE)

WITH radiance rose thy Morning Sun,
 Fair promise of a happy Day ;
 But, luckless, ere it reach'd its Noon,
 The Fiend of Darkness dimm'd the ray.

What though the brightest gifts are thine,
And distant Nations pour thy praise,
While, raptured, on thy form divine
The eyes of Love and Wonder gaze ?

The voice of Joy, for ever mute,
Must yield to sighs that mourn in vain,
And Pity come, with sweetest Lute,
To sooth thy sorrows with her strain

The syren Hope, who won thy ear,
Must charm no more the dangerous hour
The warning voice of Ravens hear,
That croak thy doom on yonder tow'r

Yet what is life, 'mid Horror's reign,
Where Murder's triumph cleaves the sky,
Where heaves with death the groaning scene,
And dungeons loud for vengeance cry,—

Yet what is life to spotless fame ?—
And thine to latest time shall bloom
The blow that sinks that beauteous Frame,
Gives all the Virtues to the tomb

ANACREONTIC

FIE, Sylvia! why so gravely look,
 Because a kiss or two I took?
 Those luscious lips might thousands grant;
Rich rogues, that never feel the want
 So little in a Kiss I see,
 A hundred thou mayst take from me.

But since, like Misers o'er their store,
 Thou hatest to give, though running o'er;
 I scorn to cause the slightest pain,
 So prythee take them back again ·
 Nay, with good interest be it done,
 Thou'rt welcome to take ten for one.

 TO TIME.

O TIME, 'tis childish, let me say,
 To give, then take a grace away;
 The Damsel from her charms to sever,
 So pleased to keep them all for ever.

When Cynthia tires with conquering hearts,
 And says, "O Time, receive my darts;"

Her beauties are a lawful prize
Then take the Lightnings of her eyes,
 Pluck all the roses from her cheek,
 And root the lilies from her neck,
 Her dimples seize, her smile, her air,
 And with them make a thousand fair.

ODE TO JEALOUSY

AVAUNT, thou squinting hag, whose listening ear
 Seizes on every whisper, whose owl's-eye,
 When Night's dark mantle wraps the silent sphere,
 Stares watchful of each form that passeth by!

Thou fiend, what business hast thou here on earth,
 Dissension-breeder from thy very birth?

How much more of the Serpent than the Dove!
 I cannot guess thine errand to this world.
 By thee is Nature topsy-turvy hurl'd,
 And nearly ruin'd the soft land of Love

Speak I but to my Neighbour's Wife so kind,
 And say, "Pray how d'ye do, my dearest Ma'am?"
 Behold, a tempest swells the Husband's mind,
 Who gives my sweet civility a damn,

For, lo, thy wickedness at once adorns
His trembling temples with a brace of Horns !

The instant thou behold'st a married pair,
Adieu, alas, the pleasures of the Fair !

Farewel, of Benedick the wedded bliss !
Scarce canst thou let the honey-moon go by,
When, hark, the keen reproach, the Lady's sigh !
Dead the fond squeeze, and mute the chirping kiss.

“ Watch him,” thou whisper'st in the Woman's ear ;
“ Open his letters, pick his pockets, Ma'am :
Somewhat will be discover'd, never fear ,
Something to dash the monster's cheek with shame.

“ Ken him amid the Harlots at the Play ;
Nor let your eyes a single moment stray :
He catches a lewd squint, if yours are blinkers.
Make him look straight on, forward to the stage ;
And, on refusal, tell him in a rage,
You'll give him, Coach-horse like, a pair of winkers.”

ANACREONTIC.

Oh far from me those lightnings dart,
 On others bid thy beauty shine .
 Beyond the hopes of this sad heart,
 I view that peerless Form, to pine.

While every Shepherd sings her praise,
 'Tis mine of Sylvia to complain:
 Made a poor prisoner while I gaze,
 I feel in every Smile a Chain

ODE TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.

Peter more than suspecteth, that a few Passages of his Works have given Offence to his fair Countrywomen. Peter's Contrition thereat, and violent Resolution.

LADIES, I should be sorry, grieved indeed,
 Could I once write what you would blush to read,
 But that same poet cleped Jean Fontaine
 Was verily the taste and admiration
 Of all the Ladies of the Gallic nation,
 Quoted and toasted o'er and o'er again.

What ' wound of British Maids the tender ear,
 Who, when to Nymphs of other Realms compared (And lo, on numbers have these eye-balls stared),
 Are as rich Burgundy to dead Small-beer '

Our poet Pope against a naughty word
 Protested, seeming too to shut his door :
 Pronouncing all obscenity absurd,

That ribaldry was folly, nothing more.
 Yet Master Pope, who Decency so flatters,
 Plumps boldly into certain wicked matters.

Now this I do dislike in Master Pope :

At Gluttony a man should never bark,
 On Dainties who is pleased his mouth to ope,
 And guttling swallow Platefuls like a Shark

Miss Heloise, that warm young Lass, I ween,
 Says things that cover Modesty with shame.
 I must confess, I never saw nineteen

Pour such an Etna forth of amorous Flame

And lo, again, the Lock, the ravish'd Lock!
 Too oft the lines give Modesty a shock;

Warm muendos bid her blushes rise.
 Yes, often I've heard Modesty declare
 " That many a line indeed has made her stare;
 She knew not where to look, where fix her eyes."

The Wife of Bath, and eke the lovely May,
Held language horrid for our chaster day.

Were Peter now to sing in such a style,
What lady-mouth would yield the Bard a smile ?
No frowns would fill their faces in its stead
And yet, ye Dames so chaste, those Tales are read
I see no lips with blushing anger ope,
And cry, “ I loath the nasty leaves of Pope ”

Nay more, my dear young Misses, and grave Dames,
Who read with fear my Songs of darts and flames,
Speak, is not Pope an idol ’mid your books ?
Does not Saint Patrick’s Dean, so void of grace,
Among your leathern favourites show his face,
Whose many a leaf should only lodge with cooks ?

Since then the lightnings of the Ladies’ eyes
Knock not the memories of those Poets down ;
It striketh me indeed with huge surprise,
That Peter’s purser line should feel a frown.

They wounded Modesty with verse unchaste ,
I with a twig of Pindus scarcely struck her
They stripp’d her naked, I just clasp’d her waist,
And delicately only touch’d her tucker

Yet is there, is there one sweet British Prude,
 Who will not read my Rhymes, mistrusting harm?
 Let not my Volumes on the Nymph intrude,
 And ring to Chastity the wild alarm;
 Make in her pretty panting heart a riot,
 Demanding months to bring it back its quiet

Tales of a Damsel kind, and sighing Lover,
 Holding of Love's choice spice a little,
Might be indulged to warm Dame Nature's kettle,
 But not to bid it boil tempestuous over.

Even Age delighteth in an amorous tale :
 Love warms his inside like a Pot of Ale ;
 Thaws his cold heart, and makes it beat so cheery.
 His eyes, that, Owl-like, wink'd upon the day,
 Burst open with a keen and twinkling ray,
 And, lo ! he hugs and kisses his old Deary.

Why then forbid them ? Such we must approve :
 And woe to mortals who are foes to Love !
 As long as this our System holds together,
 Love will stand brush against all wind and weather.

Yet should my favourite British Maids and Dames
 Refuse to read my Rhymes on darts and flames ;

And other pretty little trifling things,
The fount from which such natural raptures springs ;—

Ladies of France, I think my Song
To you in future must belong,

Yes, yes, for you the Bard shall form the strain .
And then (who knows ? it may be so, I wot),
The Dames may cry, “ Those Islanders have got,
Ye Gods, an absolute Fontaine.

“ Refuse to read him ! No, Heaven bless him ; no
Lord ! let his wild imagination flow
Banish the Loves ! Oh what a Gothic sweep !
The World at once, so dull, would fall asleep ”

So help me Grace, I ever meant to please
Even now would I ask pardon on my knees
If aught I've sinn'd, the Stanza must not live
Bring me the knife ; I'll cut the wanton page
Which puts my lovely Readers in a rage :
But hark ! they cry, “ Barbarian, we forgive ”

A thousand thanks t'ye all, my charming creatures
What goodness, kindness, reigns in female natures !

TO CYNTHIA.

WHAT danger lurks in those bright eyes !
 Lo, by their fire thy Poet dies.

Yet bravely let me meet my doom ;
 And, since to thee I owe my death,
 I beg thee with my parting breath,
 To let thy Bosom be my Tomb.

ANACREONTIC.

AH ! wherefore did I daring gaze
 Upon the radiance of thy charms ?
 And, venturing nearer to their rays,
 How dared I clasp thee in my arms ?

That kiss will give my heart a pain
 Which thy sweet pity will deplore :
 Then, Cynthia, take the kiss again ;
 Or let me take ten thousand more.

HAPPY art thou, O Man, who wast not born amidst the luxuries of life.

Lucky art thou who canst eat the simple fare ; whose nose turneth not up at a boiled Leg of Mutton and Turnips, or Bacon and Eggs

Health waketh with thee at morn, and accompanieth the slumbers of night.

Ait thou an Alderman, and putttest pounds of Turtle into thy paunch , thou devourest an Apoplexy Swallowest thou hot Sauces, thou gulpest Rheumatism and Gout

Say not wickedly, " I will not repeat the Lord's Prayer, as it is beneath a gentleman to pray for bread "

Curse not Sprats and Flounders : peradventure Sprats and Flounders might blush to enter the doors of thy gullet.

Deem thyself not undone, because thou possessest not more than thou oughtest in reason to use

Fortunate are thousands in having never been favourites of Fortune

Content sigheth not for Venison : she lifteth not her eye to Heaven for Turbot.

She hateth not the sight of the Sun at dinner-time ;
but preferreth his radiance, to the greasy light of a candle

Read, and learn the inconveniences of luxury from a Dog.

THE LADY'S LAP-DOG

AND

THE COACHMAN

CHLOE, a favourite of a rich old Dame,
Was vastly delicate in all her frame ;
 Could put down nought at last, but nice tud-bits :
Nay oft, with much solicitation too,
Her Mistress was obliged to kiss and woo,
 For fear poor tender Chloe might have fits

Fat was our Chloe, like a Ball of Grease
So round, a Foot-ball quite ; and fair her fleece.

Oft on the Turkey carpet as she lay,
 And sleep o'er Chloe's eye-lids did prevail ;
'Twas very difficult to say
 Which was her head indeed, and which her tail.

At length it came to pass, that Chlo
Did sulleriness and sickness show ;

So heavy, leaving off her wanton capers ,
Gaped, stretch'd, and lethargy she likewise shew'd,
Was sick at stomach (may I dare say spew'd ?) ;
And seem'd, poor Dog, afflicted with the vapours.

My Lady took her pining to her aims,
Hugg'd her, and kiss'd her, full of sad alarms,
Fearing her poor dear little soul would die :
Chloe was all stupidity and lumpish ,
Scarce lick'd her hand, so sullen and so mumpish ,
And scarcely raised the white of either eye

The Coachman's call'd : " Oh, Jehu, Chloe's ill ;
Quite lost her appetite : she has no will .

To move, or say, poor soul, a single thing.
Jehu, what can the matter be ; d'ye know ?"—
" I think, my Lady, I could cure Miss Chlo"—
" Dear Jehu, what delicious news you bring !

" Take her then, take her, Jehu, to your room,
And from her spirits drive this ugly gloom,
And get her pretty appetite again."—

" Oh good my Lady, never, never fear ;
I understand her case, 'tis very clear :

By Heaven's assistance, I sha'nt work in vain."

Now to his room the Coachman bore Miss Bitch,
 Who, looking back all wistful, felt no itch
 To go with Jehu. still he bears her on —
 Arrived, kind Jehu offers her a Bone

Miss Chloe in a passion seeks the door
 In vain; 'tis shut She lays her on the floor,
 And whines, gets up, all restless; looks about.
 Watches the door so sly, and cocks her ears;
 So pleased and nimble at each sound she hears,
 In hopes (vain hopes, alas!) of getting out

Chloe, like Lightning, now resolves to pass,
 Bounce from her jailer, through a pane of glass;
 And, by a leap, no more in prison groan:
 But, fearing she might spoil her pretty chops,
 Nay, break her neck by chamber-window hops,
 Chloe most wisely lets the leap alone

Jehu now offered her a piece of Liver.

“Chloe, do you love Liver?” Jehu said,—
 “The devil take,” she seem'd to say, “the giver;”
 So hurt the Dog appear'd. then turn'd her head.

“Well, Chloe, well; Heaven mend your proud digestion.

To-morrow I shall ask you the same question.”—

The morrow (ah ! a sulky morrow) came .
 Chloe scarce slept a single wink all night ,
 Whining and groaning, longing much to bite ;
 Calling in vain upon my Lady's name

" Well, Chloe, can you taste your Liver ?"—" No :
 No, thank ye, Jehu."—" Leave it, pretty Chlo."—

The day pass'd on . no eating , not a crumb .
 Miss Chloe crawl'd about the room, so sad,
 Sulky and disappointed, angry, mad ;
 Now moaning, now upon her rump so dumb .
 At times, around on barbarous Jehu squinting ;
Such looks! not much good will to Jehu hinting.

Another morning came ; a Liver meal.

" Chloe, how stands your stomach ? how d'ye feel ?"—

" Jehu, I will not eat"—Jehu goes out :
 What does Miss Chloe ? With a nimble pace,
Runs to the Liver, without saying grace ,
 Gobbling away, with appetite so stout .
 For now the Liver seem'd to meet her wish ;
 And, not half satisfied, she lick'd the dish.

Jehu returns, and smiles Chloe grows good ;

Takes civilly a slice of musty bread ,
 Rejects from Jehu's hand no kind of food,
 Glad on a rand of Cheshire to be fed.

Jehu with Chloe to my Lady goes,
 And, triumphing, his little patient shows,
 Not once discovering the coaise mode of cure —
 Jehu had lost his place then, to be sure.

My Lady presses Chloe to her breast,
 Half-crazy, hugging, kissing her, so blest
 To see her favourite Chloe's changed condition
 "Thank ye, good Jehu · Heavens, what skill is in ye!"—
 Then into Jehu's hand she slips a guinea,
 And Jehu's thought a very fine physician

ODE TO THE POET DELILLE.

Peter kindly congratulateth his Brother Poet on his lucky Deliverance from a Dungeon, and asketh him Questions concerning his poetical Feelings Whether he meaneth to exalt Convention, and debase poor Britain?—Peter adviseth the contrary, and telleth the Poet unpleasant Truths, with a witty Comparson —Peter painteth, with the Pencil of a great Master, the Portrait of a Frenchman, in which, Impudence, Insolence, Ignorance, and savage Cruelty, form the predominant Features.

THRICE-welcome from thy dungeon, poor Delille !
 Imprison'd, much (I guess) against thy will,
 By that unfeeling tyrant Robespierre .
 Set free from this same death-encircled vault
 By one (I fear me) not without a fault ;
 In short, I mean as great a rogue, Barrere.

Dead is all dalliance with the Muse, I wonder ?

The Guillotine's high flood must damp thy fire
The axe which falls upon its prey in thunder,
Must bid thee touch with trembling hand the Lyre.

But Bards, like Birds, can seldom cease from singing
Yes, on the Muse's bells thou must be ringing,
Thou wilt indulge the fascinating chime,
Deaf to the oracle that cries "Don't rhyme."

Speak wilt thou praise Convention for its power ;
Swear Britain soon beneath its might must cower,
Just like the Wren beneath the Eagle's wing ?—
Say no such thing

However grating to a Frenchman's ears,
We Britons, I protest, have no such fears
France, to be sure, is huge, our island little :
Yet spare upon our heads th' insulting spittle.

The colony of teeth, though small,
Are little folks of resolution,
And, when upon their prey they fall,
Do a vast deal of execution.

I do assure thee, my inquiring eyes
Have found the lubbers of the largest size.

'Tis pleasant to behold a Frenchman gape
On the World's map ,
Astonish'd, on his view to see advance
Regions like France !

Thus, I presume, the solitary Mole
Deems the wide universe within his hole —
Yet let Monsieur, so happy, prate away ,
'Tis pity t' undeceive the popinjay

Let the pert tipping Pig pronounce with pride,
Barbarian, savage, all the World beside ,
It is his narrow nature, cease then blame
In Afric I have seen on trees the Apes
Mocking at Man, with grins and antic shapes,
Who of our species thought the very same

But thou shouldst show more sense, my friend Delille
Then prythee take from me a little pill.
Perhaps 'tis somewhat bitter, never mind it
It cureth puppyism , I hope thou'lt find it

Pride not thyself because a Frenchman-born
Thy fame is then upon the hope-forlorn ;
Doom'd not, far-distant ages to explore

Learn to despise thy Country: 'tis a fool,
Cruel, and of Hypocrisy's dark school,
Tyrannic, savage, rotten at the core —

So much for France Forgive me, lucky Bard ;
But Vice should ever meet his fair reward .

Yes, let me drag the monster from his den.
This trifling Ode perchance may rouse thy gall .
If angry, bid thy rage on Justice fall,
The goodly Goddess who now guides my pen.

TRANSLATION FROM GALLUS.

At morn if Cynthia meet my sight,
'Tis sweet Aurora's blushing light ;
And if at eve she cross my way,
The Star of Venus darts its ray.

A SECOND
ODE TO THE POET DELILLE.

Peter proposeth very important Questions, and suspecteth Monsieur Dehille of an Inclination to whitewash the black Faces of Devils — Peter giveth a sublime Description of French Liberty — Peter putteth Dehille in Mind of Nature's niggard Allowance to every Man of one Head only, and of an Inconvenience arising from the Loss of it, on Account of the Difficulty of procuring another — Peter sagely adviseth him to beware of Barrere, and think of a Return to his Dungeon.—Peter picturesquely describeth the Supports of French Liberty—foretelleth the humble State of the mighty Reformers — Peter objecteth not to a general Intellectual Illumination, but seemeth to think that a Frenchman's Attempt must produce only a national Conflagration; Peter thus fancying every Frenchman a mad Quixote — Peter again kindly inviteth his Brother Bard to England, and concludeth with a flaming Trait of Barrere

Who that could save his ship, would suffer wreck?

Who warble with a rope about his neck?

Who in the tiger's mouth would keep his head,

With power to draw it from a place so dread?

Who, 'midst the charnel's melancholy glooms,

Would mingle with the refuse of the tombs;

With legs to bear him to the fragrant day,

From reeking bones, and Horror's haunt, away?

And yet thy Song may stay perhaps to bless
 A dark Divan of Devils, yes,
 Full of their deeds may flow the flattering Rhyme
 Which Song may stoutly swear that "Athens, Rome,
 Ne'er raised to Liberty an equal Dome,
 So sacred, so stupendous, so divine!"

Yet what is it to Reason's sober eye?
 A monstrous slaughter-house that taints the sky.
 Within a day, perchance one little hour,
 Thy courteous Song, which soothes with sweetest sound,
 Turn'd by the People's thunder, will be found,
 All of a sudden, Vinegar so sour

What is the madd'ning Million's shouting breath?
 Black Murder's orgies, the wild howl of Death.
 Then quit thy Country, yes, disclaim thy Mother-
 Mind, on thy shoulders stands one simple head,
 Mind me, but one, and when that one is fled,
 * "I will puzzle thee, I think, to get another
 Since then this head is not yet gone;
 Take Peter's counsel, man, and keep it on.

Barriere's red paws are ready now to start,
 Perhaps to plunge in thy devoted heart.

Lo, at his voice (to Satan's near akin),
 The Dungeon gapes perhaps to let thee in ;
 Opes his dark jaws, amid the spectred gloom,
 For thee a second time to raise thy moan,
 Breathe the vain wish, and heave the helpless groan —
 Thou'lt be well furnish'd both with time and room
 The Columns of your Liberty, Death knows,
 Are Cannon, Swords, and Bayonets, and Spears ;
 The angels who this glorious pile compose,
 Hyænas, Tigers, Jackalls, Wolves, and Bears
 Instead of Adamant for a foundation,
 The groaning Carcases of half the nation
 Dread of Adversity the humbling pow'r ,
 Sharp are her whips of wire, and hard her bats
 What sad humility awaits the hour
 When lordly Lions grind poor Mice with Cats ;
 When Jove's own Eagle leaves his sky for bogs,
 Clacks snails with crows, and feasts with croaking frogs !
 Yet this you wondrous men must do ere long,
 If Truth (who seldom fails) awaits my Song.
 Yes, be illumin'd, reverend age and youth.
 With you I'd tear up Superstition's root ;
 Dark fiend, who from the sacred hand of Truth
 Dares snatch her torch, and crush it under foot.

This were Dame Wisdom's act, but, let me add,
 Wisdom and France are foes—for France is mad

What voice to reason can a Frenchman bring?

Go, bid with Lullaby the Tiger sleep;
 Bind with a Spider's Web the Whirlwind's wing;
 And with the Wren's small plume keep down the Deep.

Wrap the black Surge within thy Hand, so wise,
 And smother its wild Thunder on the skies

Prythee take counsel, man, and haste away.

'Tis vastly safer, I assure thee, here,
 Since Murder is the order of the day,
 And venom feeds the heart of black Barrere:—
 Barrere, who when in Hell he shows his face,
 Each frighten'd Devil at once will fly the place.

FROM ANACREON.

UPON HIMSELF

ON fragrant myrtles let me lie,
 And Love, my Slave, the wine supply.
 Too soon we seek the Stygian gloom

Time flies, and, since to dust we go
Why idly bid the incense flow,
And spill the juice upon the tomb?

Ah! rather let me quaff the Wine,
And bid the Rose my brows entwine,
While youth, while health, the bosom warms
Then prythee, Love, delight my heart,
Ere Death dispatch his certain dart;
And bring a Chloe to my arms

MAY-DAY.

THE daisies peep from every field,
And violets sweet their odour yield.
The purple blossom paints the thorn,
And streams reflect the blush of morn.

Then, Lads and Lasses all, be gay,
For this is Nature's holiday

Let lusty Labour drop his flail,
Nor woodman's hook a tree assail.
The ox shall cease his neck to bow,
And Clodden yield to rest the plough. .

Behold the Lark in ether float,
 While rapture swells the liquid note !
 What warbles he, with merry cheer ?
 “ Let Love and Pleasure rule the year ”

Lo, Sol looks down with radiant eye,
 And throws a smile around the sky,
 Embracing hill and vale and stream,
 And warming Nature with his beam

The insect tribes in myriads pour,
 And kiss with Zephyr every flow’r
 Shall these our icy hearts reprove,
 And tell us we are foes to Love ?

PHYLLIDA’S COMPLAINT.

What has estranged thy affections from me ? What have I done, that I should lose thee ? But thou art tired with the object that loves thee, possibly, because her sole happiness is founded on thee

SONG

WHEN Night spreads her shadows around,
 I will watch with delight on thy rest,
 I will soften thy bed on the ground,
 And thy cheek shall recline on my breast

Love heeds not the storm, and the rain,
 On me let their fury descend
 This bosom shall soon to complain,
 While it shelters the life of a friend

What tempts thee to wander away?—
 To another, ah! dost thou depart?
 Believe me, in time thou wilt say,
 None e'er loved thee like Phyllida's heart.

Though resolved from a mourner to fly,
 To memory thou still shalt be dear.
 The winds shall oft waft thee a sigh,
 And the ocean convey thee a tear.

A THIRD

ODE TO THE POET DELILLE.

The Lync Bard proclaimeth the Folly of the present French—adviseth them not to harbour Passions degrading to Humanity — Peter, with wonderful Fancy, portrayeth Prudence and Passion — Peter taketh the Part of the late unfortunate Monarch and his Queen, and endeth his Ode with a beautiful and apt Comparison — The Poet then illustrateth the Actions of the French by a most apposite Tale

DELILLE, the World from laugh can scarce refrain .

Most Samson-like, ye've run'd a rare pile
To see you building thus, all hands, again,
On an Owl's face so grave must plant a smile

Sorrow, discard thy weeds, and dry thy tears ,
Pity, disdain t' embalm them with thy breath
They're sinking ; lo, if aught like life appears,
'Tis Health's stolen rose upon the cheek of Death.

Once happiness was yours, my friend, indeed
"We'll have no more on't," mad ye cried ; "away !
Change, change ! we'll cut off the great Nation's Head,
And try what the huge Trunk will say."

Off goes the head
The Nation's dead !

Well, now 'tis done , the head is off what then ?
Ye seem to stare, like disappointed men
Where was Dame Foresight ? Ah, ye silly folk !
And yet it is too serious for a joke.

Since, then, the head is off ; for freedom panting,
What is't ye look for ?—" Lord, Dame Freedom's want- ing !

Into a terrible mistake we fall,
For Tyranny's hard irons load us all "—
Indeed ! ye just have found the secret out !
Ye're wiser than ye were, good folks, no doubt.

Alter not things when ruled by passion. " Why ?"—
Because good Madame Prudence is not nigh
Prudence keeps company that's vastly sober .

Prudence is mildly-breathing, smiling May,
So full of balmy blossoms, all so gay ,
Passion, the mad, wide-wasting, wild October.

Prudence, a pretty, pleasing, stealing Rill,
Winning with easy lapse its winding course ;
Passion, a Torrent rough, from hill to hill
Tumbling and tearing, drowning man and horse.

Prudence is also a fresh-water Eel,
 So calmly gliding through the liquid glass,
 Passion, a Poipus, tempests at his heel,
 Floundering amid old Ocean's thundering mass

Prudence is that small pleasing Worm of Light,
 The mild hedge-regent of the dewy night,
 A little Moon to many an insect race;
 Who by her silvery radiance find their way,
 Nibble the fairest flowers, and sip and play,
 Gaze on their Loves, dance, ogle, and embrace —

Passion's a Meteor, skipping here and there,
 Hopping o'er hedge and ditch, and fen and pool,
 Amidst his wild and fierce and mad career,
 Making himself indeed a downright fool.
 And, after all, what is this thing of caper?
 A simple Child of stinking Mud and Vapour.

Why so enraged against poor Louis Seize,
 Who pliable did every thing to please?
 And why in league against his charming Queen,
 Revenge and Madness, Malice, Envy, Spleen?

Revenge's company for ever shun:
 Too much of danger frequently appears,
 A kind of weak and overloaded Gun,
 Bursting with horrid crash about our ears.

Ridiculous the triumph will be found,
 When, for a Penny's worth, we lose a Pound.
 The Monarch eat a little of the State,
 But should ye therefore madly give him fate ?

We should not rage for trifling matters,
 And blustering kick the World about
 It shows the folly of our natures,
 For a Pin's Head to make a rout

Lord ! grant a little Fungus on the vine
 And olive, yielding oil and juice and gladness ,
 Who'd root up the whole Tree for't ? Nought but swine
 'Twere idiotism, stupidity, ~~and~~ ~~madness~~

The following simple well-known Story shows
 What sad misfortune from such folly flows

THE KNIGHT AND THE RATS.

A KNIGHT lived in the West, not long ago ;
 Like Knights in general, not e'erwise, I trow.
 This Knight's great Barn was visited by Rats ,
 In spite of poison, gins, and owls, and cats
 Like Millers, ~~taking toll of the sweet corn,~~
 Caroused they ~~happily from night to morn.~~

Lo, waxing wroth, that neither guns nor cats,
Nor owls nor poison, could destroy the Rats ,
 “ I’ll nab them by a scheme, by Heavens,” quoth he
So of his neighbourhood he roused the mob,
Farmers and farmers’ boys, to do this job ,
 His servants too of high and low degree ,
And eke the tribes of dog, by sound of horn ,
To kill the Rats that dared to taste the corn

This done, the Knight, resolved with godlike ire,
Ran to his kitchen for a stick of fire,
 From whence intrepid to the Bain he ran ,
Much like the Macedonian, and fair Punk,
Who, at Persepolis so very drunk,
 Did with their links the mighty ruin plan.

Now ’midst the dwelling flew the blazing stick
Soon from the flames rush’d forth the Rats so thick ,
 Men, dogs, and bats, in furious war unite.
The conquer’d Rats lie sprawling on the ground ,
The Knight, with eyes triumphant, stares around,
 Surveys the carnage, and enjoys the sight

Not even Achilles saw so blest his blade
Dismiss whole legions to th’ infernal shade.

But, lo ! at length, by this rat-driving flame,
Burnt was the corn , the walls down thundering came ,
 The meaning of it was not far to learn
 When, turning up those Billiard-balls his Eyes,
 That held a pretty portion of surprise,
 “ Zounds, what a blockhead ! I have burnt the barn ”

 AZID ;

OR,

THE SONG OF THE CAPTIVE NEGRO.

Poor Mora eye be wet wid tear,
 And Heart like Lead sink down wid woe
 She seem her mournful friends to hear,
 And see der Eye like Fountain flow.

No more she give me song so gay ,
 But sigh, “ Adieu, dear Domahay ”

No more for deck her head and hair,
 Me look in stream, bright gold to find ;
 Nor seek de field for flower so fair,
 Wid garland Mora hair to bind.

“ Far off de stream,” I weeping say;
“ Far off de fields of Domahay.”

But why do Azid live a slave,
And see a slave his Mora dear?
Come, let we seek at once de grave:
No chain, no tyrant, den we fear.

Ah me! I hear a Spirit say,
“ Come, Azid, come to Domahay.”

Den gold I find for thee once more,
For thee to fields for flower depart;
To please de Idol I adore,
And give wid gold and flower my heart.

Den let we die, and haste away,
And live in groves of Domahay.

TO CYNTHIA.

AH, what an envious rogue is Time,
Who means one day to crop thy prime!
This were a barbarous deed, I vow.

If thus the Tyant can behave,
Lord, let us disappoint the knave,
And let me take those beauties now.

THE

CRUELTY OF ENEAS TO QUEEN DIDO.

I FORGIVE man almost any crime, sooner than barbarous Ingratitude towards charming Woman. What a brute was the pious Eneas to his Mistress, the beautiful and unfortunate Queen of Carthage! How easily a Poet of Virgil's imagination could have given a tear to the eye, and a compassionate sigh to the soul, of his Hero, at parting with a Princess who had so hospitably entertained him, and so completely made him happy, and thus, by adding a shining, amiable, and consistent trait to his character, have rendered him an object of esteem, instead of eternal condemnation!—But let the base action be recorded on the pyramid of English Poetry, as well as of the Roman.—

WHEN good Eneas left the widow Dido,
Most infamous towards her was his carriage.
“ Madam,” quoth he, “ all men would act as I do :
You will not swear I ever offer’d marriage ”—

“ ’Tis very true,” cried Dido with a sigh,
Then from her eyes the tears began to roll
And then she moved from him, resolved to die,
And make a Bonfire of herself, poor soul !
What did the pious Hero ?—March’d on board,
Fell fast asleep, and like a Bull-frog snor’d.

THE WORLD.

THIS World’s a charming World, I do declare :
The man who understands it, I suppose,
May, with a modicum of sense and care,
Convert with ease each Thorn into a Rose.

But folks become such idiots, or are born,
They change life’s fragrant Rose into a Thorn,
On every smile of Sunshine fling a Cloud,
And then on cruel Fortune cry aloud.

ON GENIUS

DEARLY I like to see a Genius spring,
 Mark his rich plumes, and eye his soaring wing;
 But Death too soon arrests his eagle flight.
 Not long upon the Meteor can we gaze
 From the dark element the lightnings blaze,
 That breaks, and sudden shuts in pitchy night.

TO A YOUNG LADY,

WITH COLLINS'S POEMS.

AMID these leaves, where Collins shines,
 Love boasts, alas ! no golden lines ,
 From Love the Bard was free
 What loss ! what pity, that his eye
 (To give his heart the sweetest sigh)
 Beheld no Nymph like thee !

SONG.

FAREWELL to the fragrance of morn !

Farewell to the song of the grove !

I go from my Delia forlorn ,

I go from the Daughter of Love.

I was told that I ought not to gaze

On the Beauty by which I'm undone ;

But how could I hide from its rays ?

What mortal can fly from the Sun ?

FROM ANACREON.

ON WOMAN.

DAME Nature, from her store, so kind,

To Bulls the guarding Horns assign'd,

And arm'd with Hoofs the bounding Steed ;

Teeth to the Lion's jaw she gave ,

Fins to the Tenant of the Wave ;

And clothed the little Hare with Speed.

But what should Nature grant the Fair?
Grant!—Beauty's fascinating air.
With this the Charmer takes the field,
And bids the World to Woman yield

TO NANCY OF "THE ROSE"

O NANCY! wilt thou go with me,
And all the Poet's treasure see,
My Garden house, my Temple rooms?
There shall I dwell on those black eyes,
And pour my tuneful soul in sighs,
And catch thy panting breath's perfumes.

Will Nancy quit the noisy bar;
And sounds that thus with music war,
Of vulgar coachman, drayman, porter;
That I may press thy purple lip,
And Love's delicious nectar sip,
And in his prettiest language court her?

Ah, Nancy! now I hear thee say,
"Lord bless us! I'm the youthful May,
And you are Autumn, Sir, September;

And therefore we by no means suit "—
 Dear Nancy, that's the time for fruit,
 Thou surely oughtest to remember,

Then blest together let us wing
 Love only blossoms in the spring.

FROM ANACREON.

HASTE, let the roses bind our hair,
 And merry jest and laugh prepare,
 Behold a blooming Maid advance !
 She waves the spear, with ivy bound,
 And to the Lute's enchanting sound,
 With tempting foot, begins the dance

And, breathing balmy odours, lo
 A Youth whose locks luxuriant flow !
 The Lyre he sweeps ; and sweetly sings,
 Accordant to the tuneful strings.

And see, to mingle in our joy,
 With golden locks, the Paphian Boy,
 And Bacchus too, with beauteous mien ;
 And her, of all the Loves the Queen !

They come, in pleasures to engage,
That gild with smiles the gloom of age.

ODE.

A NEW, AND MORAL, AND SERIOUS THOUGHT

How differently, at different times,
The self-same objects strike our senses !
Thus says Sir Oracle, the Man of Rhymes ;
And thus to prove it he commences —

Sweet are the blushes and the smiles of Morn,
The song of birds, and dew-bespangled thorn,
To Swains whose hearts are perfectly at ease ·
Sweet are the splendours of the golden ray,
To Swains prepared to take their early way
To hill and vale, and wander where they please.

But not to Swains the morning smile is sweet,
Dress'd out in irons ; doom'd, ere noon, to greet
The rope and tree, that much their spirits flurry :
They see, with very, very different eyes,
The Sun in all his golden robes arise ,
And wish him not to travel in a hurry.

Street is the Parson's note to Swains at Church,
Who, lull'd to slumber, leave him in the lurch,
Whom neither manners nor religion check.
Yet, ah! most terrible would be, I wot,
That Parson's solemn admonition note
To those same Swains with ropes about the neck.

SONG.

WHEN bleeding Nature droops to die,
And begs from Heaven th' eternal sleep,
Hard is the heart that cannot sigh,
And cursed the eye that scorns to weep.
How rich the tear by Pity shed!
How sweet her sighs for human woes!
They pierce the mansions of the dead,
And sooth the Spectre's pale repose.

SONG.

O CRUEL Maid, adieu, adieu!
Thy loss I ever shall deplore:
A thousand griefs my path pursue,
And joy shall gild that path no more.

Lost to the World, of hope bereft,
 I view my fate with streaming eyes,
 By Love forgot, by Friendship left,
 By all deserted but my sighs

MODES OF COURTSHIP.

O LOVE, thy temple is a crowded inn;
 And, ah, how various are thy ways to winn!

DEVONSHIRE-HOB'S LOVE.

JOANNY my dear, wut ha poor Hob?
 Vor I'm upon a coortin job.

Gadswunds! Iss leek thee, Joan:
 I'd fert vor thee, iss, that Iss wud,
 Iss love thee well as Pigs love Mud,
 Or Dogs to gna a Bone.

What thoff Iss ban't so hugeous smurt,
 Forsooth, leek Voaks that go to Curt?

Voakes zay I'm perty vitty.
 Lord, Joan, a man may be alve,
 Ha a long puss, and kep a wive,
 That ne'er zeed Lundun zitty.

A man may ha the best o' hearts,
Although no chitterlins to's sharts,
And lace that Gentry uze.
Thee'dst vend me honest; iss, reit down;
Although thee hadsn't not got a gown,
Ner stockings vath, ner shooze

Now, Joanny, prythee dant now blish;
Vor zich, Iss wud'n gee a rish.

Dant copy voakes o' town
No, Joan. dant gee thy zel an air;
And ren and quat, just leek a Hare,
And think I'll hunt thee down

No, that's dam voalish, let me zay
No, dant ren off, an heed away,
Leek Paltriges in stubble
No, no; the easiest means be best:
Iss can't turmoil, an looze one's rest,
Iss can't avoard the trouble

Now, Joan, beleek, thee wantst to know
About my houze-keppin and zo,
Bevore thee tak'st the nooze.
Why, vlesh an dumplin ev'ry day;
But az vor Zunday, le me zay,
We'll ha a gud vat gooze.

Zumtimes we'll ha a choice squab-pie ,
And zum days we wull bioil and vry,
And zum days roast, ye Slut .
An az vor zider, thee shat guzzle
Zo much, Joan, as will tire thy muzzle ,
Enow to splet thy gut

Now break thy meend, zay "Dun, an dur."
I'll make thee a good husband, mun ;
An, Joan, I'll love thee dearly.
Iss waant do leek our neighbour Flail,
That huffth his wive, an kickth her tail,
An drashth her just leek Barely.

Joanny, Iss now have broke my meend ;
Zo speak, an let the bisness eend,
An dant stand shilly shally.
But if thee wutt'n, Lord, lay't alone ;
Go, hang thy zel vor me, mun, Joan.
I'll curt thy Zester Mally.

TOM AND DOLLY.

A STABLE-CANTATA.

Recitative.

AMIDST his straw as Tom, a stable-swain,
Did sweep and sigh, but swept and sigh'd in vain;
Dolly the Cook peep'd in upon her Squire,
And begg'd a wisp of straw to light her fire :
Tom gave the wisp , and, leaning on his broom,
Thus woo'd the squabby Nymph, of bacon-bloom

Air.

O Dolly, not a Horse nor Nag,
Of which my stable loud may brag,
Can boast a Head like thine;
Nor has a Saddle got a Skin
So sleek as thy sweet cheek and chin,
Or doth so nobly shine.

But thou art off, 'tis plainly seen;
Yes, Dolly, I have lost the rein,
Thou mischievous contriver.

To gall, alack! my panting heart,
I'm sure thou art resolved to part,
And marry Dick the Driver.

Well, Doll, I cannot bear it long ;
Love sticks into me like a Prong,
And sets my sides a bleeding :
I tell thee, Dolly, without fibs,
Thou hast so currycomb'd my ribs,
That I am off my feeding.

Queen of the Dripping-pan, oh say,
How canst thou hear thy Thomas bray,
Nor one kind answer utter ?
How canst thou see thy Stable-squire
Roast at thine eyes, like Beef at fire,
Nor melt away like Butter ?

But thou art grown so proud of late,
Thou cutt'st upon me like a plate ,
As short too as a Crust
And then, with such a scornful eye ;
Thy shoulders, raised by pride so high,
All like a Turkey truss'd.

Sue, drive the driving-dog away ;
Give my starved love a lock of hay,

For I'm in woful danger .
 But if thou wilt not with me dwell,
 Horses, and saddles, all farewell,
 Brooms, hay-loft, bin, and manger !

Recitative

Tom, having finish'd in a dismal tone,
 Wiped his two dropping eyes, and gave a groan ;
 Then, sighing, said it was a cruel thing,
 Thus like a Dishclout his poor Heart to wring
 The Nymph, as careless of the hole (how shocking!)
 In Tom's poor bleeding heart as in her stocking,
 Low curtseying to her solemn sighing Swain,
 Return'd, with equal sweetness fraught, the strain

Air.

Dear Thomas, I pity thy Love;
 But, Thomas, thou wilt not expire:
 Like a Ladle of Dripping 'twill prove,
 That I frequently fling on the fire:—

It makes a most wonderful blaze,
 And frightens the chimney, no doubt;
 Sets the family all in amaze,
 But, Thomas, it quickly gets out

Before we were married a year,
 Mighty Love he would lose all his forces,
And the musical tongue of thy dear
 Would yield to the neigh of thy horses.

I believe that thou thinkest sincere,
 This sweet passion would last all thy life,
But too many can tell with a tear,
 They have thought the same thing of a wife

Too often we find, to our cost,
 That the passions are easily cloy'd,
That the object which pleases us most,
 Is the object that ne'er was enjoy'd

Love-matches may do very well,
 In worlds where folks never want meat ,
But in this, 'tis with sorrow I tell,
 We are looking for somewhat to eat

Dear Thomas, then let me alone
 To my roasting, and boiling, and carving,
I don't like to live on a bone.—
 Lord! nothing's more dismal than starving

To^t thy stable then stick all thy life ;
 That will bring thee thy meat every day :
A houseful of brats, and a wife,
 What would they? Why, take it away.

SONG

O NYMPH! of Fortune's smiles beware,
 Nor heed the Syren's flattering tongue :
She lures thee to the haunts of Care,
 Where Sorrow pours a ceaseless song

Ah! what are all her piles of gold?—
 Can those the hosts of Care control?
The Splendour which thine eyes behold,
 Is not the Sunshine of the Soul.

To Love alone thy homage pay,
 The Queen of every true delight.
Her smiles with joy shall gild thy day,
 And bless the visions of the night.

SEA COURTSHIP.

SUSAN.

MADAM' madam' I have just received a poetical
billet-doux from my furious Sea-caliban, impudence and humility, resolution and weakness, hope and despair, forming the sum total Permit me to read it.

HAWSER TO SUSAN.

Miss Susan, I think it in vain
 To groan any more for that face ;
 Your behaviour hath proved it so plain,
 That to others I give up the chase

Very wisely resolved, Mr. Lieutenant.

About love I shall make no more pother ;
 You know that I'm not very rich ·
 Yet I'd man you as well as another,
 And stick to your timbers like Pitch

Nice Sticking-plaster indeed !

I am out in my reckoning, 'tis clear,
As your frowns and your cruelties prove,
Since I thought to have anchor'd, my Dear,
In your Arms, that sweet Harbour of Love

Very elegant, tender, and metaphorical !

And though you so scornful are grown,
Let justice be done, by the Lord !
You're a smart little Frigate, I own,
As a Seaman would wish for to board.

Thank ye, Mr. Lieutenant (curtseys).

Yet, Susan, before we depart,
I beg thou'lt not take it unkind,
Since your sneers have restored me my heart,
If I give thee a piece of my mind.

By all means, Mr. Hawser.

Instead of my tears and my sighs,
Which you laughing call'd Love's water-gruel,
Could gunneas have rain'd from my eyes,
By God thou hadst never been cruel.

Impudent rogue !

And yet, should the wind chop about,
 And thy mouth cease this damn'd squally weather,
 Let us send for old Thump-cushion * out,
 And swing in a hammock together.

Never, never, indeed, poor Swain

DAPHNE,

OR,

THE SONG OF THE SHEPHERDESS

FAREWELL the beam of early day !
 Cold on the eye the Valley fades ,
 The Rivulet mourns upon its way,
 And Spectres seem to haunt the shades

These eyes, alas ! no pleasure see,
 Since Colin's love is changed from me.

Adieu the crook he gave my hand !
 Adieu the flowers that deck my hair !
 Go, Doves, and leave your silken band,
 Since Daphne is no longer fair.

* The Priest.

Let nought by Daphne be possest :
The myrtle-wreath that binds my brow ;
The knot of love he gave my breast,
Deep-blushing for his broken vow

Let all his tokens meet his eye ;
From Daphne all his gifts depart .
And let me send with these a Sigh,
To tell him of a broken heart

MADRIGAL.

AH ! say not that the Bard grows old ;
For what to me are passing years ?
I feel not Age's palsied cold :
To-day like yesterday appears.

When beauty beams, the World is gay :
What mortal is not then alive ?
Thus kindling at its magic ray,
Fourscore leaps back to twenty-five.

ODE TO TWO MICE IN A TRAP

So, Sir and Madam ¹ you at length are taken,
 After your dances over cheese and bacon,
 And tasting every dainty in your way ?
 Now to my question answer, if ye please :
 Speak, did ye make the bacon or the cheese ?
 What sort of a defence d'ye set up, pray ?

Thus at free cost to breakfast, dine, and sup ¹
 Even mild Judge Buller ought to hang you up,
 So full of the sweet milk of human nature
 What sort of fate, young People, should ye choose ?
 In purling Streams your pretty mouths amuse ,
 Or feed the the Cat's fond jaws, that for you water ?

I see ye are two Lovers, by your eyes,
 I hear ye are two Lovers, by your sighs :
 But what avail your looks, or what avail
 Your sighs so soft, or what indeed your tears,
 Or what your parting agonies and fears ;
 Since Death must pay a visit to your jail ?

Ay, you may kiss and pant, and pant and kiss,
 And put your pretty noses through the wire.

Ay, peep away, sweet Sir, and gentle Miss,

No more the Moon shall mark your amorous fire
 Around the loaded pantry pour the ray,
 And guide your gambols with her silver day

Your prison-door now, Culprits, let me ope.—

Now, now! You're off! it is a lucky hop

Ye're in the right on't, nimble Nymph and Swain.
 Go, rogues; but if once more I catch you here—
 What then?—What then! why then, I strongly fear,
 Ye little robbers, you'll escape again.

Thus let me imitate Judge Buller's deeds,
 Beneath whose sentence scarce a Felon bleeds;
 Who as the fur of Foxes trims his gown,
 The hand of Mercy lines his heart with down

THE MISER AND THE DERVISE.

THE Miser Sherd on his sick-bed lying,
 Affrighted, groaning, wheezing, praying, sighing,
 Expecting every hour to lose his breath,

Enter a Dervise “ Holy Father, say,
As life seems parting from this sinful clay,
What can preserve me from the jaws of Death”—

“ A sacrifice, dear Son good joints of meat,
Of lamb and mutton, for the Priest and Poor,
Nay, from the Koran shouldst thou lines repeat,
Those lines may possibly thy health restore ”—

“ Thank ye, dear Father, you have said enough,
Your counsel has already given me ease
Now as my sheep are all a great way off,
I'll quote our holy Koran, if you please ”

TO DELIA.

DELIA, thou really dost not know thy worth:
Nature has made a very idle blunder,
To give thee roses, lilies, and so forth,
Eyes, dimples, merely to excite our wonder.

See other Girls, of far inferior charms !
Behold them spreading through the World alarms,
With not one quarter of thy ammunition ;
Darkening the dangerous air with dreadful darts,
Transfixing Lovers' livers, heads, and hearts ;
Putting the Beaus into a sad condition ;

While thou, so idle, makest not Man thy game,—
As though the creature were not worth thy aim.

But, Delia, come, on me thy prowess try :
Let loose the Lightnings of thy coal-black eye ;
Attack, pursue ; I like the dangerous strife
Sweet Nymph, 'tis ten to one thou lay'st me low ;
Yet do not kill me, my dear generous Foe,
But make me prisoner to thy arms for life

SONG.

WHERE Fortune reigns in splendid pride,
What madding thousands crowd her shrine !
With sweet Simplicity their guide,
O Love, how few resort to thine !

Yet when of Fortune's smile possess'd,
The sigh for other days they pour,
Some secret sorrow stings the breast,
And languor-loaded crawls each hour.

But Love's pure joys unsullied last ;
His Votaries taste a bliss sublime,
Sigh to regain the moments past,
And wish to clip the wings of Time.

SUSAN

WHAT a pretty Hurricane about our ears ! Well ;
 thank Heaven, and our good old Ship for holding his head so long above water, we are not got down into Davy Jones's locker

SONG.

GOOD Lord ! when I think of the Storm,
 And, old Neptune, thy horrible spleen,
 That endeavour'd to make of this Form
 A Feast for the Fish at nineteen !

It had given my poor heart some alarms,
 As well as some grief to my Spark,
 To have found, that, instead of his arms,
 I had fill'd up the mouth of a shark

Dear Neptune, a Sweetheart is mine,
 Not a handsomer England possesses
 Shouldst thou bury these limbs in thy brine,
 They will lose a whole world of caresses

Oh, afford me one glance of my Lover !
 Oh, grant but one kiss from my Swain !—
 Thou shalt drown me a thousand times 'o'er,
 If ever I trust thee again

SONG.

FROM me since Hope hath wing'd her way,
To yield to luckier swains delight,
Ah! will not Comfort lend a ray,
To gild my bosom's dreary night?

Yes, yes to sooth my burning breast,
As far from Delia's form I rove,
I'll boast that once this heart was blest,
And tell the story of my love

TO VENUS.

O VENUS! wherefore is my sigh
To Delia's beauty breath'd in vain?
Ah! why her cold and clouded Eye,
That Sun-like shone upon her Swain?

A time there was when thou wast kind,
And gavest success to every pray'r,
When every Sigh was sure to find
A Sigh congenial from the Fair.

A time there was when Delia's breast,
At all my griefs, with grief would glow :
The Nymph would lull the storm to rest,
And soothe with every charm my woe.

Yet, Venus, wheresoe'er she flies,
To Delia all thy blisses give
In me, a single Shepherd dies ;
In her, behold, a thousand lives !

EPITAPH.

O THOU, removed from this World's strife,
Whose relics here below are laid ;
May Peace, who watch'd thy harmless life,
In death protect thy gentle shade !

Yet not alone, around thy bier,
Thy Children's sighs unfeign'd ascend :
The mourner Pity drops a tear,
And Virtue weeps a vanish'd friend.

ODE TO A COUNTRY HOYDEN

DEAR Dolly, stay thy scampering joints one minute,
And let me ask thee, mad-cap Girl, a Question .
Somewhat of consequence there may be in it,
That probably mayn't suit thy high digestion.

Pray what's the meaning of the present glee ?
To ride a nanny-goat, or ass, or pig ?
Or mount an ox ? or ride an apple-tree,
And on the dancing limb enjoy a jig ?

Perhaps thou art infected with an itch
To plague a poor old Crone, baptized a witch ,
To smoke her in her hovel, kill her cats :
Or lock her in, and rob her garden's peas,
Kick down the lame old Granny's hive of bees,
And break her windows in with stones and bats.

Perchance, to rob an orchard thou may'st long,
Or neighbour's hen's-nest of its eggs, or young,
Nay, steal the mother-hen to boot :
Perchance thou hasten'st, fond of vulgar joys,
To tumble on the haycocks with the boys,
And let them take, at will, the sweet salute.

Thou makest a long face, and answer'st thus

“ Lord then, about a trifle what a fuss !

As though a body might not ride a pig,

Or nanny-goat indeed, or ox, good me !

Or our old Neddy*, or an apple-tree,

Just for one's health to have a little jug !

“ Or where's the mighty harm, upon my word,

In taking a few eggs, or chicks, or hen ?

The farmers can't be ruin'd by't, good Lord !

Papa says that they're all substantial men.

“ Or where's the harm to ride upon a gate ?

To snub one so indeed, at such a rate !

I've tumbled from the trees upon the stones,

And never broke, in all my life, my bones.

See, Sir, I have not one black spot about me !

'Tis cruel then, for nothing thus to flout me

“ Or where's the mighty crime, I wonder, pray,

With Cousin Dick to tumble on the hay ?

Just like a Baby with her Doll you treat one :

Marry come up, why, Cousin Dick won't eat one

And then, forsooth, what mighty harm would come,

In having bits of fun with Cousin Tom ?”—

Dolly, thy artless answers force my smile :

I readily believe thee void of guile ;

* A name frequently given to a Jack-ass

My lovely Girl, I think thou mean'st no harm
 But had I Daughters just like thee, let loose,
 I verily should think myself a goose,
 To mark each colt-like lass without alarm

Doll, get thee home, and tell Mamma, so mild,
 So fearful that a frown would kill her Child,
 That not even birch to kill that Child is able,
 And tell thy Father, a fond fool, from me,
 To look a little sharper after thee,
 Clip thy wild tongue, and tie thee to the table

THE GRAVE OF EURIPIDES.

AN ELEGY.

SUPPOSED TO BE SPOKEN ON THE SPOT

O THOU whose deeply-pictured scenes of woe
 From Grecian eyes could force the pitying shower!
 Permit a stranger's sigh unfeign'd to flow.
 Indulge his hand to strew the sweetest flower

I know I shall not by thy Shade be scorn'd,
 Who boast my birth from Albion's free domain;
 Where Nature's soul, like thine, in Shakspeare mourn'd;
 Where Milton's Genius pour'd th' immortal strain.

Yet lo, a race of this degenerate age,
Sons of those sages, heroes, bards, whose fame
Gave splendour to the fair historic page,
Forget the glory of the Grecian name.

I mark you, Son of Athens, with a sigh,
Of Power, of Ignorance, the abject slave* —
Fear on his cheek, and misery in his eye,
He wanders near thee, heedless of thy grave

Where is thy fame? In Greece no more divine,
It pours on Albion's isle the radiant day,
There with a noon-tide lustre may it shine,
And gild my Country with unclouded ray'

Each night retiring, as I whisper peace,
With each adieu the tear will steal away,
To think that thou the Song of Gods shouldst cease,
And dying mingle with the meanest clay.

Though Greece forgets thee, yet on Fancy's wing
From distant Albion will I oft return;
Crown thy cold sod with all the blooms of Spring,
'And envy the rich earth that holds thy urn.

* The present Inhabitants of Greece fully answer this description.

SONG TO CYNTHIA.

THE Youth by Love and Hope betray'd,
Who breathes his ardent vows in vain,
Learns to forget the scornful Maid,
And bravely breaks her galling cham.

“ Farewell,” he cries, “ a fruitless flame!
A Nymph less cruel let me find :
The World holds many a blooming Dame;
An equal Chloe may be kind.”

But ah ! how hard the Lover's fate
Who feels the triumph of thine eye !
What Virgin shall his fires abate,
And sooth his bosom's hopeless sigh ?

For, lo ! the Loves, to make thee fair,
Agreed with every charm to part ;
And all the Virtues too declare,
They robb'd their own, to grace thy heart

HYMN TO LOVE.

Soul of the World, and essence of delight,
 Of thee I think by day, and dream by night,
 For I'm a bachelor, a good old maid
 Yet now, O Love, a pretty Woman's smiles
 Could make me dance at least a dozen miles,
 Without a stick indeed, or horse's aid
Such rapture from thy bloom each moment feels,
 Such mercury thou putttest in one's heels.

Did Jove prize charming Woman just like me,
 Of charming Woman we should find a dearth;
 In beauty what a desert there would be!
 Scarce one sweet Female to delight our earth.

And then, O Cynthia, whom these eyes adore;
 Whose form, and face, and mind, no rival know!
 Yes, thou, fair Maid, to that untravell'd shore,
 To charm the Thunderer, wouldst be doom'd to go;
 And leave, alas! thy sighing Shepherd here,
 Who never wants a Muse when thou art near —

And now to ~~thee~~, O Love, again I turn.
 How canst thou hear an earthly Angel mourn,

A victim to the vultures of Despair,
A witless victim to the villain's snare ?

How see vile Man her virtue undermine,
And bid the fairest form of Nature pine ?

Why sufferest thou her bosom's softest sigh ?
How canst thou, unrevenged, survey the Maid ;
Hear her soul's grief, behold her beauty fade ;
Nay (horror !), the poor lamb-like victim die ?

Lo, poor deserted Julia (once how fair !),
With cheek so wan and pale, and scatter'd hair ,
Her gentle heart by Love's sad tempest torn !
She runs, she stops, and wildly stares around ;
Now nails the eye of thought into the ground ,
Now, drown'd in tears, she lifts its beam forlorn ;
Pale as the Moon, amidst the midnight storm,
When rains and driving clouds her face deform

She grasps the earth , the sod her fingers tear .
Now wearied, disappointed, to the skies
She lifts her lids of woe, and plaintive sighs,
(Soul-piercing sound !) " Alas, he is not here !"
Rich pearls of sorrow from their fountains stray,
And drop (too precious for the ground) away.

“How could he, cruel, give my heart a blow?”

She moans now sits upon the bank and sings;
Oft breaks her dirge with lengthen'd sighs of woe,
And, pausing, mutters incoherent things.

Now plucking lilies from the sod, she cries,

“Sweet flowers, I once was innocent like you,
The tear, alas! a stranger to these eyes,
Nor blush my cheek, nor wound my bosom, knew”

Now with a smile, and now with melting wail,
She whispering tells of Colin's love the tale

Again her mind is on the wing, she starts,
Hope to her eyes her eagle-beam imparts.

Sudden she springs from earth “He's there, he's there;
I see him pass the flood. dear Colin, dear!
Thy Julia calls thee, 'tis thy Julia, stay;
Thy Julia calls thee; wherefore haste away?
Thy Julia loves thee. do not, cruel, fly;
Stay, or thy Julia's heart with grief will die.
If danger urge, that danger let me share:
Thou must not live, unwatch'd by Julia's care”

Sweet wretch! in vain her feet the Phantom chase:

Wildly she plunges 'mid the torrent's roar:
She shrieks, her arms her fancied Love embrace:

She grasps the gulf; ah! soon to grasp no more.

Lost Maid ! in vain the Shepherds try to save ·
 Breath'd is her spirit in the whelming wave.
 No longer doom'd Life's bitter cup to taste,
 Behold her hours of woe for ever past !

Deaf to the song of Flattery now her ear,
 Deaf to a Demon's whispers once so dear,
 Cold too the bosom of the once warm Maid
 The heart that swell'd with Love's delicious sighs,
 Still in its silent cell of darkness lies ;

 And dim her eyes in Death's eternal shade.
 Those orbs that sparkling bade a World adore,
 Ah, doom'd to sparkle, and to stream, no more !

Lo, on the bank her pale limbs stretch'd along,
 Amid the sorrows of a rural throng ;
 A sight to strike the voice of Rapture mute,
 And wake the tenderest string of Pity's lute !

Thee, thee, her murderer, Vengeance soon shall find ;
 Sure Blood-hound, trace thee in the weeping wind ;

 Pursue thee where the Desert grins with death :
 For not to Man again shalt thou return ;
 A shrinking World thy Cain-like form shall spurn,
 And, kneeling, curse thee with its keenest breath.

Smote and unburied shall thy carcase lie .
 Afar, affrighted shall the vultures fly ;

Of Fiends like thee, a breathless Fiend, afraid.
 And lo, the frowning Genius of the Gloom
 Shall shun the solitude that hails thy doom,
 And bid each Savage seek a distant shade.

O D E.

'Tis a strange World we live in, but 'twill mend
 As every body says, "The World grows wiser"
 Yet certain follies ne'er will have an end,
 Of which I am a wonderful despiser.

Is it not cruel, when, with all his flame,
 Genius performs a work, a man should bawl,
 "To ask much for this trifle were a shame;
 I know the fellow took no pains at all.
 Poets work nimblely, nimblely, now-a-days:
 Give a good pennyworth, good Master Bays."

I dare say the sad Bookseller, a Lane
 Or Lackington, pour'd such unhallow'd sounds
 On Milton's shrinking ear, with lips profane,
 Who bought th' immortal Work for *fifteen pounds!

* The Price actually given for the Paradise Lost!

Too many a ragged Brother of the Lay,
Too many a fair Historian, never doubt it,
Have heard a Bookseller so cruel say,
“Pray, Sir,” or “Ma’am, how long were you about it?”

Thou beast ! amid the Sons of Wisdom placed,
Who times of old, as well as modern, graced,
Couldst thou not catch a portion of their fire ?
Rolls not thine eye upon their Works each day ?
And canst thou from them nothing bear away,
To lift thy hog-like soul above the mire ?—

Some troubled by the tooth-ache, Lubin ran
To get the murderer of his quiet drawn ,
An Artist in an instant whips it out.
“ Well, Master Snag, hæ ? what has I to pay ? ”—
“ A shilling ”—“ Zounds ! a shilling do ye zay ? ”
With a long staring face replies the Lout.

“ Lord ! why Ize did not veel it , ’twas nort in it ;
You knows ye wern’t about it half a minute .
To gee so much Ize cursedly unwilling
Lord ! vor a tooth but yesterday old Slop
Did drag me by the head about his shop,
Three times, poor man, and only ax’d a shilling .”

SONG.

How changed is my Celadon's heart !

How alter'd each look of the Swain !

Now sullen he wishes to part,

Who call'd me the Pride of the Plain

Of late, with what ardour he strove

Every hour that was mine to beguile !

How he grieved if I doubted his love !

And how blest if he gain'd but a smile !

To me he devoted his days ,

And raptur'd on me was his tongue .

Thus Morning arose on his praise,

And Evening went down on his song.

Let me steal to the desert, and die,

Nor wound with reproaches his ears .

My reproof shall be only a sigh ,

My complaint, but the silence of tears

EPIGRAM.

SEE Clodio, happy in his own dear sense !
 And, hark ! the World cries, "Coaxcomb in th' excess"
 Now let me undertake the Fop's defence. —
 What man could ever be content with less ?

ANACREONTIC.

TO SYLVIA.

How canst thou smile at my despair,
 And bid me other Nymphs adore ?
 Show me a Girl but half so fair,
 And I will trouble thee no more.

Hide then that ~~neck~~; and lip, and eye,
 Since thus resolved to shun pursuit ;
 For Love will follow, like the Fly
 That always seeks the ~~fairest~~ fruit.

LISETTA.

IN the name of the great God of Love, how shall I dispose of myself? Which of my Swains must wear the willow?

O Virgins, tell me how to choose,
For I'm a novice on it.
Poor Colin at a distance wooes,
And sends his soul in sonnet,—

While Lubin, to no forms a slave,
Won't stay to write for blisses;
But prints upon my mouth, the knave,
His wishes with his kisses.

If Lubin seize a rude embrace,
And I begin to clatter;
The rogue stares gravely in my face,
And asks me what's the matter?

Of kisses lately he stole three;
I striek'd with might and main:
“Since ye don't like them,” per quoth he,
“Lord! take them back again.”—

“ No, no, I won’t,” says I, “ keep off ,
They please me much,” I swore —
“ Oh, is it so ?” cried he “ enough ;
Then, Miss, you wish for more.”

Poor Colin turns, if I but frown,
All white as any Fleece is.—
Lubin would give me a green gown,
And rummage me to pieces.

The one, so meek and complaisant,
All silence, awe, and wonder,—
The other, impudence and rant,
And boisterous as the Thunder.

This begs to press my finger’s tip,
So bashful is my Lover.—
That savage bounces on my lip,
And kisses it all over.

O Modesty ! thou art so sweet,
Not wild, and bold, and teasing ;
And yet, each sister Nymph I meet
Thinks Boldness not unpleasing.

This is a wicked world, oh dear !
And wickedness is in me
Though Modesty's so sweet, I fear
That Impudence will win me.

CORIN'S PROFESSION,

OR,

THE SONG OF CONSTANCY

Now, Joan, we are married, and now let me say,
Though both are in youth, yet that youth will decay :
In our journey through life, my dear Joan, I suppose
We shall oft meet a bramble, and sometimes a rose.

When a cloud on this forehead shall darken my day,
Thy sunshine of sweetness must smile it away ;
And when the dull vapour shall dwell upon thine,
To chase it the labour and triumph be mine.

Let us wish not for wealth, to devour and consume,
For luxury's but a short road to the tomb :
Let us sigh not for grandeur, for trust me, my Joan,
The keenest of cares owes its birth to a throne.

Thou shalt milk our one cow ; and if Fortune pursue,
In good time, with her blessing, my Joan may milk two :

I will till our small field, while thy prattle and song
Shall charm as I drive the bright ploughshare along

When finish'd the day, by the fire we'll regale,
And treat a good neighbour at eve with our ale ;
For, Joan, who would wish for self only to live ?
One blessing of life, my dear Girl, is to give.

Even the Red-breast and Wren shall not seek us in vain,
While thou hast a crumb, or thy Corin a grain .
Not only their songs will they pour from the grove,
But yield, by example, sweet lessons of love.

Though thy beauty must fade, yet thy youth I'll remember,

That thy May was my own, when thou showest De- cember

And when age to my head shall his winter impart,
The summer of Love shall reside in my heart.

ODE TO UGLINESS.

DAUGHTER of Hecate, thou'rt undone ;

Joy to my soul, thine empire falls :

No more, thou hobbling envious Crone,

Thy power the female world appals.

With smiles the Queen of Love appears,
No longer trembling for the Graces :
No more thy rude attack she fears
On faultless forms, and fairest faces.

Beauty will never lose her prime,
Nor mourn her losses, as of yore :
Defeated too thy brother Time,
The God of Wrinkle, wounds no more.

See Age display her ivory rows !
Her lip preserves its purple bloom :
Her bosom heaves with Alpine snows,
And kisses breathe the rich perfume.

The furrowed cheek, and hoary head,
No longer now, as usual, greet ;
And, what our Grandmothers all dread,
The nose and chin no longer meet.

Time's power the good old Grannies brave ;
And, ogling, dart their amorous fire ;
Decline with graces to the grave,
And with the blush of health expire.

THE TRAVELLER AND JUPITER.

WHAT wicked thousands sooner would affront
 (Such is of sin the wonderful increase)
 The Heaven's Eternal Ruler (fie upon 't !)
 Than one poor brainless Justice of the Peace ;
 Or Country Squire who nothing knows but doxies,
 Hares, acts of parliament, hounds, horses, foxes !

Nay further, which should scarcely be repeated
 (And oh that groundless were the Poet's fears !),
 God by his own sad Servants is worse treated,
Worse than our Country Gentlemen by theirs.
 Ask of the Bishops else , whose humble souls
 Sweet Mercy melts, and Charity*controls.

To cheat the Devil, at times, I've no objection ;
 Not Heaven · 'tis such a villainous reflection

A certain Traveller, in ancient days,
 When Gods and Goddesses were thick as Hops,
 Wishing, as he was beating the highways,
 For somewhat dainty to amuse his chops ;

Knelt down to Jupiter, and thus began

“ O Jupiter, as I’m an honest man,

I’ll keep my word, if thou wilt grant my pray’r :

Amidst my travels, let me something find ,

Little or much, good, bad, of any kind ,

I vow to thee, thy Godship half shall share ”

Then with grave sanctity he thump’d his craw ,

Much as to say, “ Great Jove, my word’s a law.”

He had not walk’d a mile, before he found

A handsome Bag of Filberts on the ground ;

At sight of which, his lips with rapture smacking,

Plump down he squats, and falls at once to cracking

To cut my story short, he crack’d and eat,

From every nut, each atom of the meat ,

When, gravely gathering up the shells, he cries,

“ Jove, sacred have I kept my word for, see,

The better half indeed I leave to thee ,

The shells, O mighty Ruler of the Skies !

There are they all, great Jove , survey ’em :

Shouldst thou suspect my honour, weigh ’em.”

SONG.

THE wretch oh let me never know,
Who turns from Pity's tearful eye ;
Who melts not at the dirge of woe,
But bids the soul renew its sigh !

Oh say not with the voice of Scorn,
" The lilies of thy neck are fled ,
Thine eyes their vanish'd radiance mourn ;
The roses of thy cheek are dead."

Too cruel Youth, with tears I own
The rose and lily's sad decay ;
And sorrowing wish, for thee alone,
Their transient bloom a longer day.

Yet, though thine eyes no longer trace
The healthful blush of former charms ;
Remember that each luckless grace,
O Colm, faded in thy arms.

ODE TO MY GOOD FRIEND, THE MOST MER-CIFUL JUDGE BULLER

O BULLER, whose fair Heart, so full of love,
Melts, Snow-like, on the victim void of hope,
Whose Conscience stretches like the softest Glove,
To save the sighing Culprit from the rope !
To thee, in Virtue's stoutest armour strong,
Permit thy friend and Bard to pour the Song

Oh let us drag the foes of Man to day,
And hang them, like *thy rats, upon our Lay;
Murderers that strike the cheek of Horror pale.
Whose morals give contagion to a jail.

Illumined, ah' too oft by Fortune's Rays,
A pigmy Wretch is ~~sh~~own in yon huge house†,
Just as the Solar Microscope displays
A Mite, a Flea, a Bug, a dirty Louse

A Judge may rise, despising Nature's groan,
A villain, in damnation sunk so deep,
That Vice, black Vice, shall ne'er be idle known,
But when the fur-clad Monster falls asleep

* Hereby hangs a pretty little tale.

† Westminster Hall.

Just as the Hackney-coachmen curse aloud
Kind Sol, who dissipates a threatening Cloud,
Dark-hovering, wishing much his power to show,
And bid his deluge drown the World below,—

Just as the restless Demon of the Night
Lours on the maiden blush of orient Light,
And sculks into the charnel's murky shade,
A Judge may rise, whose scowl shall curse the smile
Of Justice, who so long has blest our isle,
And strike with ruffian fist the heavenly Maid.

Where is the Judge, in murder only brave,
Whose soul delights to feed the gaping grave;
Who on the Convict's pale cheek feasts his eyes,
Whose heartfelt sounds are Hope's expiring sighs?

Where is the happy Patron of the Rope,
Whose eyes on seas of blood would gladly ope,
Fresh hecatombs of carnage, every morn.
Whose ear could live on Virtue's deepest groan,
Stretch even to pain, to catch her last faint moan,
Poor writhing wretch, by every torture torn?

There's no such damned Judge, but let me say,
So foul a spirit may disgrace the day.—

Where is the Judge who, 'midst his shrinking vale,
Walks forth, ah! not to hear the Turtle's tale;
But with a happy, keen, and sparkling eye,
To see the Kite with fury sweep the sky,
Now in his iron talons bear along
The Lark which charm'd the season with his song?

To such Dame Nature never yet gave birth,
But such a miscreant vile may curse the earth

Where is the Judge who courts the gloom of night,
Charm'd with the owl's and bat's and beetle's flight,
And sees with joy the spectred band pass by,
With rapture listens to their piteous wail,
Now follows hard to catch the mournful tale,
And sorrows when the Phantoms scape his eye?

A Judge like this, to bid poor Nature mourn,
Was never yet, thank Heaven, but may be born.

Where is the Judge who walks the foaming shore
At midnight, 'midst the ruthless tempest's roar,
When Fate and Horror ride the thundering deep
Who for the Cormorant's broad pinion sighs,
To mingle with the tumult of the skies,
And join the whirlwind's wild resistless sweep;—

To hover o'er the darken'd scene of death,
 And triumph in the seaman's shrieking breath,
 Charm'd with each mountain surge, for life that raves :
 Charm'd as the arm of Fate, with cruel shock,
 Heaves the huge vessel on the groaning rock,
 And rends it piecemeal 'midst a world of waves ?

" There's no such man, nor ever was," you cry —
 Sweet Judge, dear dove-like Buller, so say I
 But may there not a Devil like this appear ?
 Life deals in monsters much too oft, I fear.

O Devon, parent of immortal men !
 Oh, should thy beauteous bosom prove a den,
 To hold and suckle such an Imp of Shame ;
 Know, to the Poet though thou gavest birth,
 With soul-felt ardour will I wish thy dearth,
 Renounce thy blasted soil, and change my name.

SYLVIA.

DASHWOOD, I dislike your jokes on Matrimony : you possess too much sense to treat with so much levity a state which the first Philosophers held sacred But your jest must not be spared, though ruin be the consequence. After all your pretty professions, I am not now certain that your passion is sincere How am I to be convinced?

DASHWOOD

Fie, fie, thou charming Infidel ! Listen.

SONG.

DEAR Girl, I'm up to ears in love ;
The fact, a thousand follies prove
 Yes, yes, I feel the dart
Well, now I'm wounded, give the cure
Thou'rt not a cruel Girl, I'm sure ,
 So try to ease the smart.

" Lord bless us ! it is all a lie,"
I hear thee with emotion cry,
 " I'm sure there's nothing in 't "—
Indeed there is, I'm sore afraid.
Nay, take the Symptoms, sceptic Maid,
 That make it plain as print

The instant that I see thee coming,
My heart against my ribs keeps drumming,
 As if to caper out ;
To make his cong   at thy feet,
Pronounce himself thy slave so sweet,
 And fight for thee so stout.

From those dear lips, delicious bliss,

If saucy Coxcombs steal a kiss,

My eyes so jealous roll .

Aside, I call the puppies names ,

My Heart is Etna-like in flames,

Consuming to a Coal.

I cannot bear to be alone ,

I yawn, I sigh, I gape, I groan,

And writhe as if with pain :

Now on a sudden seize a book ;

Just half a minute in it look,

Then fling it down again.

Now ruminating, wild, I walk,

Nod to myself, and smile, and talk,

Now hunt for something lost,

Now sit, jump up , now stare, now wink ;

On some deep problem seem to think ,

Now vacant as a Post.

Now seize the violin, and scratch

A half a glee, or half a catch ,

Now snatch the brush, and paint;

Now fling it down, and seize the flute ;

Now hum an air divine , now hoot,

To make poor Music faint

Now, full resolved to visit thee,
And take a social cup of tea,
 And give my heart a plaster ;
I draw my Watch, not over-cool,
Call him a little limping Fool,
 And bid him travel faster.

Now bustling round the room, here, there,
I try to find my hat, and swear,
 And wish him damn'd, and dead ,
Now raging from my inmost soul,
I roar, " What thief my hat hath stole?"
 Then find it on my head.

Nay, nay, I'd marry thee, my Dear —
Love's symptoms now too plain appear,
 There's nobody can miss it :
Yet if these symptoms are not love,
And this the passion fail to prove,
 Why, what the devil is it ?

Oh that I did not love thee, Girl ,
And that my head, in this wild whirl,
 Could keep a little steady !
But 'tis in vain, alas ! to preach :
Like drowning boys, I've lost my reach ,
 My sense is gone already.

Yet, Sylvia, know, the single elf
 Has only one to serve , viz self.
 But when he takes a wife,
 A hundred masters then appear ,
 And, what is very hard, my Dear,
 His slavery lasts for life.

HYMN TO ADVERSITY

THUS sung the Bard of old, and deem'd no fool,
 " Sweet are the uses of adversity ,"
 A Dame who kicketh from your rump your stool,
 And, savage, showeth not one grain of mercy t'ye,
 Bids all your fancied-dearest friends turn tail,
Greets with wired whips, and blesses with a jail

 O Mistress of this wisdom-teaching pain,
 With Pillory, Gibbet, Famine, in thy train,
 Go knock, God bless thee, knock at others' doors
 By all my favourite Gods of Prose and Rhyme,
 I feel not thy philosophy sublime .
 Go, seek the zealot who thy stripes implores

 Go, thunder on another's house thy strife ,
 Snatch from a Husband's happy arms a Wife ,

Blot from his soul each glimmering ray of hope,
Rack all his lovely Daughters with disease;
Poison his Sons, and, more thy rage to please,
Present the fainting Father with a rope

But let me keep wife, children, peace, and land,
And learn thy lessons all at second-hand

My taste is dull, yes, vastly dull indeed

I hate to see a brother-mortal bleed
I hate to hear a gentle nature groan,
And, Goddess, more especially my own

Yes, yes, Heaven knows, my taste is more confined,
Prefers the Zephyr to the howling Wind.
Prefers too, such my star's unlucky blunder,
One hour's bright Calm, to months of Cloud and Thunder.

Thou possibly mayst be a good physician,
But certainly dost not know my weak condition
Blisters, and scarifying, and spare diet,
Would set my nervous system in a riot
Rich cordial drafts would answer best, I trow,
Made up by Messieurs Hammersly and Co

Thine "iron scourge" would really ~~act in~~ vain,
So apt am I to ~~make wry~~ mouths at pain,

At disappointment much inclined to moan.
Whenever then, O Goddess, things we see
That with one's nature so much disagree,
Methinks 'twere better they were let alone.

To tumble from a house, or from a tow'r,
And break a luckless brace of legs and arms,
Would make one look most miserably sour —
Yet are there men who deem all these no harms.

Then seek them, Goddess, souse them on the stones;
And, for their goodly comfort, crack their bones.

If in a well-stuff'd coach, well-overset,
A broken leg and thigh and arm I get,
I am not, I confess, of that pure leaven,
To crawl out on my hands and knees, and say,
Grace-like, "For what I have received this day,
I humbly thank thee, O most gracious Heaven!"

O Mistress of the terrifying men,
The boatswain's deep-toned voice and brawny arm,
Oh be not within leagues of Peter seen!
Thy cat-o'-nine-tails cannot, cannot charm.
A stupid Scholar, Goddess, I shall be:
Thy conversations are too deep for me.

Yes, Madam, you are too sublime a Dame
For Peter's company, I speak with shame
A little winning wench contenteth me,
Clep'd Fortune, a good-natured smiling lass,
Who constant lights my pipe, and fills my glass,
And makes my every day a jubilee

This is the sweet Companion for my money
Such is the little Syren I desire.
Thou art all Gall, and she all Milk and Honey:
'Tis at a distance I must thee admire

A hawk-like appetite, and empty platters,
The bleak wind whistling through a coat in tatters,
The flight of fancied friends, a foe's abuses,
Are things for which my bowels do not yearn,
For rot me, Madam, if I can discern
One atom of their several earthly uses

Morality may wear a ruffled shirt,
I really think, and not his conscience hurt.
Morality may also like nice picking,
For, since the great All-wise has given us fowls,
Mankind were certainly a set of owls,
To dare to place damnation in a chicken

Morality, I ween, may go well drest,
Keep a good fire, and live upon the best,
Throw by his wheelbarrow, and keep a carriage,
Visit the opera, masquerade, and play,
Drink Claret, Burgundy, Champagne, Tokay,
Get fifty thousand with a Girl in marriage

To eat from splendid Plate, or homely Manger,
Methinks the soul is just in equal danger.

Besides, 'tis late, O Goddess, in the day;
I'm not a subject fit for thee to flay
To speak the truth, my nerves too nicely feel
Go, search the motley mixture of mankind;
Some young enthusiast wild thou soon mayst find,
Proud of thy whips, and glad to grace thy wheel

So great for my own person is my love,
And hard thy lessons, I can't now begin 'em —
Besides, as I have hinted just above,
I'd rather read of battles than be in 'em.

SONG TO SAPPHO

At length, O fairest Nymph, farewell !

Let sighs alone my passion tell ;

With tears I quit thy arms

Adieu each eve of pure delight ,

Adieu each morn with rapture bright ,

Adieu thy brighter charms !

Where'er by Fate condemn'd to stray,

Where Phœbus pours the golden day,

Or sleeps beneath the wave,

Thine image with my path pursue ;

And, ever present on my view,

Detain me still a slave.

In vain I roam , I strive in vain

To break, O beauteous Maid, thy chain.

Yet why my fetters part ?

Even now thy sighs my sighs approve ;

Even now thy love returns my love,

And yields me heart for heart.

INVOCATION TO SAINT CECILIA

ON A LADY'S SINGING.

DESCEND, O Goddess ! from thy sphere,
And listen to a British Maid
A sweeter Sappho warbles here,
Than charm'd of yore the Lesbian shade.

Yet not like Sappho's mourns her strain,
Alas ! with Love's desponding sigh
To Delia's beauty bows each Swain,
And owns the triumph of her eye

ON THE DEATH OF A MUSICAL FRIEND.

A PASTORAL ELEGY.

How blest weré the Nymphs and the Swains,
When Lycidas join'd in the Song ;
The chief and the pride of the plains,
Who led all the Pleasures along !

Of late not a valley was fair,
Not a grove gave a musical sound,
The Breeze seem'd a Sigh of Despair,
And Pity sat mute on the ground

But Nature (how sudden the change !)
At the presence of Lycidas smil'd ;
Health was seen through the valley to range,
And an Eden sprung up from the wild.

The throstle was heard in the shade ;
The linnet enliven'd the grove ;
And Echo, long banish'd, sweet Maid,
Return'd with her stories of love.

Yes, each scene at his presence was glad,
That so lately with sorrow was rent ;
And the voice of the Mourner so sad
Was lost in the songs of Content.

Just able to crawl o'er the stile,
And doom'd, ah ! to labour no more,
Age would crawl from his cot with a smile,
And a blessing to leave at his door.

But the Shepherd for ever is gone :

Hark, his knell how it saddens the gale !

Joy dies, and our pastimes are flown ;

Fate envies the smiles of our vale.

Now let Mirth from each hamlet retire

To the region of silence and gloom :

Sure his death must our sorrow inspire,

Since the Virtues will weep at his tomb

APOLLO TO THE ANACREONTIC SOCIETY

AT THE CROWN AND ANCHOR

YE Sons of Anacreon, listen awhile ;

'Tis Apollo, your friend, that sends greeting :

Of your pleasures we Gods are in love with the style,

And are mad to be down at your Meeting.

Father Jove with your sounds is so wondrously pleas'd,

That he swears at our flats and our sharps ;

With the squalls of each Muse he'll no longer be teas'd,

So commands me to break up their Harps.

He has quite put a stop to poor Momus's fun,
And forbid his jeu d'esprit to flow ;
Thus our Club is knock'd up, because we're outdone
By the mirth of you Mortals below

Then accept my petition, a wish most sincere ,
Let me join as the Laureat your throng
Though I cannot, like Incledon, ravish your ear,
I can give you a pretty good Song
As for example —

SONG BY APOLLO

A POX on all sorrow ! On happiness seize.
Care, avaunt ! nor our pleasures alloy
Since Jove has given passions, and objects to please ;
The meaning is, “ Mortals, enjoy ”

Jove's a God of ten thousand the Monarch, I know,
Loves his bottle, girl, song, and a jest ,
Has a monstrous regard for choice spirits below,
And is charm'd when his creatures are blest.

But he's vex'd when a fool takes it into his head,
That he's lost if he meddles with pleasure ,
And thinks too the fellow confounded ill-bred,
To refuse when he offers the treasure.

When a zealot has turn'd up the whites of his eyes,
With long phiz, and a puritan strain,
I have seen the God laugh, and in fun, from the skies,
Make up mouths at the blockhead again.

Then push round the bottle, let each give his song,
Wit, humour, and friendship, attend us
And while for enjoyment our passions are strong,
Let us ask not his Godship to mend us.

Thus we'll revel, till Morning peeps into our glass
Then to scenes of new rapture remove,
To embrace with devotion a Wife or a Lass,
And be blest on the bosom of love

ODE TO A HANDSOME WIDOW.

SEE yonder Cloud, that mopes with mournful shade,
Black, black, as though it never would be bright !
Sol like a Bridegroom comes, a jovial blade,
Clasps her with warmth, and lo, her darkness light !
The dress of Cloud soon alters ; for, behold,
Her gloomy sables change to pink and gold !
Daughter of Sorrow, thus perchance 'twill be,
If I mistake not Nature, soon with thee.—

Pale as the pale rain-loaded Lily's look,
 And languid as the Willow o'er the brook,
 Exalt once more that drooping Form to joy
 Too long the lute of Woe, with dying sound,
 And melting lullaby, thine eye hath drown'd
 The trump of Rapture should his voice employ,
 The sprightly Fiddle rouse his sister Dance,
 And bid thy cold heart glow with Love's romance

Thy lifted eyes too eloquently mourn,
 Deep-swimming in the silent fount of tears.
 And then thy voice so musically lorn,
 Accusing Fate's too cruel, cruel shears,
 Wakes all the soft emotions of my heart,
 That sympathising fain would mirth impart

But grief for Spouses lasts not Ladies long,
 Yet very poignant yes, though short, 'tis strong,
 When first the best of husbands breathes his last.
 And if his all be left them, what a storm
 Of sighs and tears their beauty to deform!
 Grief seems as ever he would ride the blast.

Yet soon, 'tis said, the winds of Woe are still,
 And tears, from torrents, sink a prattling rill.—

Think what a pair of sparkling eyes are thine,
And do not drown their Cupids in the brine ;
 And think too on thy pretty dimpled cheek .
Think of thy flaxen hair, whose beauties flow
In broad luxuriance o'er thy breast of snow ,
 And think too of that soft and polish'd neck
Think of thy lips, that kisses can impart,
So ready from their ruby beds to start

Thus speak those Lips “ We will be kiss'd again.”
And in the same sweet fascinating strain,
 Thy polish'd Bosom says, “ I will be press'd.”
And then thy Cheek, the loveliest of our isle,
Exclaims, “ I will resume the cheerful smile ,
 My bloom shall make some future Lover blest.”

Oh listen to thy Locks, from Fashion hurl'd
“ We will look Christian-like, we will be curl'd ;
 We will not imitate a Cow's straight Tail ”
And then thy all-subduing taper Waist,
So full of rich desires, and then so chaste
 While others are so marvellously frail
“ I will be clasp'd by some smart Swain, I say ,
Not, like a Cabbage-stalk, be flung away.”

Thy Heart too speaks "Though now, alas' forlorn,
 There seems no reason for eternal sighing.
 Owl-like, a little let me mope and mourn,
 But not be ever swelling, groaning, dying."

Hark' from thy hand, which thou dost wretched wring,
 "Give me," a Finger cries, "another ring"
 Oh! canst thou hear it on such wishes dwell,
 And not indulge it with the bagatelle?

Daughter of Grief, then hamper not thy Charms.
 Who, really grown rebellious, pant for arms;
 Give way then to the roving mutineers:
 And shouldst thou say, "Lord! who will take 'em in?"
 Trust me, I'll entertain 'em, every skin:
My bosom's open to the pretty Dears

 ODE.

Peter descanteth on the Precariousness of Life, wisheth to be at his own Disposal, and sheweth no Objection to an emendation of Nature

AH! this our World's a world of sad mishaps;
 Beset with Death's uncomfortable traps:
 Hard squeezed, we sometimes get away to groan.

Now half the body's in the spiteful gin ;
And now th' unlucky tail, to make us grin,
So that we dare not call our souls our own

I do not like entails I hate controul.
Jove, give me the fee simple of my soul .
Around this System let me range at ease ,
To stay, or quit it, whensoever I please

Amid the wonders of Creation's field,
Strange that existence should to trifles yield '—
Behold that promising Herculean Boy :
A zephyr on his infant cradle blows ;
Lo ! out at once Life's little candle goes,
The flame too of a Parent's hope and joy

Thus shall the poor mean solitary Worm
Kill, in the acorn's kind protecting cell,
The small Oak-embryo, that had mock'd the storm,
And smiled upon the sulphur'd flash of Hell ;
Had push'd its roots where Earth's deep centre lies,
And with its towering branches braved the skies

'Tis a strange World we live in, to be sure ,
A world of wounds, I fear, without a cure
Dame Nature seems a sad unnatural mother :

Methinks 'tis hard, one Animal should die,
Groan out his last, and ever close his eye,
To treat with life and rosy health another

'Tis strange indeed, yet true, though passing strange :
Where'er the foot or eye of man can range,
This munching, mad, decouring system reigns
Oh ! could our mortal palate feed on Roses,
As on their dainty Essence feed our noses,
This World were then a pleasurable scene

'Tis murder, murder, now, from morn to night —
Look at a simple act that yields delight,
The ploughman toiling through his fallowed ground .
Happy he turns the glebe for vegetation ,
Yet in this act how many a harmless nation
Of Worms, poor reptiles, feel the grinding wound !
While rooks, and crows, and magpies, hop behind,
Alert and greedy, gobbling all they find

That 'tis a good World, cannot be contended —
I wish 'twere mended.

OSGAR'S PRAYER.

ELFRID, the beautiful Daughter of Osgar, was a captive among the Druids, and designed as a sacrifice to the Gods. Amidst a storm of thunder and lightning, he goes to the Druid mountain, in order to procure, by his supplications, and an offer of his own life upon the altar, his Daughter's liberty

OSGAR

“ YE Winds, that, warring thus, around me rage,
Cease your rude thunders on the wretch who dies .
Poor is the triumph o'er desponding age,
Whose energy is only in his sighs.

“ Ye forked Lightnings that around me flame,
Ye mark two languid Eyes that weep and pray :
Once, once, like you, high-kindling shone their beam ;
Till Time, and dark Misfortune, dimm'd their ray.

“ Forbear, alas ! to thwart my way forlorn,
Wet with the falling tears of fondest love
For life, I hear a captive Daughter mourn,
And court compassion from the Druid grove.

“ My feebly bending form, and scanty hair Grown white with grief, my tender cause should plead ,

Wake a small pity on my deep despair,
And bid the Druids stay the bloody deed

“ If on their hearts my sorrows nought avail.
What, without Elfrid, life, poor life, endears ?
Then kill me ; then 'tis Mercy lulls the wail
Of one who counts the moments by his tears ”

TO THE DRUIDS

“ SEERS of high knowledge, lo, a grief-worn man,
Whose only Daughter is his soul's delight !
For her a Father, woe-begone and wan,
With horror darkens even the shade of night

“ Fathers of Virtue, why this long delay ?
Oh lead your willing victim to the shrine :
Quick let me close these eyes upon the day,
That, Elfrid, light may beam for years on thine

“ Haste with the knife of Fate, ye Druid bands,
And thus, my Daughter's prison-door unbar.
Forbear to bind with cords my wither'd hands :
To struggle, were with Elfrid's life to war

“ Her eye will drop a pearl on Osgar’s tomb ,
Her sighs be balm where’er my urn is laid
Those let her give, and I will bless my doom ,
I ask no happier offering to my Shade

“ Fathers of Knowledge, why this long delay ?
Speak, am I not a victim for yon sphere ?
When from your holy mandates did I stray,
And drew from Virtue’s wounded eye the tear ?

“ When did I cease your temples to adore ?
Or view’d unaw’d the Druids’ ancient fire ?
These rocks, these idols, I confess’d their pow’r,
And reverent sung their wonders to my Lyre

“ When was the faith of Osgar known to fail ?
What injured Spirits of my slights complain ?
What Spectre, midst the thunders of the gale,
On Osgar mournful call’d, and call’d in vain ?

“ Have I not walk’d with many a sheeted Ghost,
’Midst the dread silence of the midnight gloom ,
On moonlight mountains met the haggard Host
(How wild !), with all their horrors from the tomb ?

“ Shrunk Penury, as crawling from the grave,
Ne’er left with sorrowing downcast eye my door :
Thanks to the Gods, who wealth to Osgar gave ;
And taught its happy worth, to help the Poor

“ A Daughter’s virtues are my only boast ;
A sweet simplicity, unspoil’d by art .
Lo, with my Elfrid’s life, a World is lost !
All, all forsakes me, but a breaking heart.

“ Oh spare the terrors of a blameless Maid ,
And let my sufferings her dear days prolong .
Oh be these limbs along your altar laid ,
O’er bleeding Osgar hymn the Victim’s Song

“ The sigh that wafts the parting soul away,
Retires from others with unwilling flight .
With joy, my Spirit shall desert its clay ,
And bless you, Druids, for the cruel rite

“ Let not my Elfrid see my blood-stain’d hair,
Nor cheek so pale, which saves her precious breath.
A scene so sad, her gentle nature spare .
Her wounded heart, so soft, would weep to death

“ Yet would my Elfrid see no frown appear,
As sullen, sorrowing for the loss of life
I'll teach my languid cheek a smile to wear,
And show its triumph in the tender strife

“ Enough of woe her drooping strength will prove,
When cold beneath the lonely turf I lie
The bleeding history of a Parent's love,
Will often dim the crystal of her eye.

“ Ye Gods, when dead, permit my Ghost to roam,
Peace to her turtle-bosom to impart,
To guard from pining thought her tender bloom,
And snatch from Woe's o'erwhelming floods her heart

“ Thus, thus, attendant be my watchful Shade,
Till Fate, commanding, seal her dove-like eye;
Then let me fondly clasp my darling Maid,
And add another glory to your sky.

“ Oh deal the blow, and Elfrid's form release !”—
He said . the melting Druids heard his pray'r ,
Revered his virtues, bade him go in peace,
And to a Father's fondness gave the Fair.

DELIA,

A PASTORAL ELEGY

Lo, the Pride of the Village is dead !
 Lo, the bloom of our vale is no more !
 Now Sorrow sits dumb in the shade,
 Where Rapture oft carol'd before.

Like the Morn she enliven'd the groves ;
 Like the Summer, gave life to the Swain ;
 For her smile was the seat of the Loves,
 And her voice the sweet song of the plain.

O Delia ! divine is thy name ;
 Thy merits we all shall revere :
 We shall dwell with delight on thy fame,
 And think of thy loss with a tear

Even our Children shall hsp in thy praise :
 Their instructress shall Innocence be ;
 Who their little ambition shall raise,
 To resemble a Fair-one like thee.

Though lodged in a church-yard so drear,
Which the yew-tree surrounds with its gloom,
Thy virtue a sun shall appear,
And thy graces be flowers on thy tomb

MADRIGAL

How sweet is every Shepherd's Song !
How fair the vows that load his tongue !
His soul with every sigh expires
His bosom flames with furious fires
This every day we seem to see ,
But when will Love and Truth agree ?

When Spiders, for the harmless fly,
In silent ambush cease to lie ;
When Foxes keen with poultry play,
And from the lambkin run away ,
Then may the World with wonder see,
That Love and Truth at last agree.

SONG, BY SYLVIA.

WHEN first my Shepherd told his tale,
 He droop'd and languish'd, look'd and sigh'd ,
 " Good Heaven!" thought I, and then turn'd pale,
 " How often men for love have died!"
 Then pondering well, thought I again,
 " 'Tis pity kill so sweet a Swain "

With such a warmth my hand he prest,
 My Heart was fill'd with wild alarms ,
 That bouncing, bouncing at my breast,
 Cried, " Take poor Colin to your arms "
 And then my Tongue began its strain,
 " 'Tis pity kill so sweet a Swain "

Now Wishes rise, his cause to plead,
 The Mutineers, in saucy bands ,
 And roar, " For shame to strike him dead,
 And have a murder on your hands!"—
 " Wishes, you're right," quoth I, " 'tis plain."—
 " What then?"—What then! I saved the Swain.

ODE TO THE SUN.

O THOU, bright Ruler of the Day,
To whom unnumber'd millions pray,
And, kneeling, deem thee all divine,
Eternal foe of inky Night,
Who puttest all her umps to flight,
Receive the Poet's grateful line

I own I love thy early beam,
That gilds the hill and vale and stream,
And trees and cots and rural spires,
And, happy, 'mid the valley's song,
I listen to the minstrel throng,
And, thankful, hail thy genial fires.

Yet lo, the Lords of this huge place*
Care not three straws for thy bright face,
Nay, thy rich lamp with curses load
When thou gett'st up, they go to bed;
And when the night-cap's on thy head,
They stare, and flit like Owls abroad

* London

Yes, yes, indeed they oft protest
 That thou'rt a most intruding beast ,
 And lo, in triumph thus they say .
 " Behold our navy, Britain's pride !
 From pole to pole our vessels glide,
 And sail as safe by night as day

" Want we a fruit, of flavour fine,"
 Exclaim the Great, " behold, the pine
 Is better warm'd by coal and tan
 Not even to one exotic plant
 The Sun a perfect taste can grant
 Deny the stubborn fact who can."

The Footmen too, with winking eyes,
 Abuse thy journey up the skies ,
Messieurs Postilions, Mesdames Cooks
 Content to lie abed all day,
 They hate, alas ! thy rising ray,
 And curse thy all-observing looks.

Vex'd to their houses to be driven,
 The Great retire from routs, their heaven,
 And break up in a horrid ~~passion~~ ,

And cry, " In times of old, indeed,
 The tasteless world a Sun might need ,
 But now the fool is out of fashion

" About his business let him go,
 And light on other Systems throw,
Vulgars that never wax-lights handle .
 Nay, while a mutton-light remains,
 A Sun with us no credit gains,
 But yields to every Farthing Candle "

THE QUEEN OF FRANCE TO HER CHILDREN,

JUST BEFORE HER EXECUTION

AN ELEGIAC BALLAD

FROM my prison with joy could I go,
 And with smiles meet the savage decree,
 Were it only to sleep from my woe,
 Since the grave holds no terrors for me.
 But from you, O my Children, to part !
 Oh ! a coward, I melt at my doom .
 Ye draw me to earth , and my heart
 Sighs for life, and shrinks back from the tomb

List, list not to Calumny's lie,
 For I know not of guilt and its fears,
 And when at my fate ye will sigh,
 My Ghost shall rejoice in your tears

In blessings, ah ! take my last breath
 Dear Babes of my bosom, adieu !
 May the Cloud be dispers'd by my death,
 And open a Sunshine for you !

TO A LADY

WHO WISHED NOT TO BE ADMIR'D

AH, foolish Delia ! since you hate
 That people of your charms should prate,
 Give me that face, that air divine,
 And in exchange accept of mine

Thus shall I gain my heart's desire,
 And set a raptur'd World on fire
You'll too be pleas'd (no longer doubt ye),
 As folks won't say one word about ye

SONG

DEAR Phyllida, do not my passion despise ,
Ah ! wherefore disdain all my vows and my sighs ?

Can Cruelty dwell with the Dove ?

O Phyllida, think not I mean to deceive
Whatever I tell thee, with safety believe ,

For Truth is the Daughter of Love

Of beauty and grace thou hast got such a store ,
The eye that beholds thee, at once must adore,

Nor wish from thine altar to rove

Distrust not, I beg thee, the power of thy smile .

The Swain who now woos thee, is void of all guile ,

And Truth is the Daughter of Love

Yet, Phyllida, let me confess in thine ear,

I would fly from thy charms, which so much I revere,

But their magic forbids me to move

And yet, as inconstancy governs the Fair,

Perhaps thou mayst smile, and thus end my despair ,

Hope too is the Daughter of Love.

ODE ON FRENCH TASTE

'Tis laughable to see a Frenchman swell ,
 Proud of his tragic idol, Pierre Corneille,
 Baptized forsooth le Grand !
 But our fop-neighbours see things with strange eyes
 Alas ! Sublimity ne'er left her skies,
 To take a Frenchman by the hand

She is indeed a very different Dame
 A meretricious noisy Lass, I ween ,
 A bouncing Giantess, with eyes of flame,
 And such a daring and Medusa mien !

Trick'd out in flaunting lace, and stiff brocade,
 With cabbage-roses loaded, glaring, vast ,
Such is the Frenchman's song-inspiring Maid :
 The name of this bold Brobdignag, Bombast

Sublimity's a sweet majestic Fair ,
 So simple in her form, and speech, and paces ,
 So elegant her manners and her air
 A Juno dressed by all the easy Graces.

TO TIME

AN ANACREONTIC

COME hither , prythee haste, old Time,
And see what joys among us reign :
The bottle, music, girls, and rhyme,
And Friendship's soul, delight the scene.

Then hither prythee, Time, repair,
And taste the pleasures Gods should share

The Tuscan juice profusely flows
We sing of Love, and Delia's charms
When Morning warns us to repose,
We clasp a Favourite in our arms

Ah, could our joys for ever last !
But, Time, thy minutes fly too fast :
Yet wouldst thou pass one evening here,
Thou'dst make each hour a thousand year

SONG

YE gentil Squires, give over sighs,
 To gain regard in Ladies' eyes,
 And make them doat upon ye;
 For Love has long been kick'd to door,
 Because the little God is poor.
 Who's welcome without money?

Try, gentil Sirs, a different scheme;
 For truly 'tis an idle dream
 To woo with words of honey.
 Change (if ye wish their hearts to fix)
 Your Hearts into a Coach and Six,
 And com your Sighs to Money.

TO THE NIGHTINGALE.

LONE Minstrel of the moonlight hour,
 Who charm'st the silent listening plain,
 A hapless Pilgrim treads thy bow'r,
 To hear thy solitary strain.

How soothing is the song of woe,
To me whom Love hath doom'd to pine '
For, mid those sounds that plaintive flow,
I hear my sorrows mix with thine

DINAH,

OR,

MY LADY'S HOUSEKEEPER

Just forty-five was Mistress Dinah's age,
My Lady's housekeeper, stiff, dry, and sage,
Quoting old proverbs oft, with much formality.
A pair of flannel cheeks composed her face,
Red were her eyes; her nose of snipe-bill race,
Which took a deal of snuff, of Scottish quality
Her small prim mouth bore many a hairy Sprig,
Resembling much the Bristles on a pig.
She likewise held a handsome length of Chin,
Tapering away to sharpness like a Pin
Her teeth so yellow much decay bespake,
As every other tooth her mouth had fled,
Thus, when she grinn'd, they seem'd a Garden-rake,
Or Sheep's Bones planted round a floweret bed

Her Hair (clept Carrots by the wits) was red,
 Sleek comb'd upon a roll around her head
 Moreover comb'd up very close behind,
 No wanton ringlets waving in the wind.

Upon her head a small mob-cap she placed,
 Of lawn so stiff, with large flower'd Ribbon graced,
Yclept a Knot and Bridle; in a bow
 Of scarlet flaming, her long chin below

A goodly formal handkerchief of lawn,
 Around her scraggy neck, with parchment skin,
 Was, fair and smooth, with starch precision drawn,
 So that no prying eye might peep within —

Yet had it peep'd, it had espied no swell,
 No lovely swell, no more than on a cat
 For, lo! was Dinah's Neck (I grieve to tell)
 As any Tomb-stone, or a Flounder, flat

Now on this handkerchief, so starch and white,
 Was pinn'd a Barcelona, black and tight.
 A large broad-banded apron, rather short,
 Surrounded her long waist, with formal port.
 On week-days were black worsted mittens worn
 Black silk on Sundays did her arms adorn.

Long, very long, was Mistress Dinah's waist,
The stiff stay high before, for reasons chaste

A scarlet Petticoat she gave to view .
With a broad-plaited back she wore a gown
Of stuff, of yellow oft, and oft of brown,
And oft a damask, well beflower'd with blue,
Moreover, this same damask gown, or stuff,
Had a large sleeve, and a long ruffle cuff

Black worsted stockings on her legs she wore,
Black leather shoes too, which small buckles bore,
Composed of shining silver, also square,
Holding a pretty antiquated air

Shrill was her voice, that whistled through her beard,
And tunes, at times, were most discordant heard,

Harsh-grating on poor John the Footman's ear;
Harsh-grating on the ears of House-maids too,
Postilion eke, who cursed her for a shrew,

And Kitchen-wench, whom Misery taught to swear
All, all but Jehu, felt her powerful tongue;
Whose happier ear was sooth'd by sweeter song.

No company but Jehu's did she keep,
In horse-flesh, and a coach, profoundly deep;

My Lady's coachman, stout, and young, and ruddy
Great friends were they full oft, indeed, together
They walk'd, regardless of the wind and weather,
So pleased each other's happiness to study

For Friendship to a Zephyr sinks a Storm,
Turns to a Pigmy, Danger's Giant form
Nought casts a dread on Friendship's steady eye —
Thus did the Couple seek the darkest grove,
Where Silence and sweet Meditation rove,
Where Sol intrusive was forbid to pry

Greatly in Sentences did she delight,
So pious, putting people in the right
And often in the Prayer-book would she look,
Where Matrimony was much thumb'd indeed,
Because she oftenest here God's word did read,
The sweetest page in all the blessed book.

All on the Bible too did Dinah pore,
Where chaste Susanna nearly was a whore,
By wicked Elders almost overcome
King David's actions too did Dinah read,
A man of God's own heart, but call'd indeed
A wicked fornicating rogue by some —

Of Solomon admired she much the Song ,
Could read the monarch's Wisdom all day long
And where's the wonder ? Lo, the gallant Jew,
Of mortal hearts the great Queen Passion knew .
Thus sung he of the Sparrow and the Dove,
And pour'd instruction through the voice of love.—
John Bunyan read she too, and Kempis Tom,
Who plainly showed the way to Kingdom-come.

So modest was she, she got turn'd away
Susan the Kitchen-wench, for harmless play
 With Dick the Driver , likewise harmless Dick,
Because he took from Susan's lips a kiss ,
Because too Susan gave him up the bliss
 Without a scream, a faint-fit, or a kick

If John the Footman's eye on Lucy leer'd,
 My Lady's maid, she watch'd him like a Cat ,
And if the slightest word of love she heard,
 Quick in the fire indeed was all the fat .
Off were the couple trundled, man and maid ,
John for a rogue, and Lucy for a jade.

If e'er she heard of some forsaken Lass
 Who lost, by dire mishap, her maiden fame ;
At once she call'd her trollop, minx of brass,
 Strumpet, and every coarse opprobrious name.

Small was the mercy Dinah kept in store
For sinful flesh, the smallest for a whore

So modest Dinah ! if she saw two Cats
Ogling and pawing with their pretty pattes,
Kissing, and squinting love, with frisking hops ,
Fired at the action, what would Dinah do ?
Slip down her hand, and slyly take her shoe,
Then launch in thunder at their amorous chops

With Pigeons 'twas the same, and other Bnds .
All who made love, came in for bitter words ;
Poor simple souls, amidst the genial ray,
Whom simple Nature call'd to simple play !
But Dinah call'd it vile adulteration,
A wicked impudent abomination

It happen'd on a day, that grievous cries,
By Dinah pour'd, created great surprise
Ill, very ill, in bed, alas ! she lay ,
A dreadful colic Her good Lady wept,
Gave her rich cordials, to her bedside crept ,
When Dinah begg'd that she would go away.

Down went my Lady to the parlour straight,
Fearful that Dinah soon would yield to Fate ;

And, full of sorrow as my Lady went,
Sighs for her Maid's recovery back she sent

Lo, Doctor Pestle comes to yield relief !
He feels her pulse , is solemn, sage, and brief ,
 Prescribeth for the colic nought avails
On Dinah, lo ! the dire disorder gains ,
Stronger and faster flow the colic pains,
 Fear, trembling, paleness, every soul assails
“ Poor Dinah ! ” sighs each mouth around the room,
Join'd to a lengthening face of dread and gloom.

At last, poor Dinah pours a death-like groan.
A ghostly terror seizeth every one
 My Lady hears the cry, alas ! below.
She sends for Doctor Pestle Pestle straight
Runs to my Lady — “ Doctor, what's her fate?
 Speak, is it death, dear Doctor , yes or no ? ” —

“ Not death, but life, ” cries Pestle, “ forced that squall
A little Jehu's come to light, that's all ”

TO CHLOE

LET 'Sorrow seek her native night,
 For why should mortals count the tear?
 Joy, joy, should wing each moment's flight,
 And Echo nought but rapture hear
 I'll gather wisdom from the Dove,
 And make my life a life of love

While youth sits sparkling in thine eyes,
 And lips are rich with many a kiss,
 Aloud the voice of Nature cries,
 "I form'd those charms alone for bliss
 Go, Nymph, learn wisdom from my Dove,
 And be thy life a life of love"

THE YOUNG FLY,

AND

THE OLD SPIDER.

IN this original and beautiful Fable, the Poet alludeth to the arts of men, who, by Flattery, &c are constantly laying snares for Innocence The Bard moreover showeth, that Prudence may smile at the machinations of a great rogue

FRESH was the breath of Morn the busy breeze,
As Poets tell us, whisper'd through the trees,
And swept the dew-clad blooms with wing so light.
Phœbus got up, and made a blazing fire
That gilded every country house and spire;
And smiling put on his best looks so bright.

On this fair morn, a Spider who had set,
To catch a breakfast, his old waving net,
With curious art, upon a spangled thorn;
At length, with gravely-squinting longing eye,
Near him espied a pretty plump young Fly,
Humming her little orisons to Morn

“Good morrow, dear Miss Fly,” quoth gallant Grim.—
“Good morrow, Sir,” replied Miss Fly to him.—

“ Walk in, Miss, pray, and see what I’m about.”—
 “ I’m much obliged t’ ye, Sir,” Miss Fly rejoin’d :
 “ My eyes are both so very good, I find,
 That I can plainly see the whole without ”—

“ Fine weather, Miss ”—“ Yes, very very fine,”
 Quoth Miss ; “ prodigious fine indeed ”—
 “ But why so coy ? ” quoth Grim, “ that you decline
 To put within my bower your pretty head ? ”—

“ ’Tis simply this,”

Quoth cautious Miss .

“ I fear you’d like my pretty head so well,
 You’d keep it for yourself, Sir . who can tell ? ”—

“ Then let me squeeze your lovely hand, my Dear,
 And prove that all your dread is foolish, vain ”—
 “ I’ve a sore finger, Sir ; nay more, I fear
 You really would not let it go again ”—

“ Poh, poh, Child ! pray dismiss your idle dread :
 I would not hurt a hair of that sweet head.
 Well then, with one kind kiss of friendship meet me.”—
 “ La, Sir ! ” quoth Miss, with seeming artless tongue,
 “ I fear our salutation would be long ;
 So loving too, I ~~fear~~ that you would eat me.”

So saying, with a smile she left the rogue,
To weave more lines of death, and plan for prog.

MADRIGAL.

WHEN Love and Truth together play'd,
So cheerful was the Shepherd's song !
How happy too the rural Maid !
How light the minutes wing'd along !
But Love has left the sighing vale,
And Truth no longer tells her tale

Sly stealing, see, from scene to scene,
The watchful Jealousy appear ,
And pale Distrust with troubled men,
The rolling eye, and listening ear !
For Love has left the sighing vale,
And Truth no longer tells her tale.

Ah ! shall we see no more the hour
That wafted rapture on its wing ?
With murmurs shall the Rivulet pour,
That prattled from its crystal spring ?
Yes, yes ; while Love forsakes the vale,
And Truth no longer tells her tale.

TO CHLOE.

FIVE thousand years have roll'd away,
 And yet ten thousand Blockheads say,
 " O Pleasure, thou'rt the devil."
 While Nature bids them joy embrace,
 They fling the blessing in her face.—
 Now this is most uncivil.

But I'm not one of those, thank Heaven ;
 Ingratitude was never given
 To my good heart, I'm sure :
 Would Chloe yield a thousand kisses,
 Upon my knees I'd seize the blisses,
 And beg a thousand more

ODE TO A COUNTRY SQUIRE,

ON THE EVE OF HIS MARRIAGE

GREAT Squire, you're now upon the eve of marriage,
 And, O great Squire, I know you are a hog :
 Indeed so sad a brute in all your carriage,
 You'll freely give your Wife up for a Dog,

This day will yield a Fair-one to your arms,
Whose Dower are all the Virtues, and her Charms.

Forced by the frown of Poverty to wed,
With deep regret I see th' unwilling Fair
Dragg'd from her Lover, to thy hated bed ;
Sold by a cruel Parent to Despair —

See her deck'd out by garish, idle Art,
To captivate thy vulgar savage heart,
And live a Tyrant's slave, a servile Wife
How like the victim Lamb, in ribbons diest,
Led from its vale and sport, so lately blest,
To lose its sweetly-moffensive life !

Now, Squire, I'll tell you how 'twill be ere long:
(Oh could the thunder of the Poet's song, Preventing, dash thine iron cheek with shame !)
Thou'lt quarrel with her virtues, peerless Beauty !
Bid her "like Spaniels, understand her duty ;"
Upbraid her with the want of wealth and name. —

Wilt say, she came a beggar to thy house ;
That through mere charity thou took'st her in ;
Tell her "she crawls about thee like a Louse,
Eternally a torment to thy skin." —

How dares thy fancy nurse the lying thought?

How durst, alas! thy villain tongue declare,
That, when to thee the beauteous Maid was brought,
Thy offer'd hand with honour clothed the Fair?

Know, with the virtues of the charming Maid,
Know, with her beauties, thou'rt too well repaid;

Even by a smile, that all our envy draws:
Ah! when she yieldeth to thy lips her kiss,
And bosom yields thee (too sublime a bliss),
The luckless Virgin barter Gems for Straws.

At length thou'lt leave her for a wench, thy Cook:
She will enjoy thy cash, and love-clad look;

The turnspit-bastards, to thine eye be dear.
Thy Wife, with sweetness bordering on divine,
Pale wretch! in secret solitude shall pine,
Mourn to the wind, and drop the silent tear.

To Heaven, for help, she lifts the brimful eye:

Kind Heaven resumes the gift its bounty gave.
With happy heart thou hear'st her parting sigh;
And drunken, madding, dancest o'er her grave.

Thy Cook-wench soon becomes thy proper mate,
And leaves thee soon for Lads who clean thy stables;
Noses thee, palls thine ears, and pounds thy pate;
And, with much justice, on thee turns the tables.

Ma'am Cook shall oft contrive to see thee skipping,
To hide thee from her rage, from room to room ,
Urged by a ladleful of broth or dripping,
Or by the strong persuasions of the broom '—

To plague a little more thine aching head,
And keep thee, mournful devil, upon thorns,
Shall take thy own Postilion to her bed,
And, threatening, dare thee once to mention horns !

THE COMPLAINT OF MIRZA,

TO

SELIMA HIS MISTRESS.

(FROM THE PERSIAN)

WHERE is the Nymph of Sardi's green domain,
The Nymph whom every Bard of Persia sings ?
To find the wanderer out, and sooth my pain,
Sweet Bird of Morn, to Mirza lend thy wings

But wherefore seek the Nymph of Sardi's vale,
Who sullen flies where Horar's waters roll ,
Scorns all my plants, that mourn along the gale,
And scorns the surge of grief, that sinks my soul ?

Ah ! can that cheek where Beauty's summer dwells,
 Retain a smile while Mirza's sorrows flow ?
 Ah ! can that heart, that every softness swells,
 Forbear to heave on Mirza's songs of woe ?

Come, like the Morn, pure Virgin of delight,
 And blushing chase the cloud of Mirza's fears .
 Come, like the Sun upon the dew's of night,
 And with thy radiance smile away my tears.

HAWKING,

A BALLAD, MADE AT FALCONERS' HALL, YORKSHIRE

Come, Sportsmen, away , the morn'ing how fair !
 To the wolds, to the wolds, let us quickly repair .
 Bold Thunder and Lightning* are mad for the game,
 And Death and the Devil† are both in a flame

See, Backeys‡, a Kite, a mere speck in the sky !
 Zounds ! out with the Owl lo, he catches his eye.
 Down he comes with a sweep be unhooded each Hawk,
 Very soon will they both to the gentleman talk.

They're at him , he's off : now they're o'er him again
 Ah ! that was a stroke see ! he drops to the plain.

* Names of two Hawks. † Names of Hawks. ‡ The head Falconer

Now, Doe-like, skipping wild from vale to vale,
Enamour'd of the rills and freshening gale,
From whose mild wing the streams of fragrance flow.

Oh ! 'midst those hills and vales contented stray
Thou wilt be ruin'd if thou com'st away,
Doctors, too much like Man-traps, lie in wait
They'll tell thee, beauteous Nymph, ten thousand lies ;
That they can mend thy bloom, and sparkling eyes
Avoid, avoid, my Dear, the dangerous bait

Like the first Woodcock of the year ;
The instant that he dares appear,
The country's up to kill him, dog and gun .
So when thou showest, Nymph, thy rosy face,
I see at once an Esculapian chase,
And, oh ! if caught, thou wilt not find it fun

Lo, this proclaims he vendeth at his shop
Rich immortality in his dear Drop :
Another dire impostor, bawling louder,
Swears that it lodges only in his Powder.

These ragamuffins have the name of quack,
Prepared to put thy beauties on the rack.—
But then, the regulars ! Ay, ~~what are they ?~~

The regulars, my Love, are gentlemen
Whom very justly, nine in ten,
I with an eye of no small dread survey

The Regulars in physic, I'm afraid,
And all th' irregulars who ply the trade,
Are just like men that form an army
Whichever at you lifts his gun, alas !
Will soon convince you what must come to pass;
The shot will very comfortably warm ye

Indeed the only difference will be this,
(Nor Quack nor Regular the mark will miss,
The art of killing they are all so pat in)
On broken English, fate by that you seek,
By this, upon the wings of mongrel Greek,
And piebald Latin.

Then once more let me bid thee, blooming Lass,
To keep, like Babylon's great King, at grass;
And thou wilt find it not an idle notion :
'Tis fair, that I should try to save thy life.—
And know, that Death is never half so rife
As when the country swarms with pill and potion.

O blooming Wanderer of the breezy hills,
Beware then of those potions and those pills ;

Be Kisses all thy Physic, rose-lipp'd Health
Kisses, my easy nostrum, ne'er are rife,
For ever pregnant, lovely Nymph, with life,
And sweeter when they are enjoyed by stealth

I've built a neat snug cottage on the plain
Prythee drop in some evening on thy Swan

TO CHLOE.

CHLOE, I live, and live for thee alone;
Trust me, there's nought worth living for beside;
Nought for thine absence, Chloe, can atone;
Though Phœbus shines, and Nature pours her pride.

Lo, full of innocence the Lambkins bleat,
The Brooks in sweetest murmurs purl along;
The Lark's, the Linnet's voices too, are sweet —
But what are these to Chloe's tuneful Tongue?

With every balm, the breath of Zephyr blows,
But thine can yield a thousand times more blisses.
I own the fragrance of the blushing Rose,
But, ah! how faint, to balm of Chloe's Kisses!

Ye Gods ! I mark thy frown, and scornful eye ;
And now thy bridling chin of scorn I see .
And now I hear thee, so contemptuous, cry,
“ What are my kisses, saucy Swain, to thee ? ”

True, dearest Chloe ‘ yet each kiss divine
Which dwelleth on thy lips so very teasing,
Would quickly change its nature were it mine,
And rapturous prove, superlatively pleasing.

Love is a generous God , and ’tis his pleasure
To see the gold he gives, in circulation.
Then cease to hoard such quantities of treasure ,
And be afraid to put him in a passion.

Thy beauties should the angry God divide,
And throw among thy sex, ’twould be alarming,
And not a little mortify thy pride,
To meet, dear Chloe, every woman charming.

ODE.

Peter praiseth Constancy

TH' unsteady mind is my abomination ,
 I curse the whiffing and inconstant passion
 From me, dear Constancy, don't, don't depart
 I love the cooing Turtle and her Mate
 The Proteus Mutability I hate,
 A demon when he holds the human heart ,
 A fluttering straw, to wander so inclin'd,
 Keeping the company of every wind.

Old Customs let us not exchange for new ;
 They sit so easy, just like an old Shoe .
 And let us not, as though from Wisdom's schools,
 Fancy our forefathers were arrant fools

Even in religious matters folks love change .
 Scheming new roads to Heaven, they wildly range ,
 Hunting, with noses all so keen, about.
 I like an honest constancy in souls,
 In spite of Interest, that our race controls,
 Turning, like Pudding-bags, Men inside out.—

In Ireland, not long since, th' unlucky Cattle,
 And that sad plague call'd Murrain, had a battle ;
 When Murrain proved a most victorious foe ·
 For Ram and Ewe, Squire Bull and Madame Cow,
 And lusty Mister Boar and Mistress Sow,
 Were by this rogue in multitudes laid low.

Numbers indeed resign'd their breath,
 To fill the gaping tombs of death.

Now in the parish, midst the murrain's rage,
 Which all the farmer's skill could not assuage,
 Lived a good Priest, Father Macshane ,
 Famous afar for wonder-working pray'rs ,
 Minding not Sins one pin, though thick as Hares
 Safe were the souls of the profane

One Sunday, he desired to say his masses
 Amidst the field ; where Beasts of various classes,
 Infected by this Murrain, might appear
 His congregation followed, to be sure :
 Bull, Cow, Pig, Sheep, surrounded him for cure ,
 Yielding his masses an attentive ear

What happen'd ? Disappointed was the Devil ;
 Father Macshane's good prayers destroy'd the evil

Bull, Cow, and Sheep, so hungry, grazed the plains,
 And Pigs, half-famish'd, fell upon the grains.
 In short, their healths and appetites return'd
 Father Macshane,—what?—laugh'd, while Satan mourn'd.

Proud of his deed, the holy Father went
 To a rich Protestant, with good intent,
 To make the murrain from his cattle fly
 “Father Macshane,” the Farmer cried in scorn,
 “My cattle all were church-of-England born,
 And in that holy faith they all shall die.”

A LITTLE SKETCH

OF

A CERTAIN MOST MERCIFUL AND LITTLE JUDGE

—Hunc tu, Romane, caveto

Hic niger est

Lo that be-periwigg'd black Knave in scarlet,
 The robes deep blushing for their Master's soul,
 With what solemnity he sits, the varlet!
 With what sublimity his eye-balls roll!
 With what a grave pomposity he blows,
 What has been often pull'd, his mean pug-nose!—

With what a sanctity pronouncing death !
 How pleased in secret swells the fatal breath !
 Religion-clothed, each sentence moves along ;
 While thirst for murder prompts the villain's tongue

Look at this judge, this fellow, out of court !
 The very first in Roguery's hawk-eyed school ,
 A knave, committing crimes of every sort ,
 To whom Hypocrisy's an arrant fool.

" There's no such man," the World exclaims — That's true ;
 But such a monster every day we view

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS

Is it not astonishing that the Life of so great a man as Sir Joshua Reynolds should not have been written ?
 a Painter who possessed more of the charming Art than almost any single professor that ever existed

But Fame proclaimeth Mister James Boswell to be big with the Biography of this celebrated Artist, and ready to sink into the straw.

See Johnson's angry Ghost, ye Gods, arise !
 He drops his nether lip, and rolls his eyes ;

And roars, " O Bozzy, Bozzy, spare the dead !
Raise not thy biographic guillotine ,
Decapitate no more with that machine,
Nor frighten Horror with a second head —

" From Reynolds' neck the ponderous weapon keep.
Cease, Anthropophagus, to murder sleep "

There is a wonderful energy, as well as sonorous sublimity, in this polysyllabic expression of the Ghost of our immortal Moralist and Lexicographer, not obvious to the minora sidera of Literature. The word anthropophagus is a derivative from the Greek, signifying man-eater, and Mister James Boswell having regaled most plentifully on the Carcase of Doctor Johnson, and meaning to make as hearty a meal on the Body of Sir Joshua Reynolds, furnisheth the perturbed Spectre with an appellative of fortunate propriety.

Johnson and Reynolds, lo, for ever lost !
Of no great man has Bozzy now to boast,
Of no rich table now can Bozzy brag .
Indeed, like faded Beauties, he will say,
" Envy must own I've had my shining day "
What wert thou?—an illuminated rag !

But what's become of boastful Bozzy now?
Deep sunk in mournful solitude art thou
Amidst thy small tin-box, so drear and dark,
No courted Genius casts a lucky spark
Nothing to gild thy solitary tinder,
Save the rude flint and steel of Peter Pindar

AN EPITAPH ON A FRIEND

THOUGH here in death thy relics lie,
Thy worth shall live in Memory's eye,
Who oft at night's pale noon shall stray
To bathe with tears thy lonely clay.

Here Pity too, in weeds forlorn,
Shall, mingling sighs, be heard to mourn,
With Genius drooping o'er thy tomb,
In sorrow for a Brother's doom.

ODE ON THE CHOLERIC CHARACTER

Peter reprehendeth Rational Creatures, for their violent Anger against In-animates

HAPPY the man whose heart of such a sort is,
As holds more Buttermilk than Aqua-fortis

But, Lord ! how passionate are certain folk !
How like the Sea, reflecting every form,
So placid , the next instant in a storm,
Dashing against the inoffensive rock ;

Mounting towards the skies with such a thunder,
As though it wish'd (the leveller !) to bring under
Sun, moon, and stars, and tear them into tatters !—
Such passions verily are serious matters.

Men in morality should ne'er be idle,
But for those passions make a strong curb-bundle

When lofty Man doth quarrel with a Pin,
In man resides the folly or the sin ,

Not in the brass, by which his finger's spitted
For with a small philosophy we find,
That, as a Pin is not endowed with mind, ❧
Of malice call'd preppense Pin stands acquitted

Thus then, his awkwardness must bear the blame ;
And thus, to persecute the Pin's a shame

Many inanimates, as well as Pins,
Suffer for others' fooleries and sins

How oft a drunken blockhead damns a Post,
That overturns him, breaks his shins or head ,
Whose eyes should certainly have viewed the coast,
And have avoided this same Post so dread
Whereas he should have spared his idle cries,
And only damn'd his own two blinking eyes —

A little Welshman, Welshman-like indeed
(Hot as Kian, that is to say),
A bachelor, and therefore every need,
Was, for subsistence, forced to him to pray

This Bachelor, to satisfy withal
His gullet,
Put into a small pot (indeed too small)
A Pullet

The Pullet's legs were not to be confin'd ,
So out they poked themselves, so sleek and white.
The Welshman curs'd her legs, with wicked mind ,
And push'd them in again, with monstrous spite.

The Pullet, liking not the pot's embrace
 So very warm, (indeed a natural case,)
 Poked forth her shrinking legs again, so fair,
 With seeming much uneasiness, in troth,
Objecting to her element of broth,
 And wishing much to take a little air.

The Cambro-Briton waxing red and hot,
 And highly foaming too, just like the Pot,
 Ran to the legs, and shoved them in once more
 But, lo! his oaths and labour all were vain,
 Out poked the Pullet's boiling legs again;
 Which put the Welshman's passions in a roar

What will not mortals, urged by rage and sin, do?
 Mad at defeat, and with a devilish scowl,
 He seizes with ferocity the Fowl,
 And, full of vengeance, whirls her out of window

TO MISS HARRINGTON,

OF BATH

“ ALAS, alas, I’ve lost a day !”
Good Titus once was heard to say ;
And sorely, sorely to repent it
What was it made the Emperor groan ?
I’d give a good round sum, I own,
To be inform’d how ’twas he spent it.

Dear Titus, quickly leave thy tomb ,
Enter of Harrington the room,
Whom Music and each Grace reveres
I’ll answer for’t, thou wilt not say,
“ Alas, alas, I’ve lost a day ,”
But, “ Gods ! I’ve found five hundred years.”

ANACREON TO HIS LYRE

SENT TO A LADY.

“ FAIR would I strike the Harp to Kings,
And give to War the sounding strings ,
But, lo ! the chords rebellious prove,
And tremble with the notes of Love

“ In vain I quarrel with my Lyre ,
 In vain I change the rebel wire
 Boldly I strike to War again,
 But Love prevails through all the strain

“ Oh ! since not master of the Shell,
 Ye Kings, and Sons of War, farewell !
 And since the Loves the song require,
 To Venus I resign the Lyre ”—

’Twas thus, O Nymph, with Attic tongue,
 The gay Anacreon pour’d the song,

A Bard beloved by me
 And who the Poet’s Harp can blame ?
Perhaps old Greece could boast a Dame,
 With every grace like thee

ODE

Peter modestly, delicately, and tenderly, pleadeth against the excessive Damages lately given for certain illegal Liberties in Love-matters

A MAN may, in the cold dim eve of life,
 By way of Sunshine, take a pretty Wife,
 To warm him, as King David did of yore ;

Here is a flagrant error of the Lyric Bard. It was not a wife, but a pair of pretty black-eyed Hebrew lasses, whom the Monarch chose for his loving companions

Kiss her neat little finger, pat her cheek,
 Toy with the snowy beauties of her neck —

No more

Preventing thus each rake of flesh and sin
 From impudently stepping in

Thus toying, mumbling, chuckling, the old fool,
 Who wanteth much the birch of Cupid's school,

Expects his Wife so soft, and so divine,
 To fancy every sublunary bliss
 In every toying monkey-trick and kiss,
 And round his neck her arms with rapture twine .
 Just like the fragrant Pea, with blooms so thick,
 That curls her tendrils round a rotten stick.

For him to raise his hedge, and bar his gate,
 Is natural, sad is trespass on th' estate
 For who, alas ! can sit with silent ease,
 And see a neighbour's pig among his peas ?

But why should Kenyon be afraid of horns,
 Who married a poor squeal starved Cat for money ?
 Heavens ! what should put the Judge's breech on thorns ?
 Where, for the wasps, alas ! is Madam's honey ?

'Tis sweetness tempts the insects from the skies :
Gall needeth not a flapper for the flies.

So furious is this Judge against Crim Con ,
 That poor Adultery is just undone
 Afraid to write, or squeeze, or wink his eye ,
 Nay, waft the soul's soft wishes on a sigh.

Woe to the wicked cornu-factors now !

Ten, twenty, thirty, forty thousand pounds,
 For him to pay who milks his neighbour's cow ,
 Stealing by night so shily to his grounds.

“ Oh, tis so vile, so wicked an affair !

Dreadful, a neighbour's honour to ensnare ;

Take his dear Spouse without his leave, indeed !
 What ! of his bosom steal the tender Wife !
 The Pigeon to his feet, prolonging life ;
 Of sinking age the sweet supporting reed !

“ Oh that the law would make such doings death ! ”—

Thus roars the jealous Judge, with thundering breath

O Kenyon ! I ave not thus, with anger pale,

But let thy favourite Justice hold the scale.

What though we must condemn the smuggled bliss ?

Ten thousand pounds is too much for a kiss.

THE ADDRESS OF THE FAIRIES

TO THE

LADIES OF R—, IN CORNWALL

LEFT ON THE DIAL-PLATE IN THE GARDEN

YE gentle Maids of Camborne's Druid vale,
Admired and loved by all our elfin train,
Your worth with wonder and delight we hail,
And pen unseen for you the tuneful strain

Beneath these oaks our happy court we keep,
When Midnight rules the world with solemn sway.
While you forgetful sink to silent sleep,
We blithesome gambol 'mid the moonlight ray

Sweet is the spot where Innocence is seen,
Dear is the valley where the Virtues dwell
By such allured, we trip this dewy green,
Far from the sound of Riot's savage yell

Health, rose-lipp'd Health, shall crown this crystal rill,
And bid with every balm your zephyrs blow,
Unceasing song shall charm the echoing hill,
And Plenty robe with bloom the vale below

Thus wing'd with joy shall glide your golden hours,
Till for yon Skies ye bid the World adieu ,
And when at last ye leave these blissful bowers,
Your little weeping friends will wander too

OBERON, PUCK, BLOSSOM, MAB, &c

TO CHARLOTTE,

ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

BEHOLD another year succeed !
But, Charlotte, thou hast nought to dread,
Since Time will every beauty spare
Time knows what's perfect , and well knows,
Twould take him ages to compose
Another Damsel half so fair

TO CYNTHIA

CYNTHIA, I own my heart is lost,
And dare confess it with a boast ,
It does a credit to my sighs .
For who like thee displays a face,
Or who like thee abounds with grace,
Or sports like thee a pair of eyes ?

But, ah ! 'tis folly to complain,
 Because I hear no sighs again,
 A soft, a sweet return for mine
 Love is a rogue, who bade me gaze ,
 And, when he saw my bosom blaze,
 Refused to raise a spark in thine

HYMN TO SILENCE

O SILENCE, to our earth by Wisdom given,
 Yet from the fashionable circles driven
 To breathing zephyrs, and the limp id stream,
 Whose murmurs sweetly sooth the shepherd's dream !
 For thee I often sigh, but sigh in vain,
 When Folly stuns me with her noisy train.

Oh ! how I wish thy presence, when the Squire
 Impertinently bursts into my room ;
 Hallooing from the kennel's howl and mire,
 And casting o'er my day a midnight gloom !

Yet if his sister Phyl comes giggling in,
 And talks of fashions, opera, ball, and play ;
 Methinks, my ears can bear the varied din,
 Which forceth thee, mute Maid, to run away

Yet 'tis not long I wish thee thus apart,
 So much thy presence glads, at times, my heart
 For when I clasp the Nymph, so fair and young,
 And steal a sweet acquaintance with her lip,
 I wish thee in the room at once to skip,
 And gently take possession of her tongue

CECILIA.

CECILIA, as 'twas Christmas time,
 Resolving on a flight sublime,
 Prepared to pass her holidays in Heaven
 The Goddess then brush'd up her wings,
 Pick'd up her trinkets, her best things,
 Her harp, and songs, and pen by Phœbus given.—

When in rush'd Music “Madam, no,
 Indeed you must not, shall not go”—
 “Poh! hold thy tongue,” the Goddess cried, “thou Niddy.
 Think'st thou I'll quit dear Bath, my pride,
 And not an equal charm provide?
 Thou stupid creature, to forget Rauzzini!”

SONG.

AH, Delia ! I will not complain,
That another is blest in thy charms ,
Yet allow me to envy the Swain
Whom Delia can take to her arms.

I confess that no merit is mine,
That of Delia I ought to despair ;
Since thy Virtues, dear Maid, are divine,
And thy Form like an Angel's so fair.

On Fate let me fix all the blame,
Who show'd me thy form of desire ;
When I caught from thy beauty a flame
That only with life can expire.

Yet, Delia, before I depart,
Ah ! do not one favour deny
Though Fortune denies me thy heart,
Let thy pity accept of its sigh.

MADRIGAL.

SWEET Girl, the man's a downright fool,
 That asks for constancy in love.
 Variety's a charming school.
 How natural for the heart to rove !

A form like thine can never cloy ,
 And lo, thy graces, what a plenty !
 Then tell me, why should one enjoy
 The beauties that suffice for twenty ?

AN APOLOGY FOR INCONSTANCY.

TO PHYLLIS

“ How 'tis thou governest above,
 I know not verily, O Love ,
 But, to my grief, this truth I know,
 That Folly leads thy dance below ”

'Twas thus I spleenful cried, when first my heart
 From thy ~~black~~ sparklers felt the ~~stinging~~ dart :

In dismal ~~crape~~ I dress'd up many a ballad ;

Mad at sour looks, I look'd for nought but smile,
 Not dreaming once that vinegar and oil
 Produced a fine effect upon a salad

My wary wisdom now is on its guard ;
 And every day I, Peter, am prepar'd
 To catch my little Syren out of humour
 A disappointment at a ball perchance,
 Not standing up the foremost in a dance,
 Which forms a feast for wide-mouth'd Madame Rumour,
 May give thee fidgets, put thee out of sorts.—
 What slighted Lady loveth such reports ?

Grant that thine Eyes, with sullen clouds o'ercast,
 Let fall, alas ! a hearty shower of rain :
 Soon will those Suns (for long it cannot last)
 Peep out with radiance on the World again.
 When, lo ! their beams will seem a great deal brighter,
 My spirits also dancing ten times lighter

Life is too mawkish, if 'tis always sweet
 At times, a disappointment is a treat.—
 Some scout this doctrine Psha ! the vapid asses !
 Loid, drown them in a hogshead of molasses.

When Majesty was in a monstrous passion,
 And grimly Thurlow thunder'd out "Damnation!"
 And Leeds and Hawkesbury join'd their jowls together,
 Brewing, like witches of Macbeth, foul weather :—

I cannot truly say my heart was light ;
 Indeed the Bard found something like a fright ,
 Indeed I trembled at the gathering gloom .
 But when the cloud so harmless pass'd away ,
 My spirits, all so frolicsome and gay,
 To dance their jig had scarcely elbow-room
 I laugh'd at each dark terrifying mien,
 And mock'd the dread that rush'd through every vein

Yet is it possible, ye tuneful Nine,
 (Doubtless, the thought the great Apollo shocks,)
 That Verses vended by a Bard divine,
 Can put his sacred legs into the stacks ?—
 Yes, and his sacred head into the pillory ,
 So say the law archives of Lent and Hilary

Some Moderation kick, like fools, to door,
 And wish their passions always in a roar ,
 Ah ! would those madmen wisely time employ,
 They ought to be economists of joy.

Too frequent and too violent a motion,
Will tear the best machinery to pieces —
This doctrine to young Masters is a potion,
A nauseous potion too to love-sick Misses

Beyond th' extravagance of Rhyme,
Beyond the flight of thought sublime,
I chase not blisses thus beyond all measure.
Rapture's a fiery Hunter to bestride,
Indeed I wish not madman-like to ride,
But calm on that sweet Filly christen'd Pleasure

Phyllis, I will not always have thy smile ;
At times, I'll give thee liberty to pout .
Such is my plan, the minutes to beguile ,
Sometimes in Heaven, my Love, and sometimes out.
Variety affords a zest to life —
But, mum !—we must not say this to a wife.

HYMN TO LIFE

PARENT of pleasure, and of many a groan,
I should be loth to part with thee, I own,

Dear Life !

To tell the truth, I'd rather lose a wife ;
Should Heaven e'er deem me worthy of possessing
That best, that most invaluable blessing

Some people talk of thee with much sang froid,
As one too pitiful to be enjoy'd ;

But thou'rt a most delightful Girl with me
A hundred thousand pretty things are thine ,
Indeed, of golden treasure thou'rt a Mine .

Thy manners greatly with my heart agree.

I love thy sweet acquaintance, from my heart ,
Will make a bargain with thee, not to part

Till Fate shall strike our System off its hinges :
Consenting to a little gout sometimes ;
That spoils my appetite to meat and Rhymes,
Those very sharp memento mori twinges.

I thank thee that thou brought'st me into being .
The things of this our World are well worth seeing,

And, let me add moreover, well worth feeling ,
Then what the devil would people have,
These gloomy hunters of the grave,
For ever sighing, groaning, canting, kneeling ?

I cannot use from thee as from a feast,
As Horace says, utì conviva satur
No such matter —
I'll answer for myself at least

No, when it comes that thou and I must part,
Life, I shall leave thee with a sighing heart ;
Leave the warm precincts of the cheerful day,
With lingering longing looks, says Gray

Some wish they never had been born, how odd !—
To see the handiworks of God,
In sun, and moon, and stairy sky ,
Though last, not least, to see sweet Woman's charms ;
Nay more, to clasp them in our arms,
And pour the soul in love's delicious sigh ,
Is well worth coming for, I'm sure,
Supposing that thou gavest us nothing more

Yet, thus surrounded, Life, dear Life, I'm thine ;
And, could I always call thee mine,

I would not quickly bid this World farewell :
But whether here or long or short my stay,
I'll keep in mind, for every day,
An old French motto, Vive la bagatelle !

Before us Heaven hath placed the Tear and Smile,
Each may be won with very trifling toil .

But if there be in Nature such a mule,
Who, willing with misfortune to be curst,
Should, like an idiot, madly choose the first,
In God's name let him suffer like a Fool

Misfortunes are this lottery-world's sad Blanks ;
Presents, in my opinion, not worth thanks
The Pleasures are the Twenty-thousand Prizes,
Which nothing but a downright ass despises.

ODE TO ADMIRAL HOTHAM.

THRICE-happy man, on whom Dundas and Pitt,
With all the energy of human wit,
And all the powers of sacred truth beside,
Have lavish'd the wild torrent of their praise,
Deck'd thy bald head with Glory's brightest rays !
Haste from thy vessel with unwounded hide ;

Thy Vessel, which, like thee, 'mid war's alarm,
And mighty danger, met no mighty harm

Great Tar, at once thy course for England shape,
England, broad staring, quite upon the gape
To meet the Victor, by whose arm Dundas
Declares what marvellous things have come to pass

Yet, as we bear thee through the streets along,
Amid the stunning shout, and howling song,
 Suppose a Patriot sage should cross thy way,
And, claiming silence, ask in manly tone,
“What for these honours, Hotham, hast thou done?”—
 Hotham, now what the devil wilt thou say?

FROM THE PERSIAN OF EMIR JOHAD

TO THE BUTTERFLY.

SWEET Child of Summer, who from flow'r to flow'r,
 To sip each odour, sport'st on silken wing;
I greet thy presence 'mid the golden hour,
 While with the birds the vales of Serdi ring

I see thee perching on each rose's bloom,
 From fragrance thus to fragrance wont to glide,
 Now from the tender violet waft perfume,
 Now fix'd upon the lily's snowy pride

 Though blest art thou, my bliss is greater still,
 I kiss the bosom of the brightest Fair
 The charms of Adel all my senses fill,
 And, while those charms I press, her love I share

 But thou a mutual passion canst not know;
 No fond endearments can return to thee
 While I, beloved, with constant rapture glow —
 Sweet Child of Summer, come and envy me

ODE TO THE LION SHIP OF WAR,

ON HER RETURN

WITH THE EMBASSY FROM CHINA

DEAR Lion, welcome from thy monkey trip,
 Glad is the Bard to see thee, thou good Ship.
 Thy mournful ensign, half-way down the staff,
 Provokes (I fear me much) a general laugh

 What sad long phizzes thou hast now on board!
 A high and mighty disappointed Lord;

And lo, a disappointed doughty Knight,
Whose buds of hope have felt a horrid blight

Say, wert thou not ashamed to put thy prow
Where Britons, Dog-like, leaint to crawl and bow,
Where eastern Majesty, as History sings,
Looks down with smiles of scorn on western Kings?

Ah me! 'tis universally allow'd
That Eastern monarchs are prodigious proud,
Unlike the humble Monarchs of the west,
Such kind and pliable and gentle creatures '
So placid, of their souls, and sweet, the features,
Where nought but Virtue is a welcome guest '

Your Eastern Despots, in their lofty station,
Expect the censer of rich adulation
To burn for ever underneath their noses
This incense boasts a certain opiate power,
Whose pleasant, stupefying, plenteous shower,
The optics of the understanding closes;—

Producing too a charming gaudy dream,
In which Kings think they hold the World's esteem;
Think too the conscience sound, though full of holes,
And Virtues, thick as Herrings, in their souls.

O Flattery, thou attendant on Inanity,
 Thou meat, drink, clothes, and furniture, of Vanity,
 'Tis cruel to attack a feeble head
 (Yes, cruel, likewise let me add, a shame),
 Who never makest mention of its name,
 Poor, easy, gaping cuckoo, when 'tis dead —

Once more to thee, O Lion, to return,
 A subject form'd to bid all England mourn

Oh think upon thy Britons, how disgraced,
 As to the palace of Jehól they raced,
 So shabbily, so tawdrily array'd*†
 The Natives, with horse-laughs, the tribe remarking†;
 While, grunting, kicking, braying, howling, barking,
 Hogs, dogs, and asses, join'd the Cavalcade‡¹

* Mr Anderson supposes the Clothes for the suite of the Ambassador were second hand things purchased from the Servants of the French Ambassador Luzerne, or from the Play-houses, perhaps from Monmouth street

† "I cannot but add to the obstacles which we received from the curiosity of the Chinese people, some small degree of mortification at the kind of impression our appearance seemed to make on them, for they no sooner obtained a sight of any of us, than they universally burst out into loud shouts of laughter" Vide Anderson's Narrative of the British Embassy to China.

‡ "We found ourselves," says Mr Anderson, "intermingled with a cohort of pigs, asses, and dogs; which broke our ranks, such as they were, and put us into unrecoverable confusion. All formality of procession therefore was at an end, and the Ambassador's palanquin was so far advanced before us, as to make a little smart running necessary to overtake it."

Not Staunton, with his Doctor's gown and cap,
 Could from the Populace obtain one clap;
 Nor poor Macartney, with his star and ribbon —
 Child-like, he might as well have had a bib on

Ah me ! before ye sail'd, a friend,
 I told ye all how things would end *

Tell me, who plann'd this silly expedition ?
 That brain was surely in a mad condition
 Say, was it Avarice, the lean old jade,
 Who, though half Asia's Gems her Corpse illumine
 (Sol's Radiance on a melancholy Tomb),
 Can join with Meanness in her dirtiest trade ?

Who told our King, the Embassy would thrive,
 Must be the most egregious fool alive .

God mend that courtier's head, or rather trash-pot !—
 Perhaps he cried, “ Upon the rich Hindoo
 Your glorious Majesty has cast its shoe ,
 And China next, my Liege, must be your wash-pot ”

* See my Epistle to Lord Macartney, (vol. iii p. 134) in which I prophesied somewhat more than came to pass, as the Embassy was bonâ fide not literally flogged, but says Anderson, “ we entered Pekin like paupers, we remained in it like prisoners, and we quitted it like vagrants ”

ODE TO A BUTTERFLY.

CHILD of the summer's golden hour,
 Who, happy, rovest from flow'r to flow'r,
 Now sportive winnowing 'mid th' expanse of air,
 Oh welcome to my little field !
 Each leaf of fragrance may it yield !
 Yes, dwell with me, and Nature's bounty share

No black Sir Joseph* with his net,
 And Jonas†, whelm'd with dust and sweat,
 Shall rudely chase thee far from my protection,
 Wild-leaping every fence and ditch
 So rank the Virtuoso itch
 For making a rare Butterfly-collection.

Yet round thy paper-gibbet laud would flow,
 Amid the Knight's brave breakfasts in Soho,
 With rapture shown to Toast-and-muffin Sages
 With thee too would the Royal Journals ring;
 And even thy pretty mealy painted wing
 Employ description sweet, for fifty pages

* Banks

† Jonas Dryander, the Knight's sans que non.

Yet what, alas ! is Praise to people dead?

A Panegyric on a lump of Lead

Precisely so

Ye Gods, then, let me all my praises hear ,

For verily 'tis wisdom to prefer

One Grain above ground, to a Pound below

Rare Child of Ether, prythee then agree

To choose the offer'd field, and dwell with me .

Here will I mark thee, 'mid thy meals, how chaste ,

So busy on the flowers of golden hue,

And silver daisies moist with morning dew,

How innocent, how simple thy repast !

Ah ! different far from us, who grossly lave

Our lips in beef and mutton's sanguine wave

While we, a race barbarian, cruel, slay ;

From hog too form the dinners of the day ;

From hog, that lodged of yore the imps of evil *,—

Intrepid he who ventured thus to dine

Methinks the man who dreamt of eating swine,

Must really next have thought of eating devil

* The history of the Herd of Swine is universally known

ODE ON MODERATION

“ SOME folks are mad, and do not know it,”
Says some one, I forget the Poet .

And verily the Bard was in the right
Wild as a Puppy chasing Butterflies,
The World hunts Transport with keen nose and eyes ,
Deceitful Lass, who often proves a bite

The calm, cool, philosophic hour ,
The purling brook, the woodbine bow’r ,
The grove’s, the valley’s sweet and simple song ;
Morn’s virgin blush, and Evening’s setting ray ;
On more than half the world are thrown away,
Whose Joys must like a Whirlwind pour along

Calmly let me begin and end Life’s chapter ,
Ne’er panting for a hurricane of rapture .

Calm let me walk, not riotous and jumping
With due decorum, let my heart
Perform a sober quiet part ,
Not at the ribs be ever bumping, ~~bumping~~ —

Rapture's a Chaijer, often breaks his girt,
Runs off, and flings his Rider in the dirt

Lo, when for Gretna Green the Couple start,
Love plays his gambols through each throbbing heart
Squeezing and hugging, kissing, on they go,
Wild, from the chaise, they poke their heads to John,
" Make haste, dear John, drive on, drive on, drive on Lord ! Lord ! your horses are so very slow."

And while for Gretna Green each turtle sighs,
The Blacksmith* seems an Angel in their eyes.

But when this Blacksmith has perform'd his part,
Possession quells the tumults of the heart ;
The heart with foaming bliss no more boils over
Now leisurely into the chaise they get :
They ask no John to drive, no horse to sweat ;
No eye's keen sparkle shows the burning Lover

No kisses 'midst the jolting road they snap
Celia now takes a comfortable nap.

* Also a divine, who gains a comfortable maintenance by making matrimonial chains as well as horse-shoes

Down on her cheeks her Locks dishevell'd flow ;
Not vastly smooth, but much like Locks of Hay ;
Her Cap, not much resembling Alpine Snow,
Shook from her rolling wearied head away.

The Youth too, with his noddle on his breast ;
His Hair all careless, much in Hay-like trim :
As though sweet wedlock's joys had lost their zest ;
As though a dull indifference damn'd the whim ;
With mouth half-shut, that heavy seems to say,
“ The Devil take the Blacksmith and the day,
That tied me to that trollop, now my Wife,
Just like a Jack-ass to a Post, for life.”

THE PRAISE OF ANECDOTE.

BLESSED be the retailers of Anecdote, who afford so much pleasant and light food to the mind. Blessed more particularly be Master John Nichols, compiler of the Magazine of quantity and eke his wonderful co-adjutor, Doctor (not Mister) Richard Gough; who so often giveth that old devourer Time a vomit, to make him disgorge

A furbelow of good Queen Bess's tail ;
A taylor's thumble, and a rusty nail.

Important is the most trivial Anecdote of an extraordinary person, and, when consecrated by age, it becomes invaluable.

Thus of himself sayeth the celebrated Monsieur Menage, one of my great precursors in Ana, who, if I may be in the fashion of alliteration, could give dignity to a dunghill, grace to a gutter, prettiness to a pig-sty, honour to a horsepond, and majesty to a mouse. "When I boarded at Angers," says this extraordinary man, "the Mistress of the house quarrelled with the Maid for the loss of a pound of butter, which, by some means or other, had sneaked out of the way. The Girl declared that the Cat eat every bit of it. The incredulous Mistress swore it was false, and, to be convinced, she put the Cat into a pair of scales when, lo! the Animal, to the Maid's confusion, weighed only three quarters of a pound!"

"It is a fortunate thing," says Monsieur Menage in another place, "to be acquainted with celebrated people." The smallest Anecdote of a man of consequence, adds a Gem to the Treasures of history. Adopting this idea, I shall from time to time communicate to my Readers, pretty little stories of great people—To begin with his present Grace of Leeds; who is musician, politician, and poet.

'Twas in that season of the year
 When Oratorios sweet appear,
 And human warblers all divinely sing,
Unlike the little Birds, I wot,
 Who close in frost and snow the throat,
 And chant in summer only, and the spring,

that, being in the Green Room of Covent Garden, I stumbled on his Grace of Leeds; who, notwithstanding his having been the burthen of one of my merry Songs, voluntarily and smilingly addressed the Bard, that is to say, me, the Lyric Peter, Ο ΠΟΙΗΤΗΣ. The unexpectedness of the salute, produced a palpitation mixed with a quantity of reverence. “When were you in Cornwall last?” said his Grace, with a simper — “About two years since,” replied I “pray when was your Grace in that province?” — “Last year,” answered the Duke “The Duchess accompanied your Grace, I presume?” quoth I, in a pretty, tender, unassuming, and winning tone “She did,” rejoined his Grace, with the most affable smile and conciliating manner — “Godolphin is wildly situated,” quoth I “if I mistake not, Cornwall was made the scene of the diableries of the old Spanish and Italian writers of romance.” — “Hem, hem,” rejoined the Duke, with a smile, and a nod; which seemed to me, though intended as tones and signals of assent, to imply more ignorance than knowledge, which every great man is too great to confess. His Grace now turned the discourse to Shakspeare, and Dryden, and Pope, and some more modern Authors, with a pretty volubility, and some critical remark, which, though not in the true spirit of Longinus, was really not contemptible: for the Duke is a bit of a Poet, witness an unfortunate Prologue or two, and some fortunate amatory Stanzas that won the heart of the Duchess.—Part of the natural history of a Poet, is a desultory disposition, leaping from earth to heaven in his frenzy Here the converse of the proposition took place, for, after a sublime quotation from Shakspeare, the Duke abruptly descended to the humbler subject of his nose! “How came you, Sir, in your Ode, to attack my nose?” This was a thundering question, for thou knowest, Reader, if thou hast perused all my Lyrical lucubrations, that his Grace’s proboscis has been the subject of a poetical smile* “My Lord Duke,” answered I, “when your Grace, Lord Hawkesbury, Lord Thurlow, Lord Sidney, and others, your Colleagues in administration, took it into your heads to attack me, I thought a poor Poet had a right to the laws of retaliation”—“But why attack my nose, Sir, why attack my nose?” The conversation now took a turn to his Grace’s knowledge of the Poets, from which he made many quotations, and spoke them with propriety. On a sudden he quitted the Classics, and reverted to his favourite and wounded feature: “But why attack my nose? is there any thing uncommon in my nose?” I answered, that, at the time I mentioned it, I was not certain whether he had a nose

* See Vol. iii. p. 87.

or no, as its existence was only fancied from report, but that I knew his Grace had power, and meant to employ it against me with hostility. This answer produced no reply. The Duke stood mute and simpering for a few minutes, and then broke out on a sudden, "I will introduce ye to the Duchess." We immediately quitted the Green Room, arm in arm, and repaired to a stage-box that held her Grace and Sister, Miss Anguish. The introduction was respectful, solemn, and awful; when, behold, the Duke, unable to quit his favourite topic, turned the solemnity of the meeting into farce. "My Love," quoth the Duke to the Duchess, "I have been asking the Doctor what provoked him to attack my nose." Then turning to me, "Pray, Doctor, what provoked you to attack my nose?" Driven to the necessity of a compliment, I replied, that "had I seen his Grace's Nose before I wrote the Odes, I should most certainly have composed a panegyric on it instead of a satire, as the Nose was really a very good Nose indeed." The Ladies smiled, the Duke was pleased, and I leaned over the box, to show the Audience into what good company Fortune had thrown me. The conversation grew more cheerful. several ingenious impromptus were exchanged. At length I took my leave, with a profound bow of thanks for the honours I had received His Grace returned my bow ;

the Ladies also most condescendingly bowed to my bow , and forth I went, with exultation, to communicate this sudden peripetia, or change of fortune, to all my acquaintances.

GENTLE READER,

WOULDST thou not have imagined that the war hatchet
was buried for ever? Such was my too credulous opinion , but fronti nulla fides The very next public dinner his Grace gave, what did he? He exhibited a ludicrous account of our interview , applauded his own amazing magnanimity, wit, and condescension ; and laughed at the Poet. Dashed from the pinnacle of my ambition (for I expected a high place in ad- ministration), and mortified by the disappointment, I sat me down, and, in the true spirit of sorrow, wrote the following pathetic Stanzas.

THE SONG OF DISAPPOINTMENT.

AN ELEGIAC BALLAD.

HOPE whisper'd fine things in my ear ;
I believed her, though trick is her trade :
She told me that Fortune was near,
Who had always behaved like a jade.

Great names, little people astound

How witching the title, "Your Grace!"

"My Lord Duke, Lady Duchess," what sound!

Big with honour, and dinner, and place

In fancy I join'd the Duke's table,

Where his Grace so instructively chats,

Despising my garret, that stable,

My joint-stool, and my penn'orth of sprats.

In fancy I joked with his Grace,

And felt a huge torrent of bliss.

Then I flatter'd the Duchess's face,

And whisper'd love-stories to Miss*.

In fancy his Grace I beheld,

Heard his mouth with sound criticism ope;

That mouth most deliciously swell'd

With quotations from Dryden and Pope.

In fancy I heard him aloud

Read his Prologues so sweet to his guests,

Saw wonderment stare from the crowd,

And rapture burst wild from their breasts.

* Miss Anguish.

Now I heard him delightfully thrum ,
Now in praise of old music a raver ;
Now Handel's huge choruses hum ;
Now a critic on crotchet and quaver.

In fancy, a Bonfire I blazed ,
At my wit heard them call out "encore ;"
While the room with astonishment gazed,
Prepared every moment to roar.

. But the Duke has secreted his face ,
To the Bard what a terrible blow !
And gone are the smiles of her Grace,
And the smiles of each Anguish al-so.

But I'm not deluded alone ;
To another he sadly behaved :
Doctor Jackson, by promises won,
Cut his curls from his pate, and was shaved.

Though the Doctor look'd smart with his locks,
Sublime too, and swarthy, and big ;
He was told, when a Bishop, his flocks
Would expect a full bushel of wig.

A Wig was accordingly bought,
 As a Cauliflower large, and as fair,
 Where the Barber too, blest with good thought,
 Wove religion and pomp in each hair

In short, 'twas so solemn a quiz,
 So form'd for concerns of the soul,
 People scarce could decide on its phiz,
Which look'd wisest, the caxon or jowel

But after this grand operation
 Of clipping and wigging, I trow,
 Sore balk'd was poor *Con's exaltation.—
 But why, none with certainty know.

Some thought Heaven with the wig was displeas'd;
 But people may think as they list:
 Others said (with maliciousness seiz'd),
 Heaven hated the pride of the Priest

So the Doctor no Bishop was made,
 Nor at present a Bishop is he,
 And it also may safely be said,
 That a Bishop he never will be.

* Con, i. e. Consequential Jackson, a constant appellative bestowed on him at the University of Oxford.

But the Duke too is thwarted I ween,
Who looks up like a Hawk to the Crown,
But, alas ! our good King and good Queen
Have never vouchsafed to look down

Now to Duke and to Duchess adieu,
Adieu to my honours like-wise !
The vision departs from my view,
And Hope, the false flatterer, flies

My teeth too are robb'd of sweet picking,
(Ah, teeth to good eating attach'd !)
And thus have I counted my chicken,
Poor blockhead, before they were hatch'd

NIL ADMIRARI;

OR,

A SMILE AT A BISHOP,

OCCASIONED BY

AN HYPERBOLICAL EULOGY ON MISS HANNAH MORE,

BY DR PORTEUS,

IN HIS LATE CHARGE TO THE CLERGY

Est modus in rebus —HORACE.

THERE is reason in roasting eggs

Lo, Novelty shall lead the world astray,
And cast even bishops wide of Wisdom's bias.
A Mouse has proved the Lion of the day,
Witness that miserable imp Mathias

ALSO

EXPOSTULATION;

OR,

AN ADDRESS TO MISS HANNAH MORE

Mrs Hannah has no Eagle wing to flee,
Whom thus thine adulation would befool.
Alas! a poor Ephemeron is she,
A humming native of a Bristol pool

LIKEWISE,

DUPLICITY, OR THE BISHOP,

AND

SIMPLICITY, OR THE CURATE

A PAIR OF TALES.

MOREOVER,

AN ODE TO THE BLUE-STOCKING CLUB.

AND, FINALLY,

AN ODE TO SOME ROBIN RED-BREASTS IN A COUNTRY CATHEDRAL.

TO DR. B. PORTEUS,

LORD BISHOP OF LONDON

MY GOOD LORD,

As your Lordship, in your late Charge to the Clergy, has almost exhausted panegyric to compliment Miss Hannah More on talents that are presumed to have worked wonders in the cause of Religion and high-toned Morality (to use your Lordship's fiddling figure,) I have taken the liberty of addressing a Poem to your Lordship on the subject of your most extraordinary Eulogium Your Lordship's innumerable virtues, producing such an enthusiasm of love and veneration, particularly from the unbeneficed members of the church (the constant objects of your Lordship's condescending and kind attentions), are universally allowed; but in regard to your Lordship's claim to genius, taste, and the chair of Aristarchus, I fear it will be as universally denied But non omnia possumus omnes. A Bishop may be an abstemious, or a devouring Bishop , a generous, or an avaricious Bishop , a decent, or an indecent Bishop , a believing, or an unbelieving Bishop , a sober, or a boozing Bishop , a lazy, or a fox-hunting Bishop , for I have seen all those characters he may, nevertheless, be no better than a poor curate among the muses

I am, my Lord, &c. &c

P. P.

THE
BISHOP OF LONDON'S PANEGYRIC.

“MRS. HANNAH MORE, whose extraordinary and versatile talents can equally accommodate themselves to the Cottage and the Palace, who, while she is diffusing among the lower orders of people an infinity of little Religious Tracts, calculated to reform and comfort in this world, and to save them in the next, is at the same time applying all the powers of a vigorous and highly cultivated mind, to the instruction, improvement, and delight, of the most exalted of her own Sex I allude more particularly to her last Work, on Female Education which presents to the Reader such a fund of good sense, of wholesome counsel, of sagacious observation, of a knowledge of the world and of the female heart, of high-toned morality, and genuine christian piety; and all this enlivened with such brilliancy of wit, such richness of imagery, such variety and felicity of allusion, such neatness and elegance of diction, as are not, I conceive, easily to be found combined and blended together in any other Work in the English language

“ Of her little Tracts, no less than two millions were sold in the first year, and they contributed, I am persuaded, very essentially to counteract the poison of those impious and immoral pamphlets which, as I have already stated, were dispersed over the Kingdom in such numbers by societies of Infidels and Republicans.”

NIL ADMIRARI.

THE ARGUMENT

Peter prettily and poetically proclaimeth the pernicious Effects of Flattery — He solemnly addresseth Doctor Porteus, as of the celebrated School of Warburton, loading the Doctor with appropriate and complimentary Epithets — Though Peter acknowledgeth the Bishop's overmatch for the Devil an I Sin, he denneth his Powers over Taste—shrewdly hinteth that a wise Father may have a foolish Son—proveth the Bishop's want of critical Acumen, by his hyperbolical Praises of Miss Hannah More, a Rhyme and-Prose Gentlewoman born at Bristol—Peter, having narrowly searched Miss Hannah, and tried Miss Hannah by his own Touchstone, discovereth the metallic Nature of Miss Hannah's Genius —Peter solemnly protesteth that he cannot wade twice through Miss Hannah's Works, deeming them, as Dr Johnson would have expressed himself, Pages of puerile Vanity and intellectual Imbecility.

SOFT is the voice of Flattery, sweet her song

Ah, much too sweet for man, vain man, I fear¹

Her Oil of Fool too fluent glides along;

And, winding, drops with death into his ear

O Porteus, of the Warburtonian school,

Meek, modest, generous, diffident, and humble¹

'Tis said that sometimes Sages play the Fool;

But, when they stumble, with a vengeance stumble

Though form'd to brighten all the human race,
Rare Flint and Steel, illumining the dark ,
Though, like an Egg, so full of faith and grace,
Like thy great Prototype of Prior-park * ;—

Though bravely furious for the fight, to tame
Old Nick, and eke his dirty Mother Sin,
With every sort of weapon one can name,
Even from the thundering Cannon to a Pin ,—

Yet, Porteus, though a Giant with thy blows,
That Sin's and Satan's hides with glory baste,
A Dwarf art thou in fields of Verse and Prose ,
A very Pigmy in the realms of Taste

What though thou Rhyme hast made ? It does not follow,

The Critic's laurel must thy temples shade
A man may be descended from Apollo,
And yet a novice in the Critic trade

Nay, man may scarce be equal to a pun ,
Yet sprung from Phœbus, but without his art
Less fit to guide the Chariot of the Sun,
Than that more humble vehicle, a Cart

* The late Bishop Warburton, of lamb-like memory

With sighs I tell thee of Miss Hannah Mole,
A mighty genius in thy Charge display'd
Know, I have search'd the Damsel o'er and o'er,
And only find Miss Hannah a good maid

Offt by my touchstone have I tried the Lass,
And see no shining mark of Gold appear,
No, nor one beam of silver —some small brass,
And lead and glittering mundic, in thine ear

A sorry Critic thou in Prose and Metre,
Or thou hadst judged her power a scanty Rill,
Which, if thou wilt believe the word of Peter,
Crawls at the bottom of th' Aonian hill

Twice can't I read her labours, for my blood,
So simply mawkish, so sublimely sad
I own Miss Hannah's Life is very good,
But then, her Verse and Prose are very bad.

No Muse e'er touch'd Miss Hannah's lips with fire,
No fountain hers of bright imagination.
So little doth a genuine Muse inspire,
That Genius will not own her a relation

Miss Hannah's graces dazzle not the view,
No Bonfire she, no Sun's meridian blaze —
A Rushlight 'midst th' illuminating few,
A Farthing Rushlight, with its winking rays.

Miss Hannah has no Eagle-wing to flee,
Whom thus thine adulation can befool
Alas ! a poor Ephemeron is she,
A humming native of a Bristol pool

ARGUMENT.

Peter solely complameth of Miss Hannah's cracked Instrument—announceth Women superior to Miss Hannah—Miss Hannah laugheth in her Sleeve at the Bishop's Praise—Peter thinketh that Mount Parnassus would have shed no Tears, had Miss Hapnah never written.—He blameth the Bishop for making a Show of Miss Hannah—Peter exhibiteth his Candour, in condemning rather the Flattery of the Bishop, than Miss Hannah's literary Imbecility—Peter rippeth up the Blue stocking Club, for their foolish Exhibition of Miss Hannah—He acknowledgeth the Power of Novelty, particularly with respect to a Pamphlet of one of the smaller Rats of the Queen's Closet, called Mathias—He giveth the little Animal a good Drubbing—Peter hunteth at some of Miss Hannah's clerical Friends in the Reviews—sensibly animadverteth on the marsh-eating Power of Father Time

INDEED Miss Hannah hath a so-so Lyre,
 So out of tune, it murders all the Nine
 She really playeth not with taste or fire
 No, Doctor Porteus, no, thou great divine

Know, Porteus, we have women of renown,
 Miss Hannah's equals, or my judgments fail:
 Nay, numbers, I aver it, of whose gown
 Miss Hannah is not fit to hold the tail.

With smiles her Eulogy Miss Hannah hears ,
Laughs in her sleeve at all thy pompous praise
In silence wrapp'd, perceives the Ass's ears,
And sits complacent while her Stentor brays.

Had Wisdom crush'd Miss Hannah's forward quill,
Had Silence put a gag on Hannah's tongue,
No crape had mourn'd upon the Muses' hill,
Nor Phœbus blubber'd for the loss of Song.

Hadst thou not fondly dragg'd Miss Hannah forth,
Placed her on high, and cried, " Behold a wonder !"
No soul had scrutinized the Woman's worth ,
Safe from the World her weakness and thy blunder

Thy praise of Hannah is a Pillar fair,
A lofty Pillar, but supporting what ?
Why, on its head, supporting high in air
A mole, a grasshopper, a mouse, a rat

Calm, but for thee, had Hannah pass'd along,
Oblivion ready, with her shroud and spade,
To sink her, with a prose-and-rhyming throng,
In sacred silence, and eternal shade

Yet Novelty shall lead the World astray,
 And turn even bishops off from Wisdom's bias
 A Mouse shall start the Lion of the day,
 Witness that miserable imp Mathias*

Behold ! this human Snake, or human Toad,
 Sly 'mid the windings of his murky hole,
 Pour'd on the shrinking World his poisonous load,
 And on the sighs of Merit fed his soul

But lo ! of short duration was his date,
 Soon stopp'd the torrent of his wounding-lust
 Justice stepp'd forth to give the fiend his fate,
 And crush'd him 'midst the reptiles of the dust.—

Though Hannah's Prose present us nothing new,
 Though Hannah's Verse be lame insipid stuff,
 Some sable Critic, in some kind Review,
 Shall give the little paper-kite a puff

* This poor little wretch (whose pamphlet was misnomered Pursuits of Literature, but whose true appellation should have been Pursuits of Rancour) dared not acknowledge his own work The enormity of its falsehood and impudence was quite a novelty, and, in spite of its contemptible imbecility, gained the attention of the Public This, Mathias mistook for fame still he denied any connexion with the pamphlet, every paltry subterfuge was made use of, to escape detection At length a few literary Hounds seriously pursued him, hunted him fairly to his hole, and put the Vermin to death

At length comes Time, with Truth's pervading ray,
To separate the living from the dead ,
Clears the dark clouds of Prejudice away ,
And roasts the varnish off, by Flattery spread.

And lo, this varnish, with thy daubing brush
Smear'd o'er Miss Hannah, must by Time be roasted
The Nymph in all her nakedness will blush ;
And courtly Porteus, for a flatterer posted

ARGUMENT

Peter fancieth that he hath put the Bishop in a Passion — He giveth his Opinion of a Book called Strictures upon Female Education, with Miss Hannah's name annexed — He subtracteth greatly from the Merit of Miss Hannah in those Volumes — Peter describeth Miss Hannah's Mode of manœuvring, by two apt and beautiful Comparisons, Hemp and Leather — He likeneth Miss Hannah unto a Hen, who hatcheth the Eggs of another Bird — He confesseth her exemplary Piety, and Snow like Appearance, but severely reprimandeth her Uncharitableness towards the frail ones of her own Sex — Peter praiseth his own celestial Disposition in favour of fallen Beauty — He addresseth the barbarous Part of the Female Creation, asserting that Love and an old Lady are not incompatible — He giveth the Judges a Stroke for their amorous Faces on Trials of Rape and Crim Con — Peter windeth up sublimely and charitably

Now, Porteus, I behold thee in a passion,
 And thus exclaiming “What! Miss Hannah More
 No genius! what is then her ‘Education,’
 So praised and echoed o’er and o’er and o’er?”

I’ll tell thee, Porteus, what Miss Hannah’s Strictures
 Are decent things, perhaps Miss Hannah’s Plan
 But, trust me, they are all some parson’s pictures.
 These, Hannah never drew, nor colour’d, man.

At times she finds of hemp a little wad,
Begs some young Levite spin it —“ nothing loth,”
He adds large quantities of flax, kind lad,
And with the mixture fabricates a cloth *

Again Miss Hannah finds a scrap of leather,
Horse-skin; and shily to some Crispin goes
Crispin adds calf-skin, puts them both together,
And makes a tolerable pair of shoes

Miss Hannah may be aptly term'd a hen,
Who sits on pheasants' eggs, to kindness prone
Hatches the birds, a pretty brood, but then,
Weak vanity! she calls the chicks her own

Miss Hannah's piety we all admire,
Her Life a field of Alpine Snow so white,
And, what our good opinion must inspire,
With bishops she could talk from morn to night

Oh, had good Hannah been not so severe
On each young Victim of her tempting bloom!
Instead of sarcasm, dropp'd a pitying tear;
And with a beam of comfort cheer'd her gloom!

I cannot drag the Nymph to grinning day ,

I cannot curse the Nymph of yielding charms

Instead of casting the poor Girl away,

Lord ! I would rather clasp her in my arms ,

Hang on her lip , bestow the generous kiss ,

Catch the pure drop that leaves her liquid eye ,

And, gently chiding the unlicens'd bliss,

Reclaim the beauteous Mourner with a sigh.

Oh think of Love, ye Ladies of hard hearts !

Lo, Nature weaves it close in every cranny !

Even from old women rarely it departs,

The subject sweet of many a shaking Granny

Even Judges, for their gravity revered,

I've seen upon Crim Con. with passion gape ,

With wanton questions wag the watering beard,

Point the hot eye, and chuckle at a Rape

Prudery I hate, the Hag whose breath would blight

The opening buds of gentle May and June .

Blest to spread darkness , like the Cloud of night,

That hangs a dirty malkin on the Moon

Oh, be the wounded Prude who dares reprove,
And furious charge the feeble Maid or Dame,
A Nymph who, cautious of the Torch of Love,
Has never singed her honour at its flame !

ARGUMENT

Peter declareth that he liketh literary Emulation among the Sex, but contendeth for fau Play, that is to say, People should publish their own Works — Peter knoweth Miss Hannah's havage, knoweth all her Points, and pronounceth her unqualified for a first rate Racer, whatever her Powers among the Pomes — Peter elucidateth the Frauds in Literature by a Smock Race — Peter turneth to the Bishop, and asketh a shrewd Question — He solemnly calleth on the Bishop's Attention, and sayeth oraculus Things — Peter supplicateth the Bishop to think charitably of his rhyming Intentions — He dreadeth the fatal Effects of his Flattery of Miss Hannah, making her hold up her Nose in Contempt of the under World, knowing none but Quality — Peter asserteth such Flattery to be a Sin as it stirreth up Pride, which, every body knows, ruined the Devil — Peter citeth a Proverb taken from Hell — He again beggeth the Bishop to think well of his Intentions — proclaimeth his Love for Bishops, perhaps equal to that of the unbeneficed Clergy — Peter draweth a Parallel between Bishops of old, and Bishops of the present Day — A terrible Portrait of the old School — a most engaging one of the new — Peter piously concludeth with a Prayer for Bishops

I LIKE a rivalship in Art, I own,

Yes, let there be a spur to emulation

But let fair Justice sit upon her Throne,

And keep a little decent regulation

Lo, for the laurel prize Miss Hannah starts !

But Nature, to Miss Hannah's heels unkind,

The hopes of honour and of glory thwarts,

Left is Miss Hannah far, yes, far behind

Miss Hannah's heels are greasy, let me say ;
 Miss Hannah's joints are very stiff indeed
 Her form is rather fitted for the dray,
 Than on Newmarket turf to show a speed

Some years ago, I saw a female race ,
 The prize, a shift—a Holland shift, I ween
 Ten Damsels, nearly all in naked grace,
 Rush'd for the precious Prize along the Green

Sylvia, a charming Lass (who, if an our
 And face had been permitted to contend,
 Had carried all before her), luckless Fair !
 Was to her Sister Racers forced to bend —

When Orson, mounted on a goodly Mule,
 (Whose love for Sylvia to her cause inclin'd him,)
 In spite, ye Gods, of every racing-rule,
 Whipp'd up the Damsel on the beast behind him,—

Then off he gallop'd , pass'd each panting Maid,
 Who mark'd the cheat with disappointed eyes ;
 Soon brought her in, unblushing at his aid,
 And for his Favourite boldly claim'd the prize.—

Oh say, has nought been very like it, here ?

Did no kind Swain his hand to Hannah yield ?

No bishop's hand to help a heavy rear,

And bear the Nymph triumphant o'er the field ?

List to the Oracles I now advance —

A man stark blind should never races run ,

A Cripple never should pretend to dance ,

A head of wax should never court the sun

Then bid Miss Hannah More her pen confine ·

Repress the vainly rhyming, piosing rage,

That makes us sinful damn the nerveless line ,

Un-Job-like, curse the penury of the page

Good Porteus, think not Envy prompts my strain ,

'Tis Pity, Pity bids me Verse compose ·

Thy flattery's fumes must turn the Virgin's brain,

So fierce its incense burns beneath her nose.

Oh, hadst thou crawl'd a curate, let me say,

Harmless thy flattery then had spent its breath :

Just whisper'd to the World, and died away ,

Like thy own sermons, and dead lines on Death.

Miss Hannah's head is now among the clouds,
 Borne by thy necromantic art of praise
 The Nymph from vulgar eyes her glory shrouds,
 To mix with " high toned" Quality her rays.

To them Miss Hannah strutting forth so fine,
 In all thy gaudy flowers superbly drest,
 Must raise a smile on graver mouths than mine ,
 Such seeming mockery, such a solemn jest !

An Oracle behold Miss Hannah grown !
 Each Child of Title lisps Miss Hannah's name ,
 A bishop's plaudit sanctifies a Joan —
 What better passport to the house of Fame?

Thus then, O Man of God, thy flattery sins
 For thou hast conjured up the Woman's vanity ,
 Bestowed false consequence on Heads of Pins,
 And given (oh blush !) a substance to inanity

Thus then thy praises of Miss Hannah's head
 To Pride, that Pitfall of old Satan, win her.—
 Porteus, there is a Proverb thou shouldst read :
 " When flatterers meet, the Devil goes to dinner "

Deem not, good Porteus, that in this my Song

I mean to harrow up thy humble mind ,

And stay that Voice, in London known so long,

For balm and softness an Etesian Wind

My love for bishops is proverbial grown ,

Sweet is the race, and so Miss Hannah says

Where'er I wander, lo ! I make it known

How different from the tribes of distant days!

Long were a Bishop's tusks in times of yore,

His gaping Gullet flamed the Track of Hell .

Loud as the Libyan Lion's was his roar ,

His Frowns like Lightning, blasting where they fell

Then Persecution raised her iron crow,

And saw, with doating eye, her power displayed ,

Enjoyed the flying brains at every blow,

And blest'd, the knives and hooks with which she flayed.—

Grill'd, roasted, carbonaded, fricaseed,

Men, women, children, for the slightest things ;

Burnt, strangled, glorying in the horrid deed ,

Nay, starved and flogg'd God's great Vicegerents,

Kings !

But things are changed, assume a different tone

The teeth of Bishops are a gentle set ,
Content, if nought is near, to pick a bone ,
So little pamper'd with delicious meat

How sweet the smile, when Bishop Bishop greets !

How flow the honeyed streams of salutation,
Even in the middle of our London streets ,
Rich lessons of good-will, to all the Nation !

No scorn now frowneth from a Bishop's eye,

No sounds of anger from his lips escape ,
Save on a curate's importuning sigh,
Save on the penury of ragged crape

Now God preserve the Bishops, every skin,

To blaze like Beacons to the darken'd nations ;
To roast old Satan, knock down Gammer Sin,
And for a pack of Rascals hang the Passions !—

Thus ends my Song, perhaps a child of Fame

And now, for Justice' sake, let me petition .
Should Fortune chance to give thy Charge a name,
Omit Miss Hannah's in the next edition,

ADVERTISEMENT

MISS HANNAH MORE having, with unmerited severity, nay, illiberality, attacked the poor Poets en masse, alias in a lump, in the following terms, viz “ The Poets again, who, to do them justice, are always ready to lend a helping hand when any mischief is to be done,” I have, unlike Miss Hannah, preserved a christian spirit on the occasion, a spirit which she every where so fervently recommends, and meekly made my complaint in poetical Expostulation, hoping that she will, with the usual assistance of her good friends the Clergy, vouchsafe me an answer, in some measure to justify the slander, or expunge it, in the next edition of what are called her Strictures on Female Education*.

P. P.

* Vide Strictures on Female Education, vol 2 p 128

EXPOSTULATION.

THE ARGUMENT

The Poet begs to be informed of the Cause of Miss Hannah's Wrath—He praiseth the Mildness of the Poets—He putteth sly and shrewd Questions to Miss Hannah—Peter complaineth of Miss Hannah's general Sarcasm on himself and Brother Bards—Peter puffeth himself—boasteth of the Royal Attention to his Works—also of one of the Princesses, all the Favourites of Peter, whom Peter admireth and laudeth—also of Miss Tryon, late Maid of Honour, and the present Mads of Honour—likewise of the immortal Kosciusko—Peter, with his accustomed Liberalty, exhibiteth the Reverse of the Medal, describing the unfavourable Opinion entertained of him by the Blue Stocking Club—He giveth the Anathema of a little Old Man in Petticoats, called Urganda, an important Membress of the Society, and much attended to in the Debates—Dame Urganda calleth upon Miss Hannah to be the Little David of the Club, and slay Goliath Peter—Peter cannot account for Miss Hannah's Attack on the Poets—He maketh Miss Hannah a grand Offer of composing a glorious Panegyric on her splendid Genius, the very Instant Miss Hannah informs him where it is to be found

TO MISS HANNAH MORE.

SAY, angry Hannah, on a gentle throng

Why boils thus o'er the caldron of thine ire?

A Dove-like offspring are the Sons of Song;

A Cherub race, the Children of the Lyre

Poets were ever deem'd a sacred band,
Abounding with much virtue, meekness, grace ;
Indeed a peaceful treasure to the land,
The Robin Redbreasts of the human race.

Oh ! has no Bard to Hannah pour'd an air ;
With Hannah's beauty bid no stanza glow ,
Her cheek's warm roses, and her flaxen hair,
The lip of purple, and the neck of snow ?

Oh ! hast thou pass'd through life without a Rhyme ?
No sweet acrostic on thy liquid name ?
No rebus, no conundrum's happy chime,
Proclaiming graces, and a hopeless flame ?

Tell me, did no fond Lover ever write
A decent distich on his favourite Maid ?
Not to his dear Lucretia once endite ?
For sonneteering is the Lover's trade

Somewhat has wounded thee, 'tis very plain :
Revenge, I fear, lies rankling in thy heart.
Then say thy cause of anger and disdain ,
Why on poor Poets hast thou been so tart ?

Much for the Poet's character I feel ,
And me a Poet, Majesty will own .
Nay, nay, my glory why should I conceal ?
My Works, morocco-gilt, are near the throne

The charming Princesses who court the Nine,
Whom Taste delighted proudly leads along ,
These, with a smile, have read my early Line,
And with their names shall grace my latest Song

Miss Tryon, Maid of Honour to the Queen,
In rich Morocco bid my Works be bound .
Beneath the pillows of the rest, I ween,
The Works of Peter Pindar may be found

Me Kosciusko deems a Bard divine ,
My Works illumed his dungeon of affright* .
'Twas there the Hero read my Lyric Line ,
Yea, read my Lucubrations with delight.

To me the Hero rich Falernian sent,
To sooth the horrors of our gloomy weather
To him in Leicester-fields with joy I went ,
For Bards and Heroes pair like Doves together

* When a prisoner in Russia.

Yet let me say, be done fair Justice too —

Some damn in toto my poor thoughts and style,
The toothless gums of half the grave Bas-bleu
Watering, and wondering how the World can smile

Urganda, with more beard than female grace
(If old Urganda has not learnt to shave),
Makes, at my name, most horrible grimace ;
Screaming, “ I’d buy a rope to hang the knave

“ My dearest, sweetest, panegyrist, More,
Pray, pray oblige me with your flippant pen
Lord ! you have so much wit, yes, such a store !
Pray, Hannah, cut us up this worst of men

“ Oh, cut the fellow into mince-meat, pray !
Whene’er I hear his name, I’m in a stew
He’s worse than Johnson, ten times, let me say,
Who gave himself such airs on the Bas-bleu.

“ O Lord ! O Lord ! what is Parnassus now ?
A dismal, barren, melancholy waste :
Brambles and weeds, and briars, on the brow ,
No fruit, no fruit, to gratify the taste.

“ In short, this once great celebrated Hill
Exhibits only Children at the Nipple ;
A Hospital indeed that Idiots fill,
And every sort of lame and hopping Cripple

“ On you, our Little David, mind, we call,
To knock this vile Goliath on the head
Down with him ! like a Bullock let him fall ,
Down with him !—Lord ! I long to see him dead.

“ Then, then, the horrid monster grins no more ,
Then at our Club the Owl no longer hoots
Thus shall our Club the glorious deed adore ”—
Thus spoke the little proud old Puss in Boots.

But now to thee, fair Hannah, to return,
For much I long thy fury's cause to know :—
Nought have I done to bid thine anger burn ;
My ink can never blot the vest of snow

Lo ! to do justice, with a liberal spirit
I'm now on tip-toe, to begin my Lays .
Hut to the Poet but thy various merit,
I'll make Parnassus thunder with thy praise.

How unlike the Bishops of old, are our modern Men of Lawn! Formerly they were all pride, hypocrisy, insolence, and rapacity but behold! the present race are mild, affable, charitable, and generous, and, though so eminently exalted above their half-starved Curates, appear to have been bled (gentle Doves!) in the bosom of humility

DUPLICITY,

OR,

THE BISHOP OF OLD

A BISHOP (not a British Bishop, no
Ours are a sweeter set of saints, I trow)

Was by his Sovereign sent to rule abroad
Immediately upon the news
Of his arrival, came some Jews
To compliment the mitred Man of God

“Jews!” bawl’d the Bishop, in the direst passion
“D’ye think I’ll see that vile apostate nation?
Run, Pierrot, drive them off, run faster, faster
Tell them, they crucified my Heavenly Master”—

“ But Sir, but Sir,” quoth Pierrot, stepping back,
Devoutly whispering in the Bishop’s ear
 “ These Jews bring presents :— Lord ! at least a sack. ”—
 “ Ah, ah ! ” replied the Bishop, less austere,
 “ These people could know nothing of the sin .
 Poor creatures ! well, well, Pierrot, let ’em in ”

SIMPLICITY,

OR,

THE CURATE

How difficult, alas, to please mankind !
 One or the other every moment mutters
 This wants an eastern, that a western wind ,
 A third, petition for a southern utters

 Some pray for rain, and some for frost and snow.
 How can Heaven suit all palates ?—I don’t know

 Good Lamb the Curate, much approved,
 Indeed by all his flock beloved,
 Was one dry summer begg’d to pray for rain
 The Parson most devoutly pray’d
 The powers of prayer were soon display’d ;
 Immediately a torrent drench’d the plain

It chanced that the Churchwarden, Robin Jay,
Had of his meadow not yet saved the hay

Thus was his hay to health quite past restoring
It happen'd too that Robin was from home ,
But when he heard the story, in a foam
He sought the Parson, like a Lion roaring

“ Zounds, Parson Lamb ! why, what have you been doing ?

A pretty storm, indeed, ye have been brewing !

What ! pray for rain before I saved my hay ?
Oh ! you're a cruel and ungrateful man
I, that for ever help you all I can ,

Ask you to dine with me and Mistress Jay,
Whenever we have something on the spit,
Or in the pot a nice and dainty bit ,—

“ Send you a goose, a pair of chicken,
Whose bones you are so fond of picking ;
And often too a cag of brandy !
You, that were welcome to a treat,
To smoke and chat, and drink and eat ,
Making my house so very handy !

“ You, Parson, servèd one such a scurvy trick !
Zounds ! you must have the bowels of Old Nick.

“What! bring the Flood of Noah ~~from~~ the skies,
 With my fine field of hay before your eyes!
 A numscull, that I wer’n’t of this aware!
 Curse me but I had stopp’d your pretty prayer!”—

“Dear Mister Jay,” quoth Lamb, “alas, alas!
 I never thought upon your field of grass.”—

“Lord, Parson! you’re a fool, one might suppose
 Was not the field just underneath your nose?
 This is a very pretty losing job!”—

“Sir,” quoth the Curate, “know that Harry Cobb,
 Your Brother-warden, join’d to have the pray’r.”—
 “Cobb! Cobb! why this for Cobb was only sport;
 What doth Cobb own that any rain can hurt?”
 Roar’d furious Jay, as broad as he could stare.

“The fellow owns, as far as I can larn,
 A few old houses only, and a barn,
 As that’s the case, zounds, what are showers to him?
 Not Noah’s Flood could make his trumpery swim.

“Besides, why could you not for drizzle pray?
 Why force it down in buckets on the hay?
 Would I have play’d with your hay such a freak?
 No I’d have stopp’d the weather for a week!”—

“ Dear Mister Jay, I do protest,
 I acted solely for the best ,
 I do affirm it, Mister Jay, indeed
 Your anger for this once restrain,
 I’ll never bring a drop again
 Till you and all the Parish are agreed ”

O D E

TO

THE BLUE-STOCKING CLUB

ARGUMENT

Peter addresseth the old literary Ladies with much poetical Solemnity—beggeth their Pardon for taking Liberties with Miss Hannah More, one of the Columns of the Blue-Stocking Club—He hinteth to them that Miss Hannah’s last Book is not Miss Hannah’s—Peter illustrateth Miss Hannah’s Manceuvres by a sublime Comparison of an old Mouser and her Daughter—Peter indulgeth himself in another apt Comparison, of a Fish-theft, thinking Miss Hannah may, in a sly Way, have borrowed her last publication and adviseth the Restoration to the Proprietor

OLD Critics, Gammer Wisdoms, sapient Dames,
 Who, fond of being deem’d illustrious names,
 Proudly o’er Mount Parnassus cast your shoes ,
 In grave Divan who most sublimely sit,
 Pronouncing judgment upon Works of Wit,
 Indeed on all the labours of the Muse ;

Accept a little Ode from Peter,
Who charms you seldom with his Metre.

Wise Dames, I know your motley Club
Has met with many a wanton drub
From that sly Proteus cleped Ridicule ;
Whose talent is to sneer and laugh,
To call important matters raff,
And lower Wisdom sometimes to a fool

Now, Ladies, don't be in a passion,
Because I've treated in such fashion
Miss Hannah, whom you idolize and foster
I do assure you, solemn Dames,
Miss Hannah with no merit flames ;
No, she's a little bit of an impostor

I know you call the Nymph, the Sun so bright .—
Now she's Miss Moon, and borroweth all her light.

Who has not seen a kind old Mother Cat
Deliver a dead bird, or mouse, or rat,
To her young Kitten, Miss Grimalkin ?
Miss catches it with raptured claws, '
Locks it at once within her jaws,
Round with cock'd tail, and round, triumphant walking ;

So carefully her treasure holding, watching,
And proudly purring, "This is all my catching"

Has not Miss Hannah been the kitten here?
Too strongly she resembles it, I fear.

Believe me, your Miss Hannah More,
As I have somewhere said before,

Starts like the Country Lass for the shift;
And, just like Sylvia, left behind
By rivals, much against her mind,

Who stole before them by a lucky lift,—

Miss Hannah too a lucky lift has had
On some kind priest's (perchance a bishop's) pad.

Miss Hannah's Work, so much bepraised,
By Flattery's puff so highly raised,

Miss Hannah's pretty Education-book,
Of fishing-parties starts a Story,
Where one shall steal another's trout or dory,
And slyly pull it in on his own hook.

Now, Ladies, as your honours are at stake,
I beg you, for your reputation's sake,
To sift this petty larceny of the pen,
And, as ye probably may find it out,
Confront Miss Hannah, kick up some small rout,
And make her give the man his fish again.

O D E

T O

SOME ROBIN-REDBREASTS IN A COUNTRY
CATHEDRAL

SWEET Minstrels of the sounding choir,
 Your ditties sooth, delight, inspire,
 That wake the Echoes from their deep repose
 Soft Echoes dying through the Dome
 (As though from spirits of the tomb),
 Soon as your voices sink in plaintive close

Again, oh ! lull me with your Lay,
 And let it never die away

How welcome rise your hymns to Heaven,
 In gratitude so simply given !
 Celestials smile upon your songs of praise
 For, to the chaste angelic ear,
 The grateful voice is ever dear,

But loath'd the sounds that Affectation brays
 And yet how many a voice, and pipe, and chord,
 Bray " to the praise and glory" of the Lord !

Hark, hark, what rude discordant sounds !
A jail broke loose ! a pack of hounds !—

No, 'tis a bishop, dean, and baroling boys
What uproar wild ! The Wolves of Thrace
Howl'd to the Moon with sweeter grace,
Even Libya's Lions make not half the noise.

What human brain the thunder bears ?
A kingdom for a pair of patent ears !

Yet, while they deal these direful sounds,
Din that disturbs, affrights, astounds ;
How merciful is Heaven, to bear the bother,
And not knock one thick scull against the other !

Yet “ to the praise and glory” of the Lord,
As oft they ope the volume of their throat,
Their gullets gape not of their own accord·

'Tis money, money only, prompts the note
Heaven's Cherubs blush, and burning Seraphs stare,
To think that bribes must purchase praise and pray'r.—

Sweet race, to you I turn again ;
Now all the ear-distracting train

Has left the dome, the Cherub Peace restor'd —
How different your delighting throats !
How different all your liquid notes !
How different too your merits with the Lord !

For how can Heaven with venal sounds be taken,
Tainted with ale and gin, and eggs and bacon?

Yes, all is hush'd, the vault along.

Resume, resume the choral song,

And make atonement for the horrid cry.

Lo! in her shroud, near yonder tomb,

A gentle Spectre breaks the gloom:

She listens, lo! she listens with a sigh

Ah! bid your airs divinely flow,

And soothing steal a tear from woe

The deepening shades of Night prevail;

They wrap the hollow-sounding aisle,

And steal each column from the eye:

What solemn solitude around!

Here Nature's true sublime is found:

Hence Thought should travel to the sky

Mild Tenants of the fane, farewell!

At early dawn I quit my cell,

And haste a pilgrim to these shrines again

Simplicity will join my way,

And listen to your mingled lay,

And listening learn a lesson from your strain.

POSTSCRIPT

As I am destitute of friends among the periodical Reviewers of Literature, I confess my fears of foul treatment, and tremble for this my youngest Offspring, which, in a moment of spleen or ignorance, may be put to death by the tomahawk of Criticism. Now, as "charity begins at home," and as every man is entitled to as much justice from himself as from his neighbour, I have, sans cérémonie, given a free and impartial account of my own Pamphlet thus anticipating the Reviewers, and at the same time hanging out a sort of beacon to guide them, when it shall become the subject of their sage animadversion. In my discussion I have adopted the Aristarchal style of the day, and personated a Reviewer totally unconnected with the Author, by which means I have avoided an egotism so apt to gall the writers, or (to use a more fashionable phrase) to wound the amour propre, of every Candidate for a niche in the Temple of Fame.

"Nil Admirari, &c"

"WORKS of real genius are such rare aves, such literary phenomena, that it is with the utmost pleasure we embrace every opportunity of relaxing from the severity of criticism, to offer the meed of honest praise.

“The present subject of our critical animadversion is founded on that part of the Bishop of London’s Charge to the Clergy, which celebrates Miss Hannah More in the highest strain of panegyric for her literary achievements. The Bishop’s encomium created a risible effect on his audience. The Poet, among the rest, surveying it in a ridiculous point of view, thought it a fair object of attack, in consequence, he has produced a smile at the expence of the Bishop and his fair protégée. It is with the most sincere satisfaction that we can pronounce, that Peter’s Pegasus has rather improved than lost its speed, nothing yet appearing of the peccet ad extremum ridendus. Peter is still himself. The same fire, the same originality, the same poignant irony, the same vivida vis animi, the same luxuriance of imagination, the same powers of pathos and sublimity, which so eminently distinguish him from contemporary authors, characterize the present performance. Such a combination of various and opposite talents we never witnessed in the same writer to use an elegant and nervous expression of his own, “he can be one minute an Eagle sublimely sweeping the heavens with his pinions, and the next a little elegant Wren twittering on the humble myrtles.” Indeed we may say of his works what the brave Marshal Saxe asserted of the behaviour of the British troops at Fontenoy ‘It is an action we all must admire, but dare not imitate’

“The number of literary abuses that are continually taking place, most certainly demands a reform. To beg a friend to correct the errors of inadvertence, or even now and then suggest an idea, is certainly not blaudable, but for an author to send his banthing to people, to add and alter in such a manner that scarcely a single lineament of the original features shall appear, certainly requires all the severity of reprehension Peter seems more than to suspect that Miss More has been too much obliged to somebody, and really there is such a wonderful difference between this last performance and several other pieces of this Lady's pen, that we must confess our astonishment at seeing her name prefixed to a work seemingly so much beyond her powers of accomplishment, though not entitled to that torrent of applause poured on it by the Bishop of London in his Charge to the Clergy Indeed his Lordship's praise is of the most fulsome nature, and did we not know his Lordship's most ingenuous and disinterested disposition, we should have been tempted to suspect an interested alliance between Bishop and Bookseller

“ The Expostulation is a fair piece of satire, and executed in the Poet's happiest manner, pleine de bonnes plaisanteries, de tours heureux, d'esprit, de bon goût, enfin de toutes les graces de la poésie, as a French critic would have expressed himself on the occasion

“ The tales of the Bishop and the Curate are told with neatness, precision, and humour The author seems to have combined the closeness of Esop with the elegance of Phedrus and naveté of Fontaine

“ The Ode to the Blue-Stocking Club is rather severe in some parts, but tempered with a pleasantry that tickles even while it seems to wound

“ The Ode to some Robin Redbreasts in a Country Cathedral possesses an uncommon portion of poetical merit, displaying,

at the same time, such a benevolence and sweetness of disposition (truly characteristic of the author), as must make ample atonement for all the sins of his satires

“ It is with reluctance that we are obliged to censure our brother-labourers in the field of criticism, for endeavouring, by the most illiberal methods, to obscure this poetical star of the first magnitude. Think, indignant readers, of their either loading him with rancorous abuse, or hiding his classic name among bug-doctors, quacks, and rat-catchers bringing at the same time forwards, mounted on the highest pedestal of their Reviews, miserable abortions, clothed in all the gold-laced frippery of adulation, from which the public must turn with contempt, disgust, and disappointment. Instead of coming forwards as the fair and candid interpreters of the Muses, they are too many of them the partial trumpeters of their own pigmy pretensions or despicable pimps, hired to debauch the public taste, and mislead the judgment, to displace the statues of Genius, to make room for those of Arrogance and Folly ”

LORD AUCKLAND'S TRIUMPH;

OR,

THE DEATH OF CRIM CON.

A PAIR OF PROPHEMIC ODFS

I HEARD a voice, "Crim Con, Crim Con,
Thou and thine empire are undone
Woe to the men of lawless lives,
Who wink on other people's Wives!"

TO WHICH ARE ADDED,

AN ADDRESS TO HYMEN

AN ODE ON THE PASSIONS

ADVICE TO YOUNG WOMEN, OR, THE ROSL

AND STRAWBERRY, A FABLE

WITH A MOST INTERESTING POSTSCRIPT

TO LORD AUCKLAND.

MY GOOD LORD,

THE increasing depravity of the Fair Sex cries aloud for correction, Adultery is deemed a Peccadillo, and Fornication a mere Flea-bite gigantic are the strides that Lewdness has taken to subdue the moral world; her steps are like those of Neptune, from promontory to promontory The recent alterations in the Sex are alarming: every Woman is elegant; every Woman is accomplished, every Woman is handsome; every Woman is a witch. In short, Beauty is so common, that I should not wonder (such is the caprice of mankind) at seeing a public advertisement for ugliness At every turn, we pop upon a Cleopatra, and, what must murder the blushing sensibilities of Modesty, more than half of those Cleopatras are to be purchased for half-a-crown. What dangerous Traps of Seduction! what Lures of Loveliness! Even I (like your Lordship, rather the worse for wear) meet the smile, the wink, the stare, of those Circes, on whose lips is written in capitals (says a great Lyric Poet*),

“ Kisses, O gentle Shepherd, for a Crown ”

The modest, the ingenious, the pious Bishop of Durham, has laudably exercised the pruning-knife of reform among the Opera-dancers he has lengthened their petticoats, circumscribed their skips, and shaded their nudities This reverend Bishop and his reverend Lady saw so much at the Opera as astomshed, confounded, and petrified They saw on a Saturday, with their own eyes, the wanton Ballet break in on the holy Sabbath They turned pale at the contamination . they remonstrated, and threatened, and preached, but they could not convince Taylor, the Manager, smiled at the Bishop's and his Lady's reforming zeal, the Performers lifted up their eyes and noses in contempt, while the displeased Audience exclaimed in a burst of thunder, “ Out, out, out ' out with the Pair of old Hypocrites !” My Lord, we may truly say with the nervous and moral Juvenal,

“ Credo Pudicitiam Saturno rege moratam
In terris ”

• Myself

Which may be thus elegantly rendered:

True, Modesty in Saturn's days was seen
The devil a bit, indeed, in George's reign.

But now, my Lord, for that species of vice, Adultery, against whose brazen walls your Lordship means to make a push with your battering-ram. That your bold attack may succeed, for the honour of morality, and the honourable heads of great Families, is my most devout desire, and to encourage your Lordship in the day of battle, I dedicate to your Lordship these my Prophetic Odes

I am, my Lord, &c. &c.

P. P.

LORD AUCKLAND'S TRIUMPH;

OR,

THE DEATH OF CRIM CON.

ODE I

ARGUMENT

The Bard, in the true Spirit of prophetic Poetry, commenceth his Ode with a Compliment to Wedlock — Peter treateth the Hot-bed of Adultery with much poetical Contempt — He prophesieth the Fall of Crim Con, her Acquaintance with the Rakes — In a sublime Strain of Insult, Peter questioneth Crim Con., and proclaimeth a total Annihilation of her Rams' Horns Peter singeth of the Wonders done by Rams' Horns at Jericho He giveth some History of Lord Auckland's Family, and biddeth them beware of Defilement — The Poet candidly accuseth himself of having been a Votary to Pleasure, and prettily and poetically depicteth the Manner of his Courtship, illustrating with a most apt and original Comparison — The Poet abruptly bounceth off to attack the Princes of these Realms, for not joining the pious Efforts of Lord Auckland to destroy Crim Con — Peter complimenteth the Bench of Bishops for their furious Abhorrence of Crim Con, for their intimate Knowledge of Heaven, and for their great Humility, but not for their great Poverty, in which Article these holy Men have always varied from their simple Predecessors, the Apostles — Peter attacketh the Ladies' Petticoats, or rather no Petticoats — The Bard, with a mighty Lyric Jump, leapeth on the Shoulders of King David of Israel, and giveth him a stunning Blow, and, suddenly turning about, knocketh down King Harry of England, concluding with a Squint at some modern Princes — Peter praiseth the unparalleled, though ungallant.

Behaviour of a King Lewis, of France, of whom he relateth an entertaining and delicate Story, ending with somewhat more than a Suspicion that certain young Gentlemen would not have shown the same Fortitude under the same Circumstances *

SWEET is the song of Wedded Love,
 The echo of the Turtle Dove ;
 Then who would turn that Song to sounds of Woe ?
 Bright are the Skies, and calm the scene
 Where Hymen holds his halcyon reign ,
 Then who would bid the howling Tempests blow ?
 What but a ruffian would the spot invade,
 To dash the beam of bliss with hellish shade ?
 Doubtless, Adultery's a fat Hot-bed ,
 But what's the produce ?—Heavens ! a wanton weed.
 No buds of promise ope their bloom,
 And load the zephyr with perfume

O Syren of the Cyprian Isle,
 Crim Con., who by a touch and smile
 Darest lure a Lady from a Spouse's arms ,
 Make her desert her babes, her kin,
 To listen to the voice of Sin,
 That praiseth of Variety the charms^h
 Thy lawless reign at length is o'er,
 And ram's-horns frighten man no more.

Yes there's an end of all thy wooing,
 Thy dove-like billing, fluttering, cooing ;
 At thee, thy vile companions, every Rake
 Shall start with horror, curse thy name,
 Fly from thy Song of Death with shame ;
 Avoid thee like the fascinating Snake
 That wily won the World's first Madam,
 And put that fatal trick on Adam.

Tell me, where are thy rams' horns now.
 To clap upon a Husband's brow ?
 Auckland has broken them to pieces
 And thou shalt soon be put to death,
Unputied yield thy forfeit breath ,
 Except by wicked, wanton Misses,
 And wanton Youths of our wild nation,
 Of prudence less possess'd than passion.

By rams' horns Jericho fell down,
 A very notable old town ,
 Yes, rams' horns laid the lovely city low
 Thus rams' horns also to the earth
 Bring down the men of lofty birth,
 And force them with humility to bow.
 Look at Lord Grosvenor, whom high birth adorns :
 How pitiful he squints amidst his horns !

Auckland, whose Wife is charming and well bled,
Auckland, ah ! rather in the vale of years,
Thinks gentlemen should have the proper fears,
And try to waid the antlers from the head

Rare caution ! how unlike some folk,
Of present and past times the joke ,
Who, till the steed was stolen, forbore
(What fools !) to shut the stable-door !

Yes, Auckland has his Wife and Daughters too ;
And, as our sex will never cease to woo,
Their charms may fire some tinder-hearted man

A sigh, a tear, a gentle squeeze,
A bed, a grot, a clump of trees,
Have favour'd many a Lover's artful plan
What though Lucretias ? In a fatal hour,
The famed Lucretia fell by Tarquim's pow'r

Auckland will give a deathful blow
To some sad purlieus of Soho .
No longer there shall lofty beds of down
Expect the muffled married Dame,
And blushless Youth of lawless flame,
Secure from Husbands and the prying Town
There are, for wedded prey, who prowl,
And joy to hear the tempest howl,

O'er Matrimony's smile to cast a cloud,
And put the modest lady in her shroud
Such shall the Muse to infamy consign,
And crush with all the Thunders of her Line

Blushing I own, I've been in love with Pleasure,
Look'd on the Nymph's acquaintance as a treasure,
Never pursued her once with scoff and hisses
But caught the little Hussey in my arms,
Ran o'er the pretty Garden of her Charms,
And pluck'd the Cherries of her lips, call'd Kisses

I never cast off Pleasure from me, no,
But hugg'd her when I met with her, and so
For lo! a piece of Velvet was my Soul
Black velvet, mind. which, when the God of Day
Doth visit with his all-enlivening ray,
Enjoys the radiance, and devours the whole

Velvet unlike the marble Rock indeed,
Devoid of gratitude and grace,
Who, when the Sun would warm and gild his head,
Flings back the blessing in his face.

Yes, I was once a sinner, I confess;
But now my morals wear a sober dress.

Sorry am I for our good Princes
 (Indeed my tender conscience winces),
 To think they try to save Crim Con the jade:
 The Bishops, in a goodly row,
 All wish to give a fatal blow,
 Such good examples somewhat might have sway'd —

Rare Oracles, so just, so sweet, so wise,
So deep in all the secrets of the skies;
So prone to teach, assist, inspire, and bless one,
 From which Humility might take a lesson —

Sons of those holy men of yore,
 As pious, but not quite so poor,
 Since Fortune, to the World's surprise,
 On Merit learns to ope her eyes.
Now when a Bishop for a favour sues,
 Not, not in vain the plaintive Turtle coos*

* The present Bishop of London (Dr Porteus), I must indeed adduce as an exception. Wishing to turn his back on his Royal Patroness, on a vacancy in the see of Durham, he ~~strained every nerve to obtain~~ the precious prize, worth nearly twenty thousand pounds a year, the ~~Bishopric~~ of London, worth only poor four thousand per annum, scarcely sufficing to supply the extensive circle of his charities. Good man! he was disappointed not only disappointed too, his prayer was considered as a piece of meaness and ingratitude. If this be not a fact, I beg his Lordship's pardon

Ye Gods, how wicked are the times !
 Even I cry " Shame, ' the Man of Rhymes ,
 And Poets are not overstock'd with blushes —
 See ! lovely Modesty is gone
 From Britain, where she fix'd her throne,
 And Impudence to fill her station rushes

How loose our Ladies in attire,
 To set our peeping Youth on fire !
 A hundred instances I soon could pick ye
 Without a cap we view the Fair,
 The bosom heaving, heaving bare.
 The hips ashamed, forsooth, to wear a dicky* .—

Quite antique Statues, such the dress,
 It nothing leaves for Fancy's guess

Look at our Grannums, good old souls,
 With caps and pinners, well-mobb'd polls,
 With warming dickies, high stiff stays,
 To guard the neck from grasp and gaze.
 How different from our modern Fair,
 Whose every beauty takes the air !

Alas ! they heed no frost or snow ;
 Nor winds around that chilling blow,

* A term used in the polite circles for a flannel petticoat.

And swing their muslin gossamer about
Showing what Modesty should veil,
Things very proper to conceal,
For legs and knees, and so, should ne'er peep out.

King David set a very bad example,
King Hairy too, a very shocking sample
Of wedlock's constant, chaste, and lovely state
And many other Kings besides, indeed,
Too prone on wild variety to feed,
Have broken Matrimony's tender pate

Nay, many Princes every day
Do something in this wicked way.
But not so did a King of France,
Whose Story seemeth quite Romance.—

A KING OF FRANCE

AND

THE FAIR LADY

AT BATTLEDORE AND SHUTTLECOCK

A TRUE STORY

A KING of France, upon a day,
With a fair Lady of his Court,
Was pleased at battledore to play,
A very fashionable sport

Into the Bosom of this fair Court Dame,
Whose whiteness did the Snow's pure whiteness shame,
King Lewis, by an odd mischance, did knock
The shuttlecock,
Thrice-happy rogue, upon the down of doves,
To nestle with the pretty little Loves !

" Now, Sire, pray take it out," quoth she,
With an arch smile — But what did he ?
What ? what to charming Modesty belongs.
Obedient to her soft command,
He raised it ; but not with his hand :
No, marvelling Reader ; but the chimney tongs,

What a chaste thought in this good King!

How clever!—

When shall we hear again of such a thing?

Lord! never

Now were our Princes to be play'd

To such an act by some fair Maid,

I'll bet my life, not one would mind it,

But handy, without more ado,

The Youths would search the Bosom through.

Although it took a day to find it.

ODE II

ARGUMENT

An apologetic Song for Inconstancy, by a Son of the Devil — This Son of a Devil pronounceth Love and a Butterfly to be similar Beings, and encourageth the Idea — This Demon wisheth to take the licentious French Nation, for a Model, who wish to change a Wife as often as a Shirt — ~~This~~ Imp continueth to fascinate the Mind by beautiful Poetry in favour of the unlicensed Passion Love — Peter reprobate such Notions, and prettily telleth in Verse, a Story well known in Prose, of a King of France, who had experienced a Satety on the Beauties of his Queen — Peter triumpheth in the future Happiness of the British Empire on the Death of Crim Con — Peter exhibiteth a natural Picture of Age, exulting, amidst his Imbecilities, in the Idea of possessing blooming Virgins, smiling at the same Time at the Horrors of Horns — Peter again, with his wonted Candour, reverseth the Medal, and suggesteth an Inconvenience that may arise from the Fate of Crim Con, in the Character of a rotten Rake — Peter here is truly moral, as well as poetical — Another Rake is brought on the Stage, who glorieth in the Advantages to be obtained over a Wife by this Attack of Lord Auckland — Peter, replete with historical Knowledge, relateth a Story of the great Cato, and also of the wise Men, not of Gotham, but of Greece — The Bard again singeth the Song of Triumph — He prophesieth — He giveth a Picture of the fashionable Wives of the present Day, who visit Tom's and John's, in Soho Square, with as much Ease as Mrs Soup the Milliner. — Peter prophesieth Peace in the House of Wedlock, and Security to that blushful Damsel, Chastity — The impudent and threatening Speech of Miss Fornication on the intended Destruction of her Sister Crim Con

I hate dull constancy, 'tis such a bore,
It ruins Love, 'tis such a piece of lumber
Kind Venus, let it not my back encumber
Come, Chloe, come, thy beauties I adore

" Come to the fields, thy Husband's gone to town ;
Oh, come, and let me give thee a green gown

" Love is a Butterfly that skims about,
From hill to vale, and stops at every flow'r ;
Sucks all the honey with its little snout,
So pleased the rich ambrosia to devour
Then, on wild wing, away it flies again,
The Sultan of the variegated plain.

" Chloe, we'll imitate the ways of France -
For constancy's a very dull romance,
Fit only for a poor old grunting Dame ;
And blind old Darby, full of ail and groan,
Forced to be led about by limping Joan,
Of girls the titter, and of boys the game.

" But Love, my Dear, is neither lame nor blind,
All energy, his life, eternal spring :
Roams the wide world as wanton as the Wind,
And scorns the fetters that would bind his wing

Then, Chloe, learn to prize the varied kiss,
And prove of sweet inconstancy the bliss.”—

Such was the song of thousands such the song
Of one King Lewis, of his Lady tired,
Who dragg’d with pain the marriage clog along,
And lo, a Lady of his Court desired.

Yes, yes, his Majesty, much, much to blame,
Had a colt's tooth, and loved another Dame

His Minister (a Bishop, I presume)

Inform’d him of the danger of his soul,
And pointed strongly to the Day of Doom,
And heaven-ward his two eyes began to roll
Much as to say, “O King, if this way given,
Your Majesty will never get to Heaven”

“Stick to your virtuous Queen,” the Bishop sigh’d—
“Go to the Devil,” the King in secret cried

The King, not relishing the Priest’s instructions,
His heaps of quoted Scripture, sage deductions,
Order’d him partridge constantly for dinner
No dish beside, ’twas partridge every day;
From this at length the Bishop turn’d away,
Grew sick, and groan’d like a repentant Sinner.

Many wry mouths he made "Toujours perdrax !"

Partridge and Priest, in short, could not agree

He now felt constancy a mawkish thing

A Proselyte, with long long face he came,

Desired to know the pretty Lady's name,

Turn'd pimp himself, and brought her to the King !

DIE but Crim Con , the region smiles,

And glory crowns the Queen of Isles

Old Age shall soon be hobbling seen

With blooming virgins of eighteen,

Panting, and coughing up an amorous sigh.

Yes, wheezing wrinkled Age shall woo,

And paw and drivel, kiss and coo,

And shake his crutches, and in triumph cry

"Horns, I defy you ; horns no more I dread

Fearless I wake, and fearless go to bed.

"In wedlock's cage my Nightingale shall sing,

And lull my senses with a charming note :

I dare that damned Rakehell a Red Coat

To pull a single feather from its wing."—

But then the batter'd Rake will boast

“ Though past my prime, my vigour lost,
 And full of holes my aching bones ,
 Though gone my teeth, my cheeks all pale,
 And foul my breath that taints the gale,
 And Night a witness of my groans,—

“ A Virgin of a thousand charms
 Shall bring her beauty to my arms ,
 While happy (from dishonour safe),
 My head at rams and bulls shall laugh ’

What modesty the man inspires '
 How sweet the scheme the knave proposes '
 What justice too in his desires '
 A Carrion on a bed of Roses

“ I will ascend,” exclaims another Rake
 “ Yes, I will mount the highest places
 The beds of virgin innocence shall shake ;
 I'll kiss the Daughters of the Graces

“ Thus will I spread (a King of Blisses)
 My empire o'er the world of kisses

“ Wild as the Roe my Feet shall bound,
 I'll graze in every neighbour's ground.

In vain my injured Spouse shall wake and weep
Well hamper'd by Lord Auckland's chain,
She dares not of her wrongs complain ;
Her sighs must whisper, and her angel sleep"—

How manners change ! The times of old,
When Wives were lent, and bought and sold,
Must make a modern Husband smile
Cato was often known to send
To this, and that, and t'other friend,
To lend his wife a little while.
If gone from Rome for air or water,
What then ? Why lend a pretty daughter

What happen'd ?—One of them was sent to Cato,
With as much cordiality and ease
As though the Sage had begg'd for a Potatoe,
A Pot of Mustard, or a Slice of Cheese.

The Grecian Sages also (monstrous strange !),
All Gentlemen of moral lives,
Met just like Horse-dealers, or Jews on Change,
To buy, and swop, and borrow, Wives —

Now from digression to return .

Crim Con must die, and thousands moun.

No more shall wanton Princes now
Attempt to milk a Subject's cow .

No more John Townshends shall attack a Duchess* ;
Who, chaste as Dian, scream'd for help ,
And, struggling with the wicked whelp,
Escaped all spotless from his savage clutches.

No charming Mistress Hodges shall appear ,
Nor Mister Hodges and his tender Dear,

To plant the horn upon his willing scull :
Lady Cadogans, with inviting charms,
Lure no more pamper'd Parsons to their arms,
Help'd by that pretty pump, Miss Farley Bull.

Lady Westmeaths no more shall rise,
Victims of fascinating eyes,
To fill the trump of scandal, and inspire
Old prudish Maids with jealous fits,
Drive virtuous Wives out of their wits,
And set our envying Youth on fire.

No Betty Leekes, to talk of a loose dress
When Bradshaw came to woo the noble Dame ;
No powder'd towzled couch their hours to bless ;
No Coachman to proclaim their acts of shame :

* The Author is mistaken here. Her Grace was, at the time of his Lordship's amorous attack, in her weeds.—The Editor.

And, last of all, no catering Mister Hogg*,
To suit salacious tastes with prurient prog
No more shall Hawkers gallop on,
Roaring away, "Crim. Con ' Crim. Con '"
While Abigail's from houses, with a caper,
Rush giggling forth to buy the paper :
To show their Ladies, happy, none will doubt it ;
To wink and sneer, and prattle all about it.

No more a Counsel's blush shall spring ;
Nor loftier Buller, with sweet grace,
Hide in his handkerchief his face,
When evidence has been too near the thing.

Counsel will not be forced to say,
" When did they kiss ?—in garish day,
Or by the candle's conscious trembling light ?
Were they in bed beneath the sheet,
Snug in embrace, both tête-à-tête ?

And what were things that might appear in sight ?"—
Such shall no more be heard in Court,
Making for idle ears a sport

Too often Wives who lose at play,
With honour debts of honour pay

And shily to some Cyprian fane repair ;
 Invoke of Love the saucy Pow'r,
 To Cupid sacrifice an hour,
 And lo! return with so much ease and air
 As though it were a millinery trip :—
 “ So out of breath in quest of Mistress Snp !”

All in the house of Wedlock shall be quiet;
 No sighs to soften, and no pulse to riot :
 And Chastity, in danger now no more,
 Shall sleep without a lock upon her door
 “ ’Tis a bad wind that blows no good,”
 A proverb older than the Flood.—

Cries pert Miss Fornication, with a wink,
 “ Aye, kill my Sister, do , and soon
 I’ll play young Ladies such a tune ;
 Aye, spinster-reputation soon shall sink .—

“ I’ll deal in billets-dour and sighs,
 I’ll open necks, and sharpen eyes ;
 I’ll make their gowns and petticoats of gauze ,
 I’ll do the business of the Maids ,
 I’ll make more routes and masquerades ;
 “ I’ll sharpen Mister Satan’s claws.

“ I’ll order it with Nymph and Swain,
 That cheeks shall never blush again.

" I'll build to Methodism more chapels,
 Where Lad with Lass so sweetly grapples
 Soon as the tell-tale candles are put out
 Yes, yes, the love-feasts shall increase,
 And Modesty, that mincing piece,
 Shall say 'Good bye t'ye' to the groaning rout

" I'll aid Hypocrisy's dark cause,
 And for a parson choose a Haweis*
 I'll ope new turnpikes to salvation,
 Or I'm not christen'd Fornication."—

Thus wildly she exclaims; and, by the Lord,
 I think the Hussey means to keep her word

Thus have I pour'd a Pan of Odes,
 Which some may deem the Songs of Gods
 But hark! a second solemn voice I hear;
 A second awful voice that cries,
 " Bard, Bard, thine oracles are lies ,
 Cùm. Con has nought from Auckland's rage to fear
 That Lord from morn to night, and night to morn,
 Shall trembling view the visionary horn."

* While Alnwick exists, the conscientious act of this Huntingdonian Apostle will be remembered.

ADVICE TO YOUNG WOMEN,

OR,

THE ROSE AND THE STRAWBERRY

A FABLE.

YOUNG Women, don't be fond of killing
 Too well I know your hearts unwilling
 To hide beneath the veil a charm ;
Too pleased a sparkling eye to roll,
 And with a neck to thrill the soul
 Of every Swain with Love's alarm.

Yet, yet, if Prudence be not near,
 Its snow may melt into a tear.

The dimpled smile, and pouting lip,
 Where little Cupids nectar sip,
 Are very pretty lures, I own ;
 But, ah ! if Prudence be not nigh,
 Those lips, where all the Cupids lie,
 May give a passage to a groan.—

A Rose in all the pride of bloom,
 Flinging around her rich perfume,

Her form to public notice pushing,
 Amidst the summer's golden glow,
 Peep'd on a Strawberry below,
 Beneath a leaf, in secret blushing

"Miss Strawberry," exclaim'd the Rose,
 "What's beauty that no mortal knows?
 What is a charm, if never seen?
 You really are a pretty creature,
 Then wherefore hide each blooming feature?—
 Come up, and show your modest mien."—

"Miss Rose," the Strawberry replied,
 "I never did possess a pride
 That wish'd to dash the public eye.
 Indeed I own that I'm afraid,
 I think there's safety in the shade.
 Ambition causes many a sigh"—

"Go, simple child," the Rose rejoim'd,
 "See how I wanton in the wind.
I feel no danger's dread alarms
 And then observe the God of Day,
 How amorous with his golden ray,
 To pay his visits to my charms."

No sooner said, but with a scream
 She started from her favourite theme :
 A Clown had on her fix'd his patte
 In vain she screech'd . Hob did but smile ,
 Rubb'd with her leaves his nose awhile,
 Then bluntly stuck her in his hat

ODE TO HYMEN.

Oh tell me, Hymen, how it comes to pass.
 That folks live not in unson, alas !
 That all thy Votaries are not always blest
 Thy pretty fane is enter'd all so billing,
 So amorous, so obliging, smiling, willing ;
 When lo, Love's passion sinks at once to rest !

An ignorant poor Bachelor am I,
 And stupid, knowing not the reason why.

Love seems at first within the torrid zone ;
 Now to the temperate, lo, his course he bends ;
 Now to the frigid limpeth with a groan,
 And now the sweetest of all passions ends !

Look to the simple state, the state of clowns,
 Born in a hut, and seldom from their downs !

Thus Lubin, in a Gloucester hamlet bred,
 Soon as the honey-moon began to shine,
 "Now, Deary," (I suppose the pair in bed,)
 "Now put thy pretty little totes * to mine."
 But when, ah me! the honey-moon was over,
 Adieu the lover!
 And, what the soul of delicacy shocks,
 Instead of "Put thy pretty totes to mine,"
 He turn'd his back, and grunted like a Swine,
 "Why dost not heave away thy damn'd great hocks?"

ODE ON THE PASSIONS.

THE Passions are all prone to sad disorders,
 Whose objects never should approach their borders.
 "Oh lead us not into temptation,"
 Is a choice prayer, and which I much admire.
 So many things are dangerous to desire,
 So ripe for soul-assassination!
 Young Women, par exemple, oh how sweet,
 How fascinating each wild sense they greet!
 How much we long to smell to the fan Flow'r!

* An abbreviation, I presume, of pettitoes, frequently used in Gloucestershire

How long the blushing Peach to pluck it,

And suck it,

To use an epicurish phrase, devour !

Now such desires are very dangerous things ,

It does not signify to talk about it .

Yet seemed Solomon, first of wise Kings,

• And eke his father David, much to doubt it ;

For, wheresoe'er they met a pretty Lass,

Snap was the word , they could not let her pass.

How many a time I thought it not a sin

To press the Virgin's cheek and dimpled chin,

And press her pouting Lip, that dew-clad Cherry ,

And peep upon her Neck of Alpine Snow ,

And pressing, panting, to her bosom grow !

Rich banquet, very, I repeat it, very

But lo ! I stand reform'd, thank Heaven,

So much of grace to me is given

O Youths ! whene'er the wishes warm of Nature

Tumultuous rise, destroy their dangerous dance ;

The curb of reason to your aid advance ,

And souse them with her buckets of cold water.

No harm is in the Passions, to be sure ;

But then, they must not gallop wild to door .

Close keep them, just like Hounds that long for hare .

Or muzzle them indeed, like Ferrets ;

And thus suppress their wanton Spiuits,
That lawless wish to be as free as Air

Well I remember (but the times are past ;

Thank Heaven, this wickedness can't always last)

When, if a petticoat but caught my eye,
A petticoat, surrounding some fair Maid,
Lord bless us ! how my heart's brisk fountain play'd !

Grace was abjured, and Prudence forced to fly
The Passions sudden waked to watch her ,
And, Hound-like, scampei'd in full cry to catch her.

The Passions, as I've said, are far from evil ;

But, if not well confined, they play the devil.

Learn from that Candle . mark its govern'd flame ;

How in its lustre gentle, steady, tame,

So mild, such trembling modesty, so quiet !—
But let him touch your curtains, or your bed,
Who on such stuff delighteth to be fed,

Lo, in a brace of minutes, what a riot !
He pulls (for nought th' unbridled rogue reverts)
Like Samson, an old house about his ears

POSTSCRIPT

TO THE READER.

IN my last Publication, called “ Nil Admari, or a Smile at a Bishop,” I most ingenuously, and with a pretty portion of the ars critica, appreciated the merits of my own Work, with a view of assisting some monthly Aristarchuses in their literary discussions, and of fixing the muzzle of restraint upon the mouth of Calumny But quod petimus est nusquam. I had reckoned without my host. Indeed I was deceived the poet was damned, and the man overwhelmed with slander Little Mister Mathias (the son of a Cobler, says Fame; nevertheless a Rhymemonger and Critic) united in hostility against me, with little squinting Master Esop Gifford (also a Rhymemonger and Critic, although some years ago actually a cobler in the little town of Ashburton in the county of Devon) —In interrupting my narrative for a minute or two, let me observe, that this Master Esop Gifford has performed in several characters since his elevation from his stall at Ashbuiton, having been created a Petronius, the arbiter elegantiarum to the honourable House of Grosvenor; in which laudable situation he acquitted himself with so much dexterity, and satisfaction to his most noble and constant and brisk Employer, as well as great reputation to himself, that he was appointed Bear-leader to his Lordship's hopeful Son, to conduct him through the refined dominions of Italy, and to point out to him the beauties of painting and sculpture; the knowledge of which, little Esop had acquired partly by inspiration; and partly from the most excellent engravings in wood at the heads of ballads, which surrounded and adorned the inside of his humble mansion, that is to say, his stall, especially a portrait of Saint Crispin at Work, forming a beautiful frontispiece to a Ballad, whose well-known exordium floweth poetically thus.

"A Cobler there was, and he lived in a stall,
Which served him for parlour, and kitchen, and all," &c

And which portraiture of Saint Crispin, being represented with a crook back and squinting eyes, was often supposed by the apprentice-guls and stable-boys of the town (who were accustomed to lean on his bulk to hear his poetry and jokes), I say this homely Portraiture of the tutelar Saint of Coblers was supposed, by those his companions, to be a likeness of himself, which idea he cunningly encouraged, having not only an itch between his fingers, but a brother-itch in his mind to cut a figure in print.

To proceed the aforesaid gentlemen, fearful of their own abilities (for Modesty is of a timid disposition), united themselves with a young gentleman cleped Master Canning, who, being a forward lad at school, a præcor ingenuum, composing in the shortest time the most copious parcels of Latin nonsense, hexameters and pentameters, (a common exercise for the advancement of sense,) was noticed and elected by Administration to high posts, from an idea that a forward school-boy would make a profound politician. Still to strengthen the phalanx, the aforesaid three young gentlemen made a further union with a young gentleman who received the best part of his education at that long-established seminary celebrated for turning out as well as turning off genius of every description, called Newgate. Further still to augment their force, the aforesaid four young gentlemen united with a fifth, the élève of little Esop; viz. Lord Poluflosboio, whose broadside of Greek once thundered with such a happy effect on the great Assembly of the Nation.

This formidable association, with the motto of Vis unita fortior on their banners, having completed a battery called the Antijacobin Magazine and Review, for the purpose of confounding the enemies of their Country, supporting the cause of Literature, and getting into lucrative employments, opened their fire on my poor Pamphlet, with a view to its utter annihilation. To relinquish the metaphor, these men, wilfully and maliciously disregarding my fair and candid Criticisms, have convinced me that all my attempts to produce a decent effect on them is labour thrown away, in short, that I have exhibited my imbecility in trying to wash the Blackamoor white. Violent has been the torrent issuing on me from those Water-spouts of abuse. Not only my poetical, but my moral Character, which I thought a fine Haunch of Venison, has been converted into Dog's-meat under their paws. In all the calmness of reflection, when Prejudice was asleep, I said to myself, "What have I done to these fellows, that they should so sluice me with the muddy and stinking torrent of abuse? I have, I confess, ventured to speak my thoughts of that rhyming humbug, the Pursuits of Rancour, ahàs Literature, the united composition of the aforesaid gentlemen and Lord *, and behold, I was to fall a martyr to my impartial decision! I may have said that the Authors of that boisterous, unmeaning, silly production, called the Pursuits of Literature, in which so many lines and half-lines are stolen, and such a farrago of impertinent quotation introduced, I say I may have called them the Rag-men of Parnassus, the Old-clothes Men to the Muses, literary Pincushions composed of scraps and bran I must confess that I have at times smiled at the unmeaning noisy lines of two wretched things called Baviad and Mæviad, and smiled moreover at the self-consequence of their Author. I may have said, that if Mister Esop Gifford, instead of Baviads and Mæviads, had only composed Coblernads, he would have been more at home on the subject, and really, no young man was keener in his profession than little Esop, with his paring-knife in his hand. In short, he was the cobbling wonder of Ashburton and its vicinity; as no one of his profession, like him,

(So shining was his genius) knew
The constitution of a Shoe;

To put a heel-tap (we'll suppose),
 Or mend a sole, or add a nose .
 And as for an old Boot, in truth,
 He gave it the black bloom of youth ,
Eke comely ears to an old Patten,
 Till some vile Demon cried, " Leain Latm "

I believe that I may have asserted that there is so much flatulence in those compositions, that his Muse, previously to her beginning her Song, must have made a hearty dinner upon boiled peas, a vegetable possessing much flatulent energy I may have asserted, that Stephen Duck the Thresher was a much superior Poet to Gifford the Cobbler . as honest Stephen wrote common sense, and from the heart , and Gifford from a confused muddy brain, without feeling, and in general without the power of exhibiting, a meaning I may have asserted as much, and, more than that, I do assert ~~in~~ now, that the Thresher is a better writer than the Cobbler I may have said, that when a man receiveth subscription-money for a Work, and without any intention to produce that Work, he is a literary swindler, and deserveth a rope I may have asserted, that the dirtiest of all occupations is a pimp. I may have said, that the wretch who can write lampoons on the Patrons who took him from the dunghill, and placed him in a situation of respectability, is a scoundrel I may have said, that a fellow with the form of the letter Z, who publicly attacks an unfortunate woman for a disorder of which the Divine Being is the sole author, is little less than a demon and a fool And finally, I may have declared that the wretch who, after the most important favours conferred on him by a friend, can, by the most infernal machinations, meditate the ruin of that friend, to pave the way for his own ambitious consequence, is a villain — But what is all this to Esop? These reflections might have been general, but, unfortunately for me, they have been considered as particular so that certain folk have positively sworn, in the language of an old ballad, “ That was levelled at me ”

I may have pronounced Mister Canning a feeble character (and I appeal to his speeches for my justification) I may have suggested, that the puerile Letter sent to Buonaparte could only be the work of Master Canning, and that Pitt and Dundas could not have been the authors of that weak performance, but under the brain-destroying influence of the jolly God For this then have I been persecuted, grievously persecuted, in prose, and I expect the same persecution in rhyme, if not poetry But, O astonished Reader ! not only these are my foes , but the squad belonging to another thing, christened the British Critic (it should have been named British Hypocrite, religion being made a stalking-horse for the purposes of mammon), this squad has spit its collected venom in my face and for what ? Have I been known to attack poor Paison Nares's still-born, pious, prose Lucubrations ; or Beloe's Rhymes ? I scorn to insult the dead — Have I ever spoken disrespectfully of the critical sagacity of Messieurs Rivingtons (two booksellers of Paul's Churchyard), and their reviewing ladies ? I scorn to trample on paralytics — Have I ever attacked the military character of Mister Francis Rivington, whose Sword is as sharp as his Pen , and who is ready to storm the loftiest dunghill of the metropolis, with as much intrepidity as was displayed by the Commanding General at the battle of Jemappe ? I have seen him on the plains of Bridewell, in his accoutrements, out-Alexandering Alexander. I have seen him bayonet a pickpocket at a fire. I have witnessed his undaunted appearance : and maintain that he will be as formidable to his foes in the field, as he is terrible to a poor, petitioning, complaining, emaciated author in his shop, or to those drudges, the scavengers of his Review. Let justice be done • fiat justitia, ruat cælum. To use another classical quotation, amicus Plato, amicus Socrates, sed magis amica Veritas. Truth and Candour are the Deities at whose shrine I sacrifice : or may I resemble

A poor, mean, sneaking, literary shrimp ;
Lie like Mathias, and like Gifford pimp !

To conclude I shall forbear a long and elaborate criticism on the various and numerous beauties of my present production contenting myself with modestly saying, that my pair of Prophetic Odes is not a little in the Hebrew style, and, without blushing, might admit of a comparison with some Hebrew compositions of Lyric celebrity Nay, I know some Readers that will assert perhaps of each of my Odes, that decies repetita placebit, others, centies, and some millies, peradventure To confess a truth, I am somewhat like my great Cousin of Thebes in one respect, an egotist ; indeed I am told of it but then I am far from detracting, like him, from my contemporary rivals I persecute not with calumny on the contrary, I return good for evil. Messieurs Mathias, and Gifford, and Canning, and the gentleman of Newgate, and my Lord Poluflosboio, have received my pity Their Pursuits, and their Ghosts, and their Baviads and Mæviads, and their speeches, and their monthly criticism, shall never be cruelly dragged by me from the lake of oblivion, to make a second feast for the table of Ridicule May they sleep in sæcula sæculorum, beneath the placid expanse !

ODES
TO INS AND OUTS.

———Exulet Anlâ,
Qui volet esse paus. Virtus et summa Potestas
Non coeunt LUCAN

HE who would gain Fame's good report,
Must have no dealings with a Court
Virtue and Power, fair and foul weather,
Were never known to pig together

ODES TO INS AND OUTS

PROLOGUE.

I HATE most Courtiers, from my soul.
Upon each other how they scowl!
Yet all politeness, wonderful good-nature
Each tries to get the first employ,
By every engine to destroy:
Yet bows, and smiles, and still persists to flatter,
And, when his Rival he has sent to Hell,
Kind whispers, “Sir, I hope I see you well”

How like old Ocean, the old knave!
This moment placid, smooth, a bright expanse.
The next he thunders, raises every wave,
Roars, riots, tumbles, kicks up such a dance;
Booms o’er the Ship with such a shock,
And heaves her on the fatal rock

Within an hour, one little howl,
No more his foamy billows tow’r;

But all so crouching, humble, gentle (1ot 'em¹),
 With timid motion they advance,
 Seem sorry for the sad mischance,
 And, winding round the wreck, they kiss its bottom —

Reader, didst ever scald thy mouth with custard?
 Then thou hast cursed it twenty times, or more.—

Or didst thou ever to a cat give mustard?
 If so, Grimalkin scratch'd, and spit, and swore

Thus at my Rhymes our Courtiers swear and-spit,
 Ready to slay me, tear me bit by bit

I dearly love to hitch the rogues in Rhyme,
 And tell the World each various crime,
 And folly too, ah! often felt and seen.
 Indeed the act of many a Court
 Would yield the Nation charming sport,
 And chase the gloomy cloud of spleen,
 But that this folly mingles with much harm
 Aye, "there's the rub," the rub, too, to alarm.

But, Sirs, I'll have my thoughts, and speak them too,
 In spite of ministerial chains
 If a Court scoundrel meet my view,
 I'll laugh at penalties and pains,

Smile at the Ribbons that their shoulders deck,
And wish them good tight Ropes about the neck

I'll have my thoughts, and print them too,
Even should there be an imprimatur ,

Sing what is what, and who is who ,
And, independent, scorn to flatter

There may be ministerial chains,
Not only for the tongue, but brains ,
The time may come when ministerial sway
Makes Despotism the order of the day
Still will I talk and write as I think fit,
Whether man John be Addington or Pitt

ODE II.

TO THE KING.

Written immediately on Mr Pitt's Retreat from Administration

AN'T please your Majesty, I'm very glad,
And so are all of us (of late so sad),

That you have thrown the Jonas overboard.
See, see the drowning cat ! he spreads his claws
Quickly, for God's sake, Sir, chop off his paws.

He dies, by not a single sigh deplor'd.

To Davy Jones's locker let him go,
 And with old Neptune booze below.
 Bad stuff though, Neptune's mawkish brine '
 He'd rather touch Dundas's wine

Pitt, Sir, has been a shocking steward,
 And made us all, poor creatures, chew hard ,
 We scarce can put a mouse into the pot
 And yet he leaves behind, I fear,
 Something that will not touching bear,

 Like Powder of a Post that has the rot ;
 And Fame each day sings louder, Sir, and louder,
 " State-pillars will be made of this same powder "—
 Now rotten wood, according to my vows,
 Is bad material to support a house.

Pitt deem'd himself an Eagle . what a flat '
 What was he? a poor wheeling, fluttering Bat ;
 An imp of darkness, busy catching flies
 Here, there, up, down, off, on; shriek, shriek; snap, snap;
 His gaping Mouth a very lucky Trap,
 Quick seizing for his hungry maw supplies

Pitt makes, 'tis true, a monstrous noise .
 He who's seduced, must be besotted,
 The sound may fright the ears of boys ;
 A cannon's thunder, but not shotted.

No Farmer with more true delight
E'er saw a saucy soaring Kite
Fetch'd by a leaden messenger to ground,
Than we, when Majesty thought fit,
And wisely too, to humble Pitt
Headlong into the gulf profound ,
Sunk him to Hell, at least his lowest Hell,
Where pride's prick'd bladder could no longer swell.

No Farmer with a greater glee
Beholds a dying Fox, than we
Mark'd the last struggles of poor Billy Pitt
On every visage see a smile !
Joy triumphs through the echoing isle
Upon his name Posterity shall spit

Poor banish'd Liberty again
To Britain's fair and wide domain
Shall bring her throne, her sacred throne
The voice that long has learnt to mourn,
Shall hail with rapture her return,
And change for sounds of joy the hopeless groan

Well, Sire, whatever be th' event,
You do things with the best intent ;

Distress'd when Fortune mars a patriot plan.—
 And know, each true-born Briton sings,
 “ Health and long life to virtuous Kings !
 We love the master, but detest the man ”

POSTSCRIPT

Sire, if your Majesty so please,
 (And, Sire, it may be done with ease,)
 I'll make a bargain Keep out Pitt for ever,
 My Song shall be the Song of praise
 To kings an altar will I raise,
 And never tear it down, no, never, never.
 And, should it please th' Almighty to take Pye,
 Sire, I'm your bard, your laureat. I, yes, I.
 I think this must be some temptation,
 Considering my vast reputation.

ODE III.

TO LORD HAWKESBURY.

SWEET is the Muse's voice to me,
 Nothing so clever, nought more mighty,
 For taking from the heart ennui,
 The spleen, blue devils, tædium vitæ.

Sweet also is the sweet Cremona's tongue,
Making the hours dance merrily along

But, ah ! not sweet indeed to me
Are sounds in Parliament from thee .
Through my whole frame such torpors creep ,
I stretch, gape, yawn, and fall asleep

Surely our men of worship should be wise,
Think deeply, and with speech surprise ,
But titles only the mad Million hails
Just like Bird-fanciers, heedless of the song,
Who ask what feathers to the Birds belong ;
That, Bashaw-like, gain glory by their tails.

Thou deem'st thyself a first-rate Ship of War.—
Inform one, Hawkesbury, art thou mad ?
What says each honest grinning Tar ?
“ Oh, damn my eyes ! this is too bad.”—
Then flings his quid away, and raves,
“ A goose-feather upon the waves !”

Now let me own, Jack's cat is much too smart.
'Mid the loud storm, and on the ocean's swell,
Hawkesbury, I'll tell thee truly what thou art,
A simple Cockle-shell,

Slipp'd from a stubborn rock into the sea.

“Ay?” thou exclaimest, “who’s that stubborn Rock?”

I wonder who that Rock can be!”—

Pitt, Pitt Lord, thou art stupid as a stock!

Hawkesbury, amid this boisterous gale,

Since thou art mounted upon high,

On pinion wild, with dauntless eye,

Let me instruct thee with a Tale

’Tis of an Owl,

A solemn fowl,

And very much conceited, much like thee —

Excuse this Quake¹-proneness to be free

AN Owl, a bachelor of no great soul

Nor intellect, but very very proud,

The tenant of a little dirty hole,

Wish’d from obscurity to clear the cloud.

Yes, Owl must have his sails unfurl’d,

And mount majestic on the world.

Close to his ivy house lived Crow,

Who on his errands used to go.

“ Crow,” said the Owl upon a day,
 “ I’m sick of solitude and gloom
 A Bird of my deep sense and plume
 Should mount amid the blaze of day.
 ‘ In short, dear Crow, I wish to wed ;
 And, mind me, take unto my bed

“ A bird of birth, the Eagle’s daughter,
 Miss Eaglet.”—“ Ah !” replied the Crow,
 Ready to split his sides with laughter,
 “ Indeed ! and are things really so ?
 Right, Sir, to alter your condition
 O Lord ! there’s nothing like ambition ”—

“ Well, Crow, you’ll quickly seek the realms above,
 With my proposals to the Bird of Jove ”

Crow takes his leave, ascends the skies,
 And to the Eagle’s palace flies
 The black Ambassador from Owl :
 Delivers his credentials to his Grace,
 With Auckland’s diplomatic face ;
 Conceiving, like a penetrating Fowl,
 How politics would go above ;
 What answer leave the Bird of Jove.

Thus spake the Royal Bird " Sir Crow,
To my Lord Owl be pleased to go,
And tell him that I like the match
I'm much obliged to him indeed,
For honouring the Eagle breed
I've been a good while on the watch
To throw a little lustre round my house
Commend me to the Thunderbolt of Mouse

" Miss Eaglet is at his command,
Shall join his Lordship in the straw,
Who such alliance cannot well withstand,
Happy to take him by the claw
Bid him ascend sans cérémonie, free,
And pick his mouse to-day with me "

Off flew at once the sable Fowl,
And quickly reach'd the house of Owl,
And told him all that he had seen and heard
Owl instant comb'd, and wash'd his face,
Cut all his claws to such a grace,
Trimm'd all his feathers nicely, clipp'd his beard,
Bid to his humble hole good-night,
And rose amid the realms of light
Mounted a mule or two, behold,
The Sun's bright blaze of burnish'd gold .

Flash'd on the Owl's poor weak and watering eyes.

Just like a Paper Kite, whose string,

Deserting, leaves him on the wing,

To totter, dip, mount, fall again, and rise ;

So shuffled Owl, lost, reeling, blind,

The sport of every gust of wind ,

Till down he fell with phiz of woe,

The jest of every Bird below —

Now, Hawkesbury, tell the Man of Rhyme,

How feelest thou thy flight sublime ?

Thy weak eyes seem already winking

Poor Bird ! I fear 'tis quickly over

Yes, yes, already I discover

Symptoms of sinking

Pitt's mouth may make a little blast

The Paper-kite comes down at last,

And sharply watching are we all ,

And, when laid flat upon the ground,

Thy paper stuff we shall surround,

And make us merry at thy fall.

Remember Icarus's height —

Perhaps the observation stings .

Thou shouldst have ask'd, before thy flight,

Dame Wisdom for a pair of wings.

ODE IV

TO THE CHANCELLOR OF THE EXCHEQUER.

PRAY, Mister Addington, go out
 Your change on madness seems to border.
 You're a good School-mistress, no doubt,
 To keep the noisy Brats in order ,
 But to be minister !—God bless ye !
 Why, what the devil could possess ye ?

Pray, Mister Addington, go out,
 And let some abler man come in
 Such child's play ! What are you about ?
 The Nation's really in a grin
 And yet it ought to cry, Heaven knows,
 So nearly going to the crows

Good Mister Addington, go out ,
 Go calmly out, nor make a pudder
 And don't, like Grenville, push your snout
 Beneath the good old State-cow's udder.
 Poor beast ! she can't thy thirst supply :
 Pitt's famish'd calves have suck'd her dry.

And hear me, Sir, learn some small wit :
 Don't be the dirty tool of Pitt
 Think on a tale, the Monkey and the Cat —
 Chesnuts were roasting in the fire .
 Jack's jaws both water'd with desire ;
 He begs Miss Puss to lend her pretty patte.

Then, handy as the handiest stoker,
 He makes her velvet paw a poker,
 And stirs away at such a rate !
 Puss squalls, but what is that to Pug ?
 He holds poor Miss Grimalkin snug,
 And gets the chesnuts from the grate
 Jack grins , indulges his rogue jaws
 Puss goes in mourning for her claws.—

Now Mister Chancellor will say I squint ,
 That, as to my surmise, there's nothing in't
 Now, Mister Chancellor, I call no names ,
 But lo ! the father of reform
 Will take you by persuasion, or by storm,
 And put your pretty fingers in the flames.

He wants that organ in your mouth, call'd tongue.—
 And, like an organ in the house of God,
 With deep-toned energy divinely strong,
 That fills with holy awe the dread abode .

He wishes yours to stun Saint Stephen's sphere,
And get him some ten thousand pounds a year.

Yes, you must thunder for a pension,
For services of high pretension,
For him who, labouring with the happiest pains,
Saved England's life by dashing out her brains

ODE V.

TO GEORGE ROSE, ESQUIRE

FORCED from affairs of state, George Rose,
With pretty Treasury pickings, goes,
In humble hut, on Scotia's plains,
To feast upon his honest gains.

Thus with a dainty heap of apples,
With teeth and claws, a Hedgehog grapples
(The epicure), and eats his fill;
Yet on the heap behold him roll,
~~And~~ loaded steal into his hole,
A golden pippin on each quill —
Thus loaded, into Scotland goes
Ex-secrétaire George Hedgehog Rose.

Fed like a Horse in a King's stable,
George, didst thou happy rise from table,
As Horace says, utì conviva satur?
I really think 'twas no such matter

Forced from the venison of the State,
Forced to desert a well-cramm'd plate,
Forced from the trifles, and the jelly,
Forced from the thousand sweet mick-nackeries,
Prettily made by state-cook quackeries,
To fill each crevice of thy bloated Belly,
Looking a downright Football by its tumour,
I think thou gottest up in a bad humour
Yes, George, thy stomach it is such,
It thinks it cannot have too much.

Yet why art thou not dubb'd a lord,
To rise with lustre from the Board,
As title much the vulgar world bewitches?
Then mayst thou seek the barren heath
Or dell where first thou drewest breath,
And blaze the Jack-o'-lantern of the Ditches

Joan Jenkinson, and Madge, and Bet,
And Peg, and Nan, a savoury set,

Have risen to ladyship in this kind reign
 They ride to Court, obtain a smile,
 Make dips and curtsies all in style,
And carry off kind nods from King and Queen.—
 Now this was all old Jenky's doing,
 By dint of labour and Court-wooing

Hast thou not too some poor Relations
 Wishing to change their ragged stations,
And on the bright Court hemisphere be stars?
 If favour will not gain it, buy;
 And hoist thy cousin Joans on high,
Upon the virtuous plunder of our wars

— Sure, thou mayst do all this with ease,
 As Honours are as thick as Fleas,
Pitching on this man's shoulders, now on that.—
 As Heraldry has wondrous charms,
 Heard shall *we*ent a coat of arms,
And to a tiger turn a mangy cat

ODE VI.

WHEN Pitt was out of office push'd,
What horror smote the Levee Mob!
Mad into street of Downing rush'd
His Minions, always ready for a job;—

A most obsequious stud of Hacks,
Who bore him on their humble backs
Through dirty lanes, through thick and thin
No matter what the object, no
When Pitt commands, it must be so;
Whether to clothe the naked Realm, or skin

Muse, would it be too harsh to say,
The tumult on that kick-out day
Was mob-like at a house on fire,
Where friends, amid the conflagration,
With a kind thief-acceleration,
Whip off the goods they guarded by desire?

Unfeeling as a Stone, or harder,
In rush'd Lord Grenville to the larder,

Caught up a goose for self and Wife
 In ran Dundas with hungry paunch,
 Snatch'd up a turbot and a haunch.
 In bounced Charles Long, and, with his butcher's knife,
 (For in the plunder he must also join,)
 Cut off fat slices from a fat surloin

In scamper'd Windham "Where's my share?"
 I must be partner in the spoils"
 Then up he caught an old jack-hare,
 A proper present for his toils

"I must have something," Canning cries,
 And fastens on some rich mince-pies,
 As dextrous as the rest to rifle.
 Ecod! and he must something do
 For mother and for sisters too,
 So steals some syllabubs and trifle*

* With a ministerial fortune by matrimony, with snecures, &c. to a large amount, squeezed from the vitals of the Nation, this modest and generous youth could not afford to yield his poor mother, Mistress Hunn, ahàs Mistress Reddish, ahàs Mistress Canning, a puttance. No the Kingdom must be saddled with five hundred pounds a year for her support. Such is the laudable distribution of public treasure, such are the depositaries of the national confidence, and of such we are ordered not to complain, for fear of the imputation of jacobinism

But where was Justice, all the while
That things were going off in style ?
Poor gentlewoman ! she was gagg'd and bound
Her even scales, alas ! abhorr'd,
In pieces broken with her sword ,
Nor were the fasces to be found.

Such were the guardians of the State,
Just like a shoal of Sharks who swam in,
With Maws as wide as the Park-gate,
To save (by eating us) from famine

ODE VII.

POSS^{ESS} but faith, 'twill move a Mountain
Thus says the Bible, the great fountain,
The sacred fountain, of immortal truth
There are who say that Billy Pitt
In this dear war has shown his wit :—
Lord ! what a statesman ! what a clever youth !
Keen as the keenest Eagle's view,
There's nothing that he cannot do

Yes , have a portion of credulity,
And claw a Pyramid, you'll pull it t' ye.

Credulity's a pretty sand
 To blind the people of the land
 Oh yes, it blinds weak women, and weak men ,
 Much like the sand that boys, in fun,
 Fire from an engine call'd a gun,
 To knock down a poor humming-bird or wren

THE DOCTORS ,

A TALE

A FELLOW, troubled with the itch
 (Like Courtier-men) of getting rich ,
 And learning that a Doctor (not a quack),
 By means of a most potent pill,
 Did verily and truly fill
 Full many a tume with gold his sack ,
 Resolved, by pill, to make a fortune too
 So set about it without more ado

Hoist but the standard, folks will come,
 With Heads as empty as a Drum.
 The Quack puffs off his pill , none doubt him ,
 And numbers quickly flock'd about him.

A Bumkin came among the rest,
And thus the Man of Pill address

“ Zur, hearing what is come to pass ,
That your fine pill hath cured the King,
And able to do every thing ;

D’ye think, Zur, that ’twill make me vind my ass ?
I’ve lost my Ass, Zur, zo should like to try it .
If this be your opinion, Zui, I’ll buy it ”—

“ Undoubtedly,” the Quack replied
“ Yes, Master Hob, it should be tried ’
Then down Hob’s gullet, cure or kill,
The grand impostor push’d the pill.

Hob paid his fee, and off he went ,
And, travelling on about an hour,
His bowels sore with pains were rent
Such was the pill’s surprising pow’r

No longer able to contain,
Hob in a hurry left the lane
(How decent ! what can decency surpass ?),
And sought the grove , where Hob’s two eyes,
Wide staring, saw with huge surprise
His long-eared servant Jack, his ass.

Ye Gods, how happy was the meeting '
Hob kissing Jack , and Jack, Hob greeting

“ Adzooks, a lucky pill !” quoth Hob
“ Yes, yes, the pill hath done the job ”—
Pill grew the subject of the Village tattle
At last it gain'd a heap of fame ,
Not only good for blind and lame,
But good too for recovering all stray'd cattle

“ Now ponder well, ye parents dear ”
Pitt's no catholicon, I fear
Pitt is a violent cathartic ,
Creating very grievous gripes
(In butcher-phrase) among our tripes,
Making the stomach, head, and heart, sick —

Producing much evacuation
Unto a poor consumptive Nation,
That wants restoratives called pounds,
To give her strength, and heal her wounds

Though clever in his Treasury rostrum,
Pitt never yet possess'd a nostrum

For bringing all stray'd millions back again
 The Guineas he sent out, we find,
 Were like so many Beetles blind;
Rambling the Lord knows where,—like Showers of Rain,
 Making the German regions smile,
 Instead of Albion's famish'd isle.

THE HEDGEHOGS,

A FABLE

THE Hedgehogs, in a war most fatal
 (A war commenced with the Dog-nation),
 Like us, unlucky, losing each land-battle,
 And trembling all for their salvation,
 Agreed to furnish contribution,
 With patriotic resolution,
 As much as every Hedgehog could afford
 One of the tribe (no Hedgehog subtler,
 An Elwes or a Sir John Cutler,
 And master of a comfortable hoard),
 Affected to be scarcely worth a crown,
 Therefore unable to come down.

The Hedgehog council sent to let him know,
The tide could never be so low

“ Enter my house, and be convinced,” quoth he —
The Messenger stepp’d in, and pried about Appearances left not a doubt,

Of wealth a vestige, not a soul could see
In full conviction then they left the door
“ Squire Hedgehog certainly is very poor ”

As ⁸ from the door, the humble door
Of our Squire Hedgehog, all so poor,
Fully convinced, they pass’d along,
A hillock of fresh earth appear’d,
Seeming but very lately rear’d.
This hatch’d suspensions somewhat strong

With teeth and claws they oped the mound,
Where such a treasure soon was found !—
Forth trots the poverty-struck Squire,
Begging and praying beyond measure,
They would not take away his treasure .
“ Was sorry he had been so great a liar ,

“ Was ready with his quota to the State,
T’ assist the war, and give the Dogs their fate.”—

But no, it was against the laws, ~~they~~ found
 He could not have it, no such thing,
 As treasure under ground
 Belong'd of right unto the king.

Thus was Squire Hedgehog very fairly bit —
 Now to apply this fable to Squire Pitt

Pitt, canst thou say with a good grace,
 That thine is not a hedgehog case ?
 Believe me, thou'rt not poor in purse,
 However thou mayst be in spirit
 Thine income, for the Nation's curse,
 Is much, I fear, beyond thy merit

The Cinque Ports, with a few remunerations,
 Prove to John Bull some trifling obligations,
 Which Windham cheese-parings might call,
 Which cheese-parings, if in my pow'r,
 Should, in the space of half an hour,
 Return to where they started, like a ball

Had Justice nicely weigh'd thy true desert,
 What had she given?—I'll tell thee what.

The Dame had given, to please thy lofty heart,
 Just half enough to feed a rat ;—

An animal of vicious nature,
Who, after breakfasting and dining
And supping in a House, and undermining,
Leaves it a prey to fire and water
(As soon as all the plunder ceases),
To tear it in a thousand pieces

ODE VIII.

TO PITT

“ BLESSED are those who nought expect,
For they shall not be disappointed ”—
But thou didst hope a grand effect ,
Great sighings from the Lord's Anointed

Strong was thy hope that Majesty would send,
Of terror full, to his good friend
Of Downing Street, post-haste away,
Petitioning, “ Pitt, all is over ,
The French will quickly land at Dover,
And no one to oppose and slay
Of strength thou art a mighty tow'r ;
Come, come, and all thy thunder pour.

Without thee, England meets her fate ;
Haste, haste, and save a sinking State ”

Such were a very flattering sound .
How had the echoes rung around !
But no such voice, alas ! was ever heard
No thunder roll'd, no tempest blew ;
But easy quite as an old shoe,
Saint James's for thy loss appear'd
Soft as a Cat's indeed was thy retreat,
That moves down stairs upon her velvet feet.

But prithee swallow, Pitt, a question
That mayn't agree with thy digestion :
Where was the blush, the blush of shame,
When, to exalt the blind and lame *,
Thou gavest of eloquence that dainty dish ?—
Yet people will in answer say,
“ 'Tis the world's way -
We never hear a man cry, Stinking fish !”

* A few of his fellow-labourers in the political vineyard, that remained after his expulsion. Mr Pitt's eulogium on those rags of his Administration produced a universal smile, even from his own party

TO PITT,

IN CONTINUATION.

'Tis whisper'd, thou wert turn'd to door,
 Most Job-like, very, very poor
 Poor man ! poor man ! ah, what a pity !
 Farewell to dinners in the city !
 *Farewell to grocers every one
 " Othello's occupation's gone ! "

Yet greater men than thee have fall'n from glory :
 Witness the following little Story.

THE SULTAN AND THE DOG

A MIGHTY Sultan of the East
 On every dainty used to feast
 (How different from the beggar and his bone !)
 He drank too Burgundy, I ween ,
 For every thing in style was seen,
 Becoming one who sat upon a throne

 It chanced that War, all-powerful War
 So apt the wisest schemes to mar,

And change the Master to the humble Slave,
Fix'd on the Sultan his steel claws,
Clapp'd an embargo on his jaws,
And words, hard words, instead of victuals, gave.

The King was beat, to prison sent, in short
Coarse was his fare, the coarsest sort,
A jug of milk was sent to him for dinner.
Enter a Dog, who, while the King
Was musing on some lofty thing,
Stole slyly to the milk, the thievish sinner,
Forced in his head, and lapp'd each drop, no doubt,
But could not get his head felonious out.

So off, with his jugg'd jowl, the rascal ran.
The Monarch, smiling, mark'd the theft,
And, of his dinner though bereft,
With much good-humour thus began :—

“ Fortune's a fickle dame . but yesterday
A hundred Camels scarce could bear
My quantities of kitchen-waie ,
And now a Cur can carry it away ”

Oh, with a Disposition soft as Silk,
 So humble, affable, and mild,
 Art thou reduced, too, to a jug of milk,
 Sweet Nature's child ?
 Speak, did the famish'd wolves, alas !
 Eat all the flesh of the dead ass,
 And leave thee nothing but the bones ?
 Say, hadst thou not the face to mump
One steak, from the poor Nation's rump,
 To calm gaunt Famine's hollow moans ?

, Ah me ! we all are very poor ;
 Tax'd to the very eyes, I'm sure.
 Where is the article that pays no duty ?
 Nought scapes ; not Woman's fascinating beauty.

Lo, many a little charming Phyllis,
 For vending roses sweet and lilies,
 And love-inspiring, luscious, balmy kisses ;
 Although the growth of their own cheek ;
 Although the growth of their own neck ;
 Although the growth of their own lip, sweet Misses ;
 Are forced to Bridewell's horrid fare,
 For dealing in unhenc'd ware :
 Spoil'd all their pretty hops, and skips, and glee,
 Because the Justice had not got his fee.

ODE IX.

TO PITT AGAIN

SAY, Pitt, dost thou so easy part
With Power, the idol of thy heart,
And, philosophic, yield to thy disgrace,
Leave Downing-street, and stately rooms,
For secrecy and spectre glooms
Of solitary poor Park Place;
To live within a little hole,
As melancholy as a Mole?

Thou thoughtest we should all wear mourning,
Black, weeping all for thy returning;
All with white handkerchiefs to catch wet sorrow.
Ah! know, there are not ten who care
Five farthings, were they now to hear
That thou wert in a jail to-morrow.

Pitt, thou hast been in office long enough,
Yes, thou hast had a handsome swing.
Thy Hide too, like a Bull-hide tough,
Has met indeed with many a sting,

Or dart, that must have kill'd all but the man
Whose modesty not only took our flour
(The conscientious miller of the hour),
But made its bow, too, to the bran,
Nay, ready too, upon its back
To carry off the very sack.

Suspended on a bit of steel,
Employed in smuggling,
A large and slippery Eel,
The World seems glad to see thee wriggling.
How hast thou work'd for life and soul,
To slip again into thy hole!—
Aye, gape, and writhe, and spread thy fin,
Poor Master Fish, you won't get in.

A bungling Chemist, thou hast managed badly;
Managed the state-alembic sadly,
With all thy cunning and thy pains .
The finer parts are off in air,
Howe'er thine ignorance may stare;
And nought but caput mortuum remains

So much, Pitt, for our sublimed Constitution,
The subject of thy fierce and ceaseless fires
And, lo, by dint of time and resolution,
Thou hast well crucibled thy Country Squires ,

And Mother Bank, the blindest of old crones,
Extracting heaps of gold from stocks and stones

When ye began this righteous wai,
Where was your tutelary star ?
Ye never dreamt of danger till too late.
“ A War with France ! oh, that’s soon o’er .
A Fox-chase, Fox-chase, nothing more ;
Fun, fun ; just coursing a poor Hare or Cat ”

Such was your speech . but, Sir, it doth appear
That this same Cat is now become a Bear ;
Whose claws have lately held you snug,
And given a cursed Cornish hug

ODE X.

TO HENRY DUNDAS, ESQUIRE.

FOR a great Empire fast undoing,
Something indeed should have been brewing,
Better than brandy and strong beer ;
Something was wanting, to my humble thinking,
Besides good eating and hard drinking,
To keep the leaky ship from foundering clear .

Yet 'tis well known that, ere the Vessel's sunk,
The Sailors commonly get drunk.

Now thou art off, I long to see,
In thine own language, "wha wants me "
It will not be at all surprising
To catch thee, Harry, advertising —
If mad to face a second storm,
Take an Advertisement in form

ADVERTISEMENT.

A steady Man, near sixty years of age,
Would very willingly engage
As butler to a Minister of State,
And overlook the plate.

But should the plate by chance be carried off,
And not a hogshead or a bottle left;
He begs to say, he won't be fool enough
To answer for the leakage, or the theft

If wanted, he can have, by God's good grace
An excellent character from his last place.—
Please to direct to Mister H. Dundas,
At the old sign, the Bottle and the Glass.

A MORAL CONCLUSION.

IN this World's wild, uncertain chase,
 What strange events at times take place ;
 Some bright with joy, some black with sorrow !
Omnium est rerum vicissitudo -
 To-day what wonders I and you do,
 That happen not again to-morrow !

Hawkesbury and Windham, Canning, Long,
 Were understrappers to Will Pitt ;
Forerunners, oft they gave their tongue
 Before the Great Man pour'd his wit

'Thus Paul's four small Clock-quarters (prentice boys)
 Instruct their mighty Master when to sound
 Paul solemn listens to the tinkling noise,
 Then breaks in thunder to the world around

But, herald understrappers now no more,
 Pitt out of office, the broad farce is o'er :
 Flung from his pedestal amid the rabble,
Deep-thundering Pitt is—poor old Goody Gabble.

Ah me' sic transit gloria mundi :

Such things will be till Moon and Sun die,
And earth our ashes, our pale embers, cover ,

And really, when we sum up all,

What's Life ? a Blast, a little Squall.

Death's calm must come at last, and all is over :

All in our tombs in peace, not one

To read "Hic jacet" on the stone

TALES OF THE HOY,

INTERSPERSED WITH

SONG, ODE, AND DIALOGUE

Φιλέσσι μιν σε Μῆσαι,
Φιλέει δὲ Φοῖβος αὐτὸς,
Λιγυρην δ' ἔδωκεν ἑλμυν

ANACREON

THE Muses love thee dearly, Peter,
And eke the merry God of Metre,
Who gracious gave thee such a charming tongue
We thought that Age had quench'd thy fire,
Or Law's rude hammer crush'd thy Lyre,
Or Royal Whisper sooth'd the rage of Song,
Or Pension changed thy Harp's uncourtly strings,
And with her golden scissars clipp'd thy wings

PRELIMINARY DISCOURSE.

It were needless, O illuminated Reader! to inform thee, that the hint of the Tales of the Hoy is borrowed from Chaucer, who borrowed his hint from the Decameron of Boccace, who borrowed his hint from the Cento Novelle antiche. Thou wilt perceive that I have deviated from my merry Predecessor, by omitting a prize-supper for the best Story-teller. I have also deviated, by introducing Ballad, Dialogue, &c. by way of taking off a fatiguing monotony, thus enlivening the scene by diversity, which possesses a charm for the World in general.

Mine Host of the Hoy also differs from the Host of the Tabard, by delivering his opinions in prose: a more natural mode of communication, though not so difficult, and consequently not so ingenious, difficulty and ingenuity being, in the present age, considered as synonymous, by a number of profound thinkers. It would be thought presumptuous perhaps, to draw a parallel between Harry Baily, the Host of the Tabard, and Captain Noah, our Host of the Hoy, but I must confess that I would rather be Captain Noah than Harry Baily. Not that Harry Baily was not a clever fellow; indeed he had humour, added to a shrewdness of observation but Harry Baily had scarcely ever been out of the smoke of his own chimney; whereas Captain Noah has been, like Ulysses, a great traveller; has sailed to various parts of the Globe, was on board the very ship of war with Mr. George Rose, our present great and excellent Secretary of the Treasury, when he was only a poor Pui-ser's Mate; and was with him too when he was elevated, by parliamentary interest, to the rank of pui-ser, and well remembers that he has often damned Mr. Rose's rotten peas, ropy small beer, hopping biscuit, and horse-beef. Captain Noah was likewise with Sir Joseph Banks at Otaheite, when that Great Man, for the honour of his country, was tattooed, and lost his breeches, in the boat with Queen Obereah. Captain Noah also can play a country-dance on the fiddle, and dance the hays at the same time nay, so far from being illiterate, he has published an acrostic in Mr John Nichols's Magazine; nay, Captain Noah has actually given literary hints to Messieurs Riving-

tons and their Wives, of St Paul's Church-yard, who preside over the poetical part of a Review called the British Critic, and before whose awful tribunal this very Work of mine, The Tales of the Hoy, must one day appear, and, like themselves at the Day of Judgment, be saved or damned

Captain Noah possesses a more original cast of character, a richer vein of humour, and a more universal knowledge, resembling too very strongly my late ingenious friend Gainsborough, of painting excellence; that is to say, is desultory in his conversation, despising the cold phlegmatic form of connerion, and taking a hop, step, and jump, over things: to borrow an image from the Captain's favourite and congenial element, making ducks and drakes with discourse. By the introduction of Dialogue, my Work assumes a pretty dramatic form. and which, with the leave of our present Petronius Arbiter of plays, the accomplished Lord Salisbury, may one day make its appearance on our Theatres, be honoured with the Royal presence, and smile perhaps, and prove that a Piece may obtain success without the most distant obligations to flames and spectres.

TALES OF THE HOY.

'Twas in that month when Nature drear,
With sorrow whimpering, drops a tear,
To find that Winter, with a savage sway,
Prepares to leave his hall of storms,
And crush her flowers (delightful forms),
And banish Summer's poor last lingering ray,—

'Twas in that season when the Men of Slop,
The Jew and Gentile, turn towards their shop,
In alleys dark of London's ample round,
From Margate's handsome spot, and Hooper's-hill,
And Dandelion, where, with much good-will,
Of butter'd rolls they swallowed many a pound,—

I too, the Bard, from Thanet's pleasant isle,
Where, at a lodging-house, I lived in style,
Prepared with Gentile and with Jew to wander.
So pack'd up all my little odds and ends,
Took silent leave of all my Margate friends,
And sought a gallant Vessel's great Commander,
Who, proud of empire, ruled with conscious joy
His wooden Kingdom, call'd a Margate Hoy.

Lord ' how my gaping Readers long to know,
Which gallant Vessel's valiant Lord
 (A natural curiosity, I trow)
 Hail'd the Great Poet and his Trunk on board '
 If Kydd, who nicks the passage to an inch ;
 Or he, his high and mighty rival, Finch.

No matter Be it known to my Readers, that, on the day of my departure, on the green lap of Mother Earth, on Hooper's-hill, looking towards dear Dandelion of dancing memory, I thus broke forth into the praise of Margate —

THE PRAISE OF MARGATE.

DEAR Margate, with a tear I quit this isle,
Where all seem happy; sweethearts, husbands,
spouses .
On every cheek where Pleasure plants a smile,
And Plenty furnishes the people's houses.

What's Brighton, when to thee compared? poor thing,
Whose barren hills in mist for ever weep.
Or what is Weymouth, though a Queen and King
Wash, walk, and prattle there, and wake and sleep?

Go bid the Whiting's, the boil'd Whiting's Eye,
 In bughtness with the Gem of Ind compare,
 Or bid the skipping Jack-o'lantern vie
 With Heaven's keen Flash that lights the realms of
 air —

Go bid the humble Thorn, the Cedars ape,
 That to the stars their tops sublimely spread,
 Go bid a Curate in his tatter'd crape,
 Like Doctor Porteus lift the lofty head —

Bid Rose's* Sun, like Sol with lustre shine,
 Or bid that thing, misnomer'd the True Briton,
 Like Brother Papers yield a decent line
 Poor dying imps, whom Truth and Genius spit on.

* A great man, who deemed it politically necessary to create a couple of Newspapers, to vouch for his good deeds, and varnish others The consumptive state of his two miserable Bantlings, which George weakly imagined would prove to be a pair of Atlases to support his world of character, gave birth to the following Ode of Condolence —

AN ODE OF CONDOLENCE

TO

GEORGE ROSE, ESQUIRE,

On his two Newspapers, most unfortunately baptized "The Sun" and
 "The True Briton"

FORBEAR thee, George, such ~~whining; pining, sighing,~~
 Because thy poor ~~consumptive, Bant~~ ~~are dying~~

What too thy reputation's wing will raise,
 And with a bush of laurel deck thy name,
 Lo' I, the sweetest Bard of modern days,
 Admiring, turn the Stentor of thy fame.

No sooner had I finished this pretty, plaintive, poetical encomium, but, in a tender dove-like strain of delicate sensibility, very much like the Hebrew Bard weeping over his favourite Jerusalem, I thus again broke out —

Whate'er from dirty Thames to Margate goes,
 However foul, immediately turns fair.
 Whatever filth offends the London nose,
 Acquires a fragrance soon from Margate air

By thee begotten, how could they be strong?
 So very like thyselves in all their features,
 Unhappy, miserable, dismal creatures,
 The World now wonders they have lived so long
 What but insanity could well expect
Perfection from such radical defect?
 A sow's ear cannot make a puise of silk
 We cannot to a whale convert the shrimp
 What folly too, to put out each poor imp
 To nurses yielding not one drop of milk!
 Then prythee for thy Papers sigh no more,
 So worthless, for oblivion they are ripe
 Peace to their slumber, as their date is o'er
 Peace to their ashes, as they light my pipe

Even Rose's News-hunters, his Scandal-crimps,
Are changed to wits, so great are Margate powers
Yes, his poor trumpeters, the noisy imps,
Become sweet Philomels, in Margate bowers

The Taylor here, the port of Mais assumes,
Who cross-legg'd sat in silence on his board
Forgets his Goose, and Rag-besprinkled rooms,
And Thread and Thimble, and now struts a Lord

Here Crispin too forgets his End, and Awl
Here Mistress Cleaver with importance looks,
Forgets the Beef and Mutton on her stall,
And Lights and Livers dangling from the hooks

Here Mistress Tap, from Pewter Pots withdrawn,
Walks forth in all the pride of paunch and geer,
Mounts her swoln heels on Dandelion's lawn,
And at the Ball-room heaves her heavy rear

Changed by their travels, mounted high in soul,
Here Suds forgets whate'er remembrance shocks,
And Mistress Suds forgetteth too the Pole,
Wigs bob and pigtail, Basons, Razors, Blocks.

Here too the most important Dicky Dab,
With puppy-pertness, pretty pleasant prig,
Forgets the narrow fishy House of Crab,
And drives in Jehu style his whirling Gig.

And here, 'midst all such consequence, am I
The Poet, semper idem, just the same,
Bidding old Satire's hawk at follies fly,
To fill the shops of Booksellers with game.

Now in sorrow did I descend to the Pier, alongside of which Pier was the Vessel ordained to transport me from Margate

In sorrow, let me say, I descended, to go on board
the Vessel,—

Which like gilt Gingerbread did ride
(How garish!) on the silver tide,
To whose smart ribs was golden varnish given.
Her blushing ensign proudly waving,
Her pendant now in ocean laving,

Now sportive floating on the breeze to heaven;—
Like gaudy mortals, steady now, now tripping,
Now in the zenith, now to nadir dipping.

At length I got me on board the ark, where Master Noah, ahàs the Captain, was busy, amidst scores of Passengers, of different faces, quality, and dispositions, in getting ready for the voyage. The anchor was soon apeak, the sails filled, and we were under way.

Now, as our immortal Milton sublimely would have sung :

With dewy gems adorning herb and flower,
Moved meek-eyed Evening on the western hills
With modest mien; and on the calm expanse
Of Ocean's mirror look'd, and looking tinged
Its heaving bosom with a roseate blush,
A blush empyreal.

Or, as the no less immortal author of Hudibras would have quantly said :

Now Madame Eve, with gown of pink,
Stepp'd down to Neptune's tap to drink.
Where Phœbus just before had been
At his old famed salt-water inn;
To end the labours of the day,
And give his Horses oats and hay,

And bed, and clear their hoofs from gravel,
To fit them for next morning's travel

Again, as the illustrious Butler would have said, or sung :

Night, in her weeds, with bats and owls
(Her usual equipage of fowls),
Came forth ; and, changing colour, Day
(According to her vulgar way),
Like healthy Felons hang'd, alack !
Turn'd from deep red to dismal black.

And now Captain Noah, with a voice more like that of the Raven than the Nightingale, most audibly yet civilly vociferated, " Ladies and gemmen of the best cabin, please to walk below." At such summons we descended, where our Palinurus thus began.—

" Ladies and gemmen, you are all welcome on board ; and as we shall not reach London till to-morrow, in God's name let us drown old Care in the bowl. Here's a pretty little pond of punch, and when we suck that dry, we'll fill another and another. so God prosper the Vessel, and send us a pleasant passage ! Long may we live, and merry be our hearts ! Down with the French, and damn Buonaparte ! Cheer up, Lads and Lasses ! While we live, let us live We must all go at last to Davy Jones's locker no help for it, all must go down, fortune de le guerre We shall never be a day younger. May we kiss whom we please, and please whom we kiss ! Love and opportunity ! Liberty and property ! Come, Ladies and gemmen, take your places round the table dip your whiskers in the nectar Drown old Care, as I said before A light heart and a thin pair of breeches !

 There's a good God over our head Old England for ever ! Come, Ladies and gemmen, I'll be toast-master.
 Here's my chair of state, and here's my hammer. I'll be the Mister Jupiter tonans of the night, as some Latin men have christened me, with your leave, so,
 Ladies and gemmen, please to obey my orders A toast-master, Ladies and gemmen, is the greatest man in the world no appeal from a toast-master He is despotic. like our Prime Minister, scorns to give a reason for what he does Ladies and gemmen, a toastmaster is all-wise let me wickedly say, omnipotent ;
 for the chair must be supported, and therefore he can command every thing A toast-master may say,
 ' Moab shall be my washpot, and over Edom will

I cast out my old shoe.' A toast-master is the first man in the world. Were his Majesty of England here now, in this very cabin here, (God bless him,) and refused his glass, or contradicted me, or asked a reason, I would order him a half-dozen bumpers, if not contented with that, a pint of salt water, and were his Majesty to demand of my Majesty a reason for such proceedings, then should my Majesty order his Majesty a pottle; which if he refused, he should be sent to Coventry before he could say Peas."

The Captain ended; when the dark solemnity which saddens the faces of Englishmen who happen to be strangers to one another, was converted into a smile that instantaneously ran over every countenance, by a sort of happy contagion

Thus oft it happens that the sky
 Throws horrid glooms upon the eye;
 Breeds Clouds like Malkins, old black Rags indeed:
 The lands below look dismal, drear;
 When suddenly see Sol appear!
 He pushes boldly through the dark his head:
 At once the shadows to his glories yield,
 And cheerful radiance flies from field to field.

Captain Noah now mounted his large elbow-chair, assumed his sceptre (ahàs hammer), and, commanding silence, entered upon his Song

SONG

AGAIN we begin to be Britons, my boys
While united, success we command
Lo ! each Tar on the ocean a triumph enjoys,
And laurels shall cover the land

Though surrounded by foes that in legions arise.
And cry for our ruin aloud,
The Genius of England their fury defies,
And bursts like the Sun from a cloud

May the King live for ever, the friend of our isle,
That revolts at the name of a slave,
Whose eye for fair Merit possesses a smile,
And a tear for the tomb of the brave !

No man to his mistress or wife will return,
And say . “ I have fled from the foe
My honour is gone ; in the grave let me mourn
A disgrace that no Briton should know ”

Fiance the beggar shall be of the year fifty-eight,
 When for mercy she put up her pray'r ,
 With nought but her perfidy left, and her spite,
 And her pride, to console her despair

The Spaniard too late shall his folly confess,
 When his Indies no longer remain ,
 And the Dutchman, a frog in the days of Queen Bess,
 Shall croak in his ditches again.

But how needless to talk of our prowess in war,
 And proclaim what a universe knows !
 Let Langua, De Grasse, and De Winter, declare
 What it is to have Britons for foes

CAPTAIN NOAH

Mistress Bliss, my good old acquaintance, here's success to you and your pretty little white-legged Chicken. A Song, if you please Love, almighty Love, I suppose, will be the subject. All alive, Nymphs and Shepherds God's lambs will play

MISTRESS BLISS

Indeed, Captain, my Song will be a serious one nothing more nor less than an Epitaph on my poor dear girl, Corinna, the best creature in the world, as well as the most beautiful She was cruelly used she died a martyr to the tender passion

CAPTAIN NOAH

Oh! I recollect her Poor Corinna! I could cry for her, Mistress Bliss a sweet creature! So kind, so lovely, and so good-natured! She would not hurt a fly Lord, Lord! tried to make every body happy Gone! ha, Mistress Bliss? Gone? Poor soul! Oh! she is in Heaven, depend upon it. nothing can hinder it O Lord, no, nothing an Angel, an Angel by this time, for it must give God very little trouble to make her an Angel, even if it were a first-rate; she was so charming Such terrible figures as my Lord Cardigan, or my Lady Mary, to be sure, it would take at least a month to make such ones any thing like Angels, but poor little Corinna wanted very few repairs Perhaps the sweet little soul is now seeing what is going on in our cabin who knows? Charming little Corinna! Lord, how funny it was! for all the world like a Rabbit, or a Squirrel, or a Kitten, playing with its tail Gone! as you say, gone! Well, now for her Epitaph.

CORINNA'S EPITAPH.

HERE sleeps what was innocence once, but its snows
 Were sullied and trod with disdain
 Here lies what was beauty; but pluck'd was its Rose,
 And flung like a Weed to the plain
 O Pilgrim, look down on her grave with a sigh,
 Who fell the sad victim of ait:
 Even Cruelty's self must bid her hard eye
 A pearl of compassion impart
 Ah! think not, ye Prudes, that a sigh or a tear
 Can offend of all Nature the God.
 Lo! Virtue already has mourn'd at her bier,
 And the lily will bloom on her sod

CAPTAIN NOAH

Very pretty, very clever · thank ye, Mistiess Bliss
 Rather doleful, very pretty though, touching and tender it would do for my wife, Mistress Noah, very well. I wish Mistress Noah could have it Have ye nothing a little more lively, Mistress Bliss? Come, come; something giggish, something merry Poor, sweet Corinna! Yes, something alve Have not you a what-d'ye-call-it about ye? a bit of gaiety, or so?

We must not be always at a funeral, must have a courtship and a wedding sometimes: it would be a dismal world else Come, Mistress Bliss, let us have something in the tol-de-roll-loll way, funny hang dis-mality, leave that to Parsons I don't admire Parsons a Parson in quest of preferment, is one of the saddest dogs in the world, you never have his opinion So sanctified too! demure as an old Bawd at a christening Oh, damn it! and then a Parson on board ship is the Devil I never sailed with one but we had a storm Well, Mistress Bliss; one more, and then I shall call on my little sprig of Parnassus, Master Tagg. Silence, Ladies and gemmen.

SONG

WHEN William first woo'd, I said yes to the Swain,
 And made him as blest as a Lord;
 For, ye Virgins around, in my speech to be plain,
 That no is a dangerous word.
 The Girl that will always say no, I'm afraid,
 Is doom'd by her planet to die an old maid
 The Gentlemen seem one and all to agree,
 That we're made of materials for kissing,
 And if so (for I really believe it), good me!
 What joys through ~~one~~ ~~no~~ might be missing!

Since the Girl who will always say no, I'm afraid,
Is doom'd by her planet to die an old maid.

Say yes, and of courtship ye finish the toil,
Whole mountains at once ye remove
You brighten the eyes of the Swain by a smile,
For Smiles are the Sunshine of love
Say yes, and the World will acquit you of art,
Since the tongue will not then give the lie to the heart

CAPTAIN NOAH

Very true, Mistress Bliss, very true Song, very good. no is a dangerous word And yet a bishop always says no, and is never disappointed. Mister Buck, you are called on Silence.

BUCK.

Mine is the Widow of Ephesus, Captain; an old Tale.

CAPTAIN NOAH

A good subject to work on, a widow, a nice bit of stuff Widow of Ephesus, ha? Aye, aye, a Greek gentlewoman I have been in her country when we sailed up the Arches. Pretty girls, Greek girls I used to get their sweet little velvet skins cheap. Whip up their veils, board their juicy lips, and give them a good British smack, that you might hear a mile Oh! the Arches beat the London market all to pieces. Ladies and gemmen, the Widow of Ephesus. Silence.

THE WIDOW OF EPHEBUS,

A TALE.

BALM are the Sighs, for breathless Husbands shed;
And pearl the Eye-drops that adorn the dead

At Ephesus (a handsome town of Greece)
There lived a Lady, a most lovely piece,

In short, the charming Toast of all the town
In wedlock's velvet bonds had lived the Dame
Yes, brightly did the torch of Hymen flame,
When Death, too cruel, knock'd her Husband down,

This was indeed a lamentable stroke:

Prudentia's gentle heart was nearly broke;

Tears pea-like trickle, shrieks her face deform;
Sighs, sighs succeeding, leave her snowy breast,
Winds, call'd hysterical, expand her chest,
As though she really had devour'd a storm.

Now, fainting, calls she on her poor dead love :
How like the wailings of the widowed Dove !

All Ephesus upon the wonder gazed
Men, women, children, really were amazed
’Tis true, a few Old Maids abused the pother
“ Heavens ! if one Husband dies, why take another ,”
Said they, contemptuous cocking up the nose
“ Ridiculous enough ! and what about ?
To make for a dead husband such a rout !
There are as fine as he, one might suppose.

“ A body would presume, by grief so mad,
Another Husband was not to be had.
But men are not so very scarce, indeed
More than are good, there are, God mend the breed !”

Such was the conversation of Old Maids,
Upon this Husband’s visit to the shades

At length her Spouse was carried to the tomb,
Where poor Prudentia moped amid the gloom

One little lamp, with solitary beam,
Show’d the dark coffin that contain’d her dear ,
And gave a beauteous sparkle to each Tear,
That roll-like dropp’d, or rather like a stream.

.

Resolved was she, amid this tomb to sigh,
To weep, and wail, and groan, and starve, and die

No comfort, no, no comfort would she take
Her friends beheld her anguish with great pain,
Begg'd her to try amusement, but in vain
“ No, she would perish, perish for his sake ”

Her flaxen tresses all dishevell'd flow'd,
Her vestments loose, her tucker all abroad,
Revealing such fair swelling orbs of woe !
Her lids, in swimming grief, now look'd on high,
Now downward droop'd, and now she pour'd a sigh
(How tuneful !) on her dear pale Spouse below

Who would not covet death, for such sweet sighs,
To be bewail'd by such a pair of eyes ?

It happen'd that a Rogue, condemn'd to death,
Resign'd (to please the law) his roguish breath,
And near the vault did this same Felon swing
For fear the Rogue's relations, or a friend,
Might steal him from the rope's disgraceful end,
A smart young Soldier watch'd the Thief and string

This Son of Mars, upon his silent station,
Hearing, at night, a ~~dreadful~~ lamentation,

Stole to the place of woe, that is, the tomb:
And, peeping in, beheld a beauteous face
That look'd with such a charming tragic grace,
Displaying sorrow for a Husband's doom

The Youth most naturally express'd surprise,
And scarcely could he credit his two eyes .
“ Good God, Ma'am ! pray, Ma'am, what's the matter
 . here ?

Sweet Ma'am, be comforted , you must, you shall
At times misfortunes, even the best befall
Pray stop your grief, Ma'am ; save that precious tear.”—

“ Go, Soldier, leave me,” sighed the Fair again,
In such a melting melancholy strain,
Casting her eyes of woe upon the Youth
“ I cannot, will not, live without my Love !”
And then she threw her glistening eyes above,
That swam in tears of constancy and truth.

“ Madam,” rejoin'd the Youth, and press'd her hand,
“ Indeed you shall not my advice withstand,
For Heaven's sake don't stay here, to weep and howl .
Pray take refreshment.”¹—Off at once he set,
And quickly brought the mourner drink and meat ;
A bottle of Madeira, and a fowl ;

And bread and beer,
Her heart to cheer.

“ Ah ! gentle Youth, you bid me eat in vain ,
Leave me, oh, leave me, Soldier, to complain
Yes, sympathizing Youth, withdraw your wine,
My sighs and tears shall be my only food
Thou knewest not my Husband kind and good,
For whom this heart shall ever, ever pine ”

And then she cast upon the Youth an eye
All tender, saying, “ Soldier, let me die ”
And then she press’d his hand, with friendship
warm —

“ You shall not die, by Heaven ! ” the Soldier swore .
“ No , to the World such beauty I’ll restore,
And give it back again its only charm. ’

Such was th’ effect of her delicious Hand,
That charm’d his senses like a Wizard’s Wand

“ What ! howl for ever for a breathless clod !
Ma’am, you shall eat a leg of fowl, by God.”

With that he clapp’d wine, fowl, bread, beer and all,
Without more ceremony, on the pall.

“ Well, Soldier, if you do insist,” quoth she,
All in a saint-like, sweet, complying tone,
“ I’ll try if Grief will let me pick a bone
Your health, Sir ”—“ Thank you kindly, Ma’am,” quoth he

As grief absorbs the senses, the fair Dame
Scarce knew that she was eating, or yet drinking,
So hard is it a roaring grief to tame,
And keep the sighing pensive soul from thinking —

So that the fowl and wine soon pass’d indeed,
Quickly away too stole the bee and bread,
All down her pretty little swelling throat —
And now, whate’er Philosophers may think,
Sorrow is much obliged to meat and drink,
Whose soothing virtues stop the plaintive note,

And, says the anatomic art,
“ The stomach’s very near the heart ”

Prudentia found it so a gentler sigh
Stole from her lovely breast, a smaller tear,
Containing less of anguish, did appear
Within the pretty corner of her eye,

Her eye's dark Cloud dispersing too apace
(Just like a Cloud that oft conceals the Moon),
Let out a bighter lustre o'er her face,
Seeming to indicate dry weather soon
Her tongue too somewhat lost its mournful style ;
Her rosebud-lips expanded with a smile .

Which pleased the gallant Soldier, to be sure,
Happy to think he saved the Dame from Death ;
Yes, from his hug preserved the sweetest breath,
And to a wounded heart prescribed a cure

Now Mars's Son a minute left the Dame,
To see if all went well with Rogue and rope ;
But, ere he to the fatal gibbet came,
The Knave had deem'd it proper to elope

In short, attendance on the Lady's grief
Had lost him his Companion, the hang'd Thief,
Whose friends had kindly filch'd him from the string.

Quick to the Lady did the Soldier run
“ Madam, I shall be hang'd, as sure's a gun :
O Lord ! the Thief's gone off, and I shall swing.

“ Madam, it was the Royal declaration,
That if the Rogue was carried off
(Whether by soft means or by rough,
No matter), I should take his situation.

“ O Lord, O Lord ! my fate’s decreed .
 O Ma’am ! I shall be hang’d indeed .

“ O Lord, O Lord ! this comes of creeping
 To graves and tombs , this comes of peeping ;
 This is th’ effect of running from my duty .
 Oh curse my folly ! What an ape
 Was I, to let the Thief escape !
 This comes of fowl, and wine, and beer, and beauty .

“ Yet, Ma’am, I beg your pardon too ;
 Since, if I’m hang’d, ’twill be for you ”—

“ Cheer up, my gallant Friend,” replied the Dame,
 Squeezing his hand, and smoothing down his face
 “ No, no, you sha’nt be hang’d, nor come to shame ,
My husband here shall take the fellow’s place
 Nought but a lump of clay can he be counted,
 Then let him mount.”—and lo ! the Corpse was mounted,
 Made a good Thief ; nay, so complete,
 The people never smelt the cheat

Now from the gibbet to the tomb again
 Haste, arm in arm, the Soldier and the Fair ;
 T’ exchange for kisses, and the turtle’s strain,
 Sad hymns of death, and ditties of despair .

CAPTAIN NOAH

There was a damned jade for ye ! What a sniveling hussey ! It was a devil of a trick, to be sure , but “ A living Dog is better than a dead Lion,” as the saying is The young Soldier, to be sure, was not much to blame; for who would not rather be pressing a little warm, beautiful flesh and blood, and ogling lilies and roses, than gaping in the cold all night at a dead thief ? Ladies and gemmen, silence Now, Master Tagg, make me an extempore on this little drunken dog of a Fly, that I have just helped out of the punch there he is, rubbing his nose with his two long arms, and rolling about like a Ship in a Storm Come, fire away , and I will afterwards tip you a specimen of my Lord Salisbury’s poetry, on a Fly that pitched on the cheek of a pretty woman at Hampton-court My Lord’s Butler, who was my passenger the last trip, showed it to me as a great curiosity The King and Queen have seen it, and admired it All the servants agree that he is a pestilent man for a rhyme O Lord ! there’s a deal of genius among the quality now , much improved of late : could not read nor write formerly, I’ve been told , now they write verse and prose like mad And then there’s my Lord Carlisle can tip ye a hundred rhymes in half an hour but my Lady does not like his verses, for he scrawls the chairs and tables over, and walls, whenever the poetry-fit is upon him, and then he makes up such wry mouths, and grins, when he is going to be delivered of verses, as though he was bewitched My Lady watches his face like a Cat; and stalks behind him, with a bit of wet sponge, to rub all out again, that the furniture mayn't be disfigured and spoiled The servants are ordered too, by my Lady, to take notice of his rhyming tantarums, and be ready to rub But, Master Tagg, the extempore, the extempore on the Fly, or you shan't have your passage for nothing

THE DRUNKEN FLY

Poor little reeling, thoughtless soul,
To tumble drunk into the bowl!
Death to thy thread had clapp'd his knife
Go, wipe thy nose, and wings, and thighs,
And brighten up thy maudlin eyes,
And thank the Captain for thy life.

In future, get not quite so drunk :
Thy Girl, perhaps a lass of spunk,
May wish thy amorous powers to prove,

And shouldst thou, drunk, the Wanton chase,
Ebriety may bring disgrace :

And who would look a fool in love ?

CAPTAIN NOAH

Very well, very arch, Master Tagg, a sly hint;
 modest hint to certain young valorous, braggadocio, and tippling fornicatois Now for my Lord Salis-bury's Fly

VERSES ON A FLY,

THAT PITCHED ON THE CHEEK OF A MOST BEAUTIFUL YOUNG LADY

BY LORD SALISBURY.

HAPPY, happy, happy Fly !
 Were I you, and you were I !
 But you will always be a Fly,
 And I remain Lord Salisbury

Ladies and gemmen, a very pretty thought; tender and sentimental, and touching You see that my Lord is a dab at a distich. Master Barnacle, a Tale or a Song

MR BARNACLE

Both in one, Captain Noah, and set to music by a charming fellow, Will Shield, whom every body knows, and on whom some queer genius wrote verses, just, after poor Shield's brains were almost knocked out by the fall of the statue of an Apollo on his head, from the summit of the organ, as he was playing

CAPTAIN NOAH

Repeat them, repeat them.

VERSES ON THE FALL OF THE STATUE OF APOLLO FROM THE SUMMIT OF THE ORGAN, ON THE HEAD OF SHIELD, AS HE WAS PLAYING

ON a day, on Shield's crown
 Apollo leap'd down,
 And, lo ! like a Bullock he fell'd him.
 Now was not this odd ?
 Not at all, for the God
 Was mad that a mortal excell'd him.

CAPTAIN NOAH.

Funny, funny, funny. Fine man, Shield great at the gamut; an angel in his airs; deep, deep musician.

He carried me to the Opera once, and told me about all the Singers: Signor this, and Signor that, who squalled away at a most cat-like rate. I was not much pleased with that, but a thought struck me that pleased me wonderfully: it was, to think that the descendants of those rogues, the Romans, who beat us poor Britons about like so much Stockfish a thousand or two years ago, should be forced—hæ! ladies and gemmen—come, I must be decent—to lose, to lose—I mean, to be made eunuchs, and come a thousand miles to squall to us. Great change, wonderful change in the world! What ups and downs! Poor fellows! I pity them too. never have any children, I'm told; all dead men, blanks, blanks, cut off from the Ladies: great misfortune that! all done when young too, infants, babies. Were I served the trick, I'd go to the world's end to cut their throats, whoever did it; father or mother, uncle or aunt, godfather or godmother, I'd eunuch them, with a devil to 'em. Horrid, horrid, horrid! Mister Pope, the great Poet, hath wrote upon that Lowsyweesy (or what is the young Lady's name?) and Ablard, very fine: but I don't understand the whole, it is so wrapp'd up; but I guess, guess: a very peppery Poem, and yet all young Ladies know it by heart, yes, yes, leave them alone to find out what's what.

Joan of Naples used to have a bath under her window for the young men, where she sat and picked out those for her pleasure that she liked best. Bad, bad, she should have been put into the pillory. Ladies and gemmen, to order. A Song from Mister Bainacle

POOR TOM

Now the rage of battle's ended,
And the French for mercy call,
Death no more, in smoke and thunder,
Rode upon the vengeful ball

Yet what brave and loyal heroes
Saw the sun of morning bright,
Ah! condemned by cruel Fortune,
Ne'er to see the star of night

From the main-deck to the quarter,
Strew'd with limbs and wet with blood,
Poor Tom Halyard, pale and wounded,
Crawl'd where his brave Captain stood

“ O my noble Captain ! tell me,
 Ere I’m boine a corpse away,
 Have I done a Seaman’s duty
 On this great and glorious day ?

“ Tell a dying Sailor truly,
 For my life is fleeting fast ,
 Have I done a Seaman’s duty ?
 Can there aught my memory blast ?”—

“ Ah, brave Tom !” the Captain answer’d,
 “ Thou a Sailor’s part hast done
 I revere thy wounds with sorrow,
 Wounds by which our glory’s won.”—

“ Thanks, my Captain · life is ebbing
 Fast from this deep-wounded heart ;
 But, oh ! grant one little favour,
 Ere I from the world depart —

“ Bid some kind and trusty Sailor,
 When I’m number’d with the dead,
 For my dear and constant Catherine,
 Cut a lock from this poor head

“ Bid him to my Catherine give it,
Saying, hers alone I die
Kate will keep the mournful present,
And embalm it with a sigh

“ Bid him too this letter bear her,
Which I’ve penn’d with panting breath :
Kate may ponder on the writing,
When the hand is cold in death.”—

“ That I will,” replied the Captain,
“ And be ever Catherine’s friend ”—
“ Ah ! my good and kind Commander,
Now my pains and sorrows end ”

Mute towards his Captain, weeping,
Tom upraised a thankful eye ;
Grateful then, his foot embracing,
Sunk with “ Kate ” on his last sigh

Who, that saw a scene so mournful,
Could without a tear depart ?
He must own a savage nature ;
Pity never warm’d his heart.

Now, in his white hammock shrouded
 By the kind and pensive Crew,
 As he dropp'd into the ocean,
 All burst out, "Poor Tom, adieu!"

CAPTAIN NOAH.

Charming, charming! a thousand pities such a fine fellow should be meat for the sharks Brook Watson legs are good enough for them Pity, pity! but it can't be helped, a Man is no more than a Sparrow with God A strange World this! very bad World indeed, in some parts · hogg'd the moment it was launch'd, a number of rotten timbers I think it must have been built by contract, yes, in some private dock or other, sure as fate But we can't help it. if the ship be leaky, we must keep the pumps a-going. All's one a hundred years hence What business have we to die? Fine fellow Xerxes, when he cried to think that in a few years not a man of all his armies would be alive! Fine thought, pretty thought, natural too! I should like to have shaken a paw with Xerxes, poor fellow! but then I should not have been here, Ladies and gemmen, to enjoy your good company. To order, to order: Master

Squibb, tumble up ; examine your wallet, and give us something good.

SQUIBB.

My dear friend, my hearty honest Host of the Hoy, principal Proprietor of the Prince of Packets, upon my soul I have nothing to offer, not a bit of a Ballad, not a slice of a Song, nor a tittle of a Tale, to enliven the evening, and conjure up conviviality

CAPTAIN NOAH

What ! not you, Squibb ? the Prince of Paragraph-makers, the Nabob of News, the Imp of Invention, the Lion of Learning, and the very Paper-kite of Politics ! What, you aground !

SQUIBB

Let me perish, my dear friend, if I possess a particle of power. I really, my dear friend, am as stupid as that stupid stock, my hum-drum chum, Barnaby Bufflehead, who never so much as blundered on a bon-mot.

CAPTAIN NOAH.

Come, come, no palavering me over, with "my dear friend," and "dear friend" I hate the word, there's so much hypocrisy in the world Friendship is a silent gentlewoman, makes no parade The true heart dances no hornpipes on the tongue A pox on palaver, say I, so give us something, Mister Modesty,

 if you please

SQUIBB.

Upon my honour, Captain Noah.

CAPTAIN NOAH

A bumper of salt water for Master Squibb !

SQUIBB.,

Captain Noah ! Captain Noah !

CAPTAIN NOAH

Two bumpers of salt water to Master Squibb !

SQUIBB

Upon my soul, Captain Noah, this is a very serious affair, damme

CAPTAIN NOAH

Three bumpers of salt water to Master Squibb, then hey for Coventry !

SQUIBB

Well, I'll sing, I'll sing

SONG

Dearest creature
Of all nature,
Oh ! I die, I faint, &c

CAPTAIN NOAH

Stop, for God's sake, Squibb I excuse the rest.
No Pig hung in a gate ever made a more dismal noise
no Dog ever bayed the moon so frightfully Why, zounds, my cur Dumplin should howl more musically.
and then the words; they put me in mind of that most mawkish of all mawkish stuff, the Sorrows of the Heart, baptized "a Novel." O the cursed trash !
Poor Squibb ! Why, what a difference between thee and a brother Quid-nunc that sailed with me last trip !
I mean Brass Wildfire, a piece of an editor, a fine news-hunter, would spin ten paragraphs out of one
Oh ! a dare-devil he told me all the secrets of his Pandemonium He showed me his pocket-book . rich lessons of roguery !

SQUIBB.

Then he was a rascal

CAPTAIN NOAH

He was, he was, Squibb ; but this must be said in his favour, he had candour enough to confess it. No hypocrite, no, no hypocrite He never wanted a bit of scandal, nor a breakfast, nor a dinner, nor tea, nor supper. He was a pensioner upon almost every profession he kept his feet dry by puffing a shoemaker, his legs warm by puffing a hosier, his rump and back by puffing a taylor and mercier, his head by puffing a hatter, and, being able to swill porter with the gullet of a whale, he had always a pot ready for his maw, by immortalizing an alehouse Lord, Lord ! he frightened all the Actors and Actresses out of their senses, and got half their salaries for puffs ; and then for the Singers, he made their notes tremble again, poor little Nightingales !

SQUIBB.

A scoundrel !

CAPTAIN NOAH.

True, Squibb. He used to get away all their trinkets from them ; watch-seals, rings, etwees, and sometimes a whole watch, orders for the play and opera, which he either made presents of for future dinners, or sold for ready money.

SQUIBB.

A villain !

CAPTAIN NOAH.

True, Squibb. He never wanted news at a pinch ; would spring from Dan to Beersheba in a twink. To enliven the paper, he would fly to Constantinople ; rouse the Janisaries, hang up a bashaw of three tails ; poison the grand mufti ; set fire to the seraglio ; make the ladies scamper forth in their smocks ; and the Grand Signor run like a Lamplighter, in his shirt

SQUIBB.

Fie, Captain Noah !

CAPTAIN NOAH

True as the Gospel, Squibb At another time he would jump to Algiers, put out the eyes of a young Dey, step a hundred miles into the country that refused tribute, and bring home a hundred hogsheads of ears ; step away into Egypt, and overturn a pyramid with an earthquake ; then hey for Smyrna, and kill a million or two with a plague.

SQUIBB

Captain Noah ! Captain Noah !

CAPTAIN NOAH

True, Squibb If he wanted a piece of Indian news, presto, be gone! he murdered a whole ship's crew in the Straits of Malacca, put a ship for a fortnight on her beam-ends in the Straits of Sundy, then faced about to Bengal and Madras, hopped to Seringapatam, shook down the palace about Tippoo's ears, tumbled Tippoo over the Gauts, and put out his eyes among the Mahrattas

SQUIBB

Shameful, Captain!

CAPTAIN NOAH.

All his own confession, Squibb Then he would set off for Bombay, sink the island of Elephanta in a volcano, dart through the Straits of Babelmandel, cut through the Red Sea, murder a few hordes of Arabs on the banks, demolish Suez, dash through the Desert, plunge into the Mediterranean, and set all the islands of the Archipelago in open rebellion

SQUIBB

Oh, Captain!

CAPTAIN NOAH.

True, Squibb. If he wanted to fill up, and wished for a bit of news from Jamaica, he would conjure up his old friend, the Yellow Fever, and lay you dead thirty thousand pounds-worth of Officers in one room, set the Council, Assembly, and Governor, by the ears, and transfer the seat of government from Spanish Town to Kingston, hop up among the Blue Mountains, infect young King Cudjoe with rebellion, and give the island to the Negroes.

SQUIBB

Captain Noah, fie !

CAPTAIN NOAH

True, Squibb A rare fellow ! He put a fine parcel of money into the pockets of the proprietors , quite a Filch. Oh, a blessed babe of grace ! Did a family refuse to take in the Paper to which he was a hack, he would make the father a bankrupt, the mother a bawd, the sons swindlers, and the daughters bastards, big with child by the footmen or stable-boys.

SQUIBB

Such a fellow ought to be hanged, my dear fellow.

CAPTAIN NOAH

He did, Squibb. If an author did not advertise in his Paper, he was sure to be loaded with abuse ; was “a dull hound, a thief.” Then, as for scandal, he would invent a vile tale, put it into his Paper, get the abused parties about him. “It could not be helped, he had a handsome sum for inserting it· he must live; family of children, hard times; open to all parties; nothing could be fairer, but if an answer were wished, it should be put in” Well, an answer is inserted he answers the answer, with blacker inventions, goes to the house of the scandalized party, sympathizes, promises, dines, sups, tries to debauch the wife or daughter, empties their pockets, moves off, and laughs at them as fools for not suspecting him to be a villain.

SQUIBB

Is it possible?

CAPTAIN NOAH

Yes, very possible, Squibb It is surprising that Justice Colquhoun, who has written so much upon abuse, should omit this grant of nuisances, this damned plague to society, but he was afraid, I suppose, of being stung to death by a hornet or two

SQUIBB

But we are not all alike, Captain

CAPTAIN NOAH

No, no, God forbid, God forbid · some Pigeons, and many Crows, I presume — My little lovely Lucy Languish, a Song from thy sweet lips Ladies and gemmen, Miss Languish's Song silence

THE SHEPHERD'S PIPE

Lo ! the pipe of poor Colin, mute, mute, how it lies ;
No more to be swell'd by his hopes, or his sighs !
“ Go, leave me,” said he, “ since unprired by the Fair.”
Then he wistfully flung it away in despair

Who, like Colin, could give it of rapture the sound,
Which the echoes with rapture repeated around ?
Or give it, like Colin, a soul to complain ?
And who like the Shepherd e'er gave it in vain ?

'Twas here, at the peep of the morn, that he stray'd
To sooth with its music the ear of the Maid .
'Twas here that he waked its sweet voice, to delight
(Not Philomel's sweeter) her slumber at night.

But vain were his vows, and the voice of his reed ;
The heart of poor Colin was fated to bleed
See his grave ! near yon tree his pale relics are laid,
'Mid the bower that he planted, of silence and shade

Ah ! blame not the Nymph who was deaf to his tale,
Since her heart was betroth'd to a Youth of the vale
Come, Virgins, we'll gather the flowers of the grove,
And strew on the victim of Sorrow and Love

CAPTAIN NOAH

Poor fellow ! poor fellow ! terrible disorder, love ! I think I see him now, just like Patience on a monument, smelling at grief, as the Scotchman said yes, drooping, sleeping, nodding, like the Swallows in winter on the bushes of the Thames, preparing to take a journey under water Strange, strange, that men and women only should die for love ! Dogs and cats, and other animals, never feel the passion so sensibly. Ladies and gemmen, suppose we adjourn the court for a handful of minutes, take a peep at Mistress Moon, and put a few questions to the weather

To this proposal we all agreed, Captain Noah leading the way up to the deck

Thus, as the flocks amid the valley feed,

Behold ! the Bellwether (the rover),

Like mortals, fickle, takes it in his head

To taste a neighbouring field of clover .

He dares th' opposing hedge, he beats it hollow,
Mounts, leaps, and 'all the tribe of fleeces follow

THE MIDDLESEX ELECTION;

OR,
POETICAL EPISTLES,

IN THE DEVONSHIRE DIALECT,

BY MR JOSEPH BUDGE, IN LONDON,

TO

LORD ROLLE, AT WEYMOUTH

VOAKES talk a deal of Fox, Burdett,
And Sheridan, and make me sweat
To hear their lees, I doubt mun
Zome cry mun up az thoff divine,
And if they do in manners shine,
I wish they'd carr't about mun

A PRELIMINARY DISCOURSE

THOU must know, O most courteous Reader! that “Mr Joseph Budge” is not a fictitious name, a mere creation of the fertile brain of me, Peter Pindar, Esquire. but the actual name, real name, of a Man and a Hero, who was the actual Squire, and Attendant, and Mentor, of my great Countryman, Lord Rolle; and who fought with him in his Irish campaigns, and partook of the various skirmishes and battles that now illuminate the pages of History, and immortalize the present Reign. Mr Budge, ambitious of cutting a figure on Parnassus as well as in the field, and resolving to give his Patron a specimen of his great historico-poetical abilities, found a subject in the Middlesex Election

Joseph being therefore on the spot, and ~~an~~ an eyewitness to the scene, felt a divine impulse and, like the Mantuan Bard, exclaimed, Paulo majora canamus, and became the historian of a most important event. The Letters were written at the once-much-frequented house of a worthy Peruke-maker in Wyche-street; and sent to his Lordship at Weymouth, enjoying the smiles of his Sovereign, as well as the inspiring and salutary fragrance of sea-weed and mud. In respect to the execution, Mr. Joseph Budge seems to possess a genius very much like that of Mr John Ploughshare, of Moiton Hamstead, in Devonshire, who a few years since wrote a Poem of extraordinary merit and celebrity the same provincial expression, the same spirit, the same happy vein of humour, the same mode of thinking, would induce us to imagine that they must be the inspirations of the same genius; ovo prognatus eodem.

P. P.

MR. JOSEPH BUDGE

TO

MY LORD ROLLE.

LETTER I.

CONTENTS

A Lick at the City of London—The Cleanhness of the Londoners compared with Mr Budge's Acquaintance in the Country, who admit Pigs and Poultry into their Parlours—The Population of London described by a stinking Comparison—Observation on the Ladies of London, with a wicked Suggestion of Mr Budge—Mr Budge imitateth Virgil, in his fourth Eclogue to a Mister Pollio, who exclaimeth, "Paulo majora canamus"—Mr Budge hinteth at the Middlesex Election—professeth to write the Truth, and nothing but the Truth—He complimenteth his Lordship on his great Connexions at Weymouth, and Powers of exciting, oyal Risibility—Mr Budge entereth on the Subject of the Election—defieth Sir Francis Biddett, and maketh sure of Conquest—exulteth over Sir Francis, with a Quotation from the Devil to a Crab—abuseth Sir Francis in rather an indelicate Comparison—applaudeth Mainwaring for close Adherence to magistratral Duty, and his Excellency Governor Aris—A bold Attack on Sir Francis—The Popularity of Mainwaring at the Alehouses—The Licentiousness and unparalleled Impudence of Sir Francis's Mob before the Palace Gate—Mr Budge's heroic Resolution—He vows to cudgel Sir Francis, and fight any of his Friends—Mr Budge boasteth—praiseth Mainwaring's Speech in part, but not in toto—Mr Budge quitteth the Subject of the Election, for a Conversation with our Ex munster, Pitt—Mr Pitt's melancholy Answer to Mr. Budge's kind Inquiry—Mr. Budge's fine original Comparison between the Court Game of Put, and the Country Game of Pitt—Mr Budge commendeth Lord Rolle for adhering to Mr Pitt, as he was the Author of his Lordship's unexpected Elevation.

AND now, my Lord, I've zot me down
 To write viom theese perdigious town,
 Vill'd with more sin than grace
 Learge az Jerusalem, I'm tould,
 Aye, or az Babylon of ould,
 Zo wonderzom the place.

Exter's a fool to't, let me zay,
 And zo is Plimmoth evry day,
 The howzes high and big,
 And in the parlours too, zo neat,
 Where all the Gentry munch their meat,
 I've never zeed a *pig.

No, nor a Hin†, making a rout,
 With Chucken rennin in and out,
 Hunting about the 1oom,
 Nor Goose-checks, no, nor gabbling Ducks,
 Flapping their wings all wet and mucks,
 And quaakin vor a crume.

* In many of the farm-houses and villages, pigs and poultry are generally parlour boarders

† Hen

Things be quite different here, my Lord,
They be, they be, upon my word
 Fine clath upon the vloors ;
Fine chairs, fine pectures pon the wall,
Fine glasses in the sarvants'-hall,
 Brass locks upon the doors

O Lord ! my Lord, I'm in a maze,
I do so look about and glaze,
 Just leek a slinking Hare :
And than the Vokes, Lord, what a heap !
Thick as the Meggots pon a sheep .
 I'm always in a fair.

And than the Ladies, zuch a rout,
Walking and gigling zo about,
 All in their silks and lace,
And, though zo fine, they make me stap,
Geeing my shoulder a small rap,
 And zmling in my face

But meend, my Lord, that I've be tould
Thoose gentry may be bort and sold
 Leek Bullocks or leek Sheep ,

And, thoff zo handzom, vor small pins
One now and then mert* buy their skins
How wonderzomly cheap †

But now, my Lord, voi gerter things,
Vor now I'll screw my fiddle-strings,
Forsooth, a leet† bit higher.
The vokes nere thoft that Middlesex
Would rear its head, the Curt to vex,
But the fat is in the vire.

And now, my Lord, you may believe
I shaant be laughin in my sleeve,
And telling packs o' Lees,
And yet, zo vur az I can spy,
From London people's mouths they fly
In swarms, like swarms of Bees

Therevore, whatever I shall write,
No soul shall zay it is not right,
They shaant zay no zich thing
And if I tell the truth, and zo,
I'll gee ye leave, my Lord, to show
My letter to the King.

* Might.

† Little

Vor well I know that evry day
 You've zomething clever to'n to zay,
 You be so wondrous frisky;
 Vor when at Exter, if you meend,
 You often teel'd un all an eend*
 To laugh leek any pisky†.—

Well now, my Lord, than to begin,
 The Curt voke wodn't gee a pin
 T'ensure their man Mainwaring,
 When (who'd a thort it?) fath and soul‡,
 Out leap'd Sir Francis vrom his hole,
 And zot us all a staring

But never meend, we baant afeard,
 Vor, Sir, az zur as I've a heard,
 We all shall ha our wish.

* To place in a state of much expectation.

† When his Majesty did the city of Exeter the honour of a visit, Mister Jan Rolle (afterwards his lordship) endeavoured to crack a few jokes in the Royal presence, to display to the people his familiarity with Crowned Heads. One was most unsuccessful, as it carried stronger marks of impudence than wit, for, on introducing a Country Clergyman at the levee, "An please your Medgesty," cried the Squire, "Passon —, a very good subject, and, leek your Medgesty, hath made a howzevull o' cheldren."

‡ A small oath.

Burdett wull zoon look dev'lish blue;
And zo we shaant much meend the crew,
No more than stinking vish

But still to make shor o' the game,
The Curt hunth out the blind and lame,
And mainly stir their stumps :
Zo that I think the game is shor,
If Fortune isn't a damn'd old whoie ,
As we have got the trumps

Burdett waant do, my Lord, he waant .
He can't succeed , he can't, he can't :
He conquer us, the scab !
He, that ne'er renn'd a race before !
“ Yes, you're a racer, to be sure,”
Cried the Devil to the Crab.

Mainwaring is a clever Justice ;
In he, Lord, evry body's trust is :
Burdett's a ratten medler
Volks shud tern round and zee their backs,
And meend old proverbs , Little packs
Become a little pedlar.

He zaid he did not care a lowze
About his setting in the Howze ;

But that my Lord's a hum .
 Zee how he begth and stirth his zell ,
 A fellow must love bacon well,
 To kiss the old sow's bum.

Burdett shud cast accounts at Coots's ;
 The counting-howze his genius soots,
 And there he may be saving
 There he may sheen, and be a king ;
 A handsaw is a useful thing,
 But never made for shaving

Mainwaring is a clever man,
 Doth evry bit o' good he can,
 Az evry one believes ;
 Attendth the office very duly,
 Never takth bribes, behaving truly,
 And hangth a power o' thieves.

And then ~~a hath a power~~ o' spies,
 To zee that no rebellion rise,
 And markth down all black sheep ;
 And thoose he dooth suspect, he zens
 To Aris, 'to wall up his pens,
 And there in clover sleep.

They've got the Sheriffs, whose damn'd droats
Approve their own poor ratten votes,
While ours they dare deny all .
Cunning enew there, to secure ye ,
A fox should not be of the jury
Upon a goose's trial.

And should Sir Francis git the day,
Lord ! what will all the country zay ?
Why, that it gitt' th a rogue.
Burdett and Middlesex agree !
Agosh ! a marriage it will be
Between a Cat and Dog.

Look to the public howzes all
I've beed into mun gert and small,
Drink'd beer from evry tap ,
Mainwaring's health went always round,
With zich a noble clattering sound,
With zich a glorious clap !

Think o' their impudence, his crew
They zet up zich a hallebulloo,
Close by the Palace-doors !
Just leek a pack o' Lions roar'd,
They did, the dogs , they did, my Lord,
The saucy sons of whores.

I wish that I'd a beed the King,
I'd a made jobbernowls to ring,
 And cool'd mun var ther bias
The Maids of Honour should a got
In evry hand a chumber-pot,
 And wash'd mun all leek shags

Vokes said it was a burnin shame,
Disgrace, too, to the English name,
 To zet up zich a howl,
The soldiers shud a help'd the Crown,
And shet mun just like sparrows down,
 And sent mun to the Dowl

Zome zay, ther gang have sense and larnin
Why then, it is, to my disarnin,
 Good wine in filty flasks,
Or, if you please, my Lord, good beer,
Zich as you brew in Devonsheer,
 Put into stinking casks

I'll do my best to make mun zick
I daant know that my oaken stick
 Wull do much execution;
But, zich as 'tis, they're welcome to 't,
And with my oaken stick, to boot,
 Good will and resolution.

Agosh' I long to try a bout
With zom o' Burdett's rabble rout,
I'd quickly pug their guts
I'd gee mun zick a lammin* lick,
I'd make mun of elections zick,
I'd gee mun all the butts

If courage wull but win the day,
By gosh, my Lord, I'll nack away,
I'll zoon be in their beef
Now if I could Sir Francis meet,
All by his zelf, and in the street,
Dam un I'd whap† the thief

On e'er a one o' mun, agosh,
A pack o' saucy trumpery trosh,
That studdy nort but treason;
On zick rare fellows let me looze,
Zoon as I'd kill a duck or gooze,
I'd sliver evry weasen

I'll answer, I'd nack down, my zell,
Iss, to the ground, I'd waage, I'd fell
A dezzin to my share ·

* Violent

† Beat.

When I'm put to 't, Dowl take my skin !
Life is not worth a grammar's pin ,
I'm mad az a March hare

And that Burdett may vend perchaunce
I think that we shall make un daunce,
Or hugely I'm mistaken ,
Agosh ! az I zee metters go
(And peity well I simm to know),
The rogues waant save their bacon

Mainwaring made a peity speech,
As vur's my judgment well coud reach ,
And what he coud, he dood
He made poor work o' Cold-bath howze ,
The trap that wisht to catch a mowze,
Shud never smell of blood.—

My Lord, I giss you wish to hear
What vokes pallaver here and there,
All bout Squire Pitt's disgrace
Ah, Lord ! poor disappointed fellow,
I daant believe he gitt'th zo mellow,
Now zince he lost his place

I zeed'n in Saint James's street ,
Close by his howze, we chanc'd to meet .

“ Ah, Budge !” zaid he to me,
 “ How doth Lord Rolle do, by the bye ?” —
 “ Hearty’s a farmer, Sir,” zaid I,
 “ And how be you, Sir, hæ ?” —

“ Why, Budge,” zaid he (but looking blue),
 “ Thank God, that I be well enew,
 Considerin evry thing ”
 He zaid it too in zich a way,
 As plain as thoff I heard un zay,
 “ Oh, Budge, I’ve lost the king !”

You know, my Lord, when, in wet weather,
 You and me play’d at Put together,
 The king would win the knave ;
 The queen, you know, coud do zo too .
 Slam, off a went, without more ado ;
 Nort could his bacon save.

But, Lord ! in Curts ’tis alter’d quite ;
 Ev’n I, with my poor blinking sight,
 Zee quite a diff’rent thing
 No there, agosh ! ’tis not the same ;
 Vor there they backwards play the game,
 And knaves can win a king.

I speak not in Squire Pitt's despraise ,
Because you simm'd to leeke his ways,
 Though by zum vokes abhorr'd
You, to be shore, wan't let'n down,
Who did so worry the poor Crown
 To dub ye a gert lord

For hadn't it beed for Mister Pitt,
I daant think we had got the wit
 To get the pretty feather
And let me zay t' ye, fath and soul,
You still had beed but poor Squire Rolle,
 Nether one thing nor tether —

That is, my Lord, nothing at all,
Nor high nor low, nor gert nor small,
 In short, what vokes call fudge
And now, my Lord, by the next post,
I'll write if things be winn'd or lost.—
 Y^rour sarvant, JOSEPH BUDGE

LETTER II

CONTENTS

Mr Budge proudly triumpheth in the Prospect of Success—is inclined to curse Sir Francis and his Party—is jealous of Mr Fox, Lord William Russel, and Sheridan—describeth the Cavalcade—He is witty on the Virtues of the Patriots—Mr Budge is violent towards the Ladies that wished well to the Cause of Sir Francis—Very ungallant is Mr Budge indeed—he enumerateth the Duties of Women—Mr Budge commenceth an Attack on the charming Duchesses that employed their Interest for Sir Francis—draweth a Comparison between the Duchesses, and a great Lady and a great Man.—He giveth an Account of an odd Fellow that came every Day, in a Lawyer's Dress, before the Hustings, and harangued the Counsellors of Manwaring (viz Sylvester and Maddox), and Mr Manwaring, the worthy Candidate himself—Mr Budge greatly hurt at the Exhibition of Irons, Whips, &c, the insignia of his Excellency Governor Aris, of the Cold-bath Fields Jail, commonly called the Bastille—He wisheth this Bastille the Fate of his great Brother and Predecessor of France—Mr. Budge displeased at his Treatment by the Mob—The Aperture of Mr Budge's loyal Mouth, unfortunately filled with a Cabage-stump—treated in a most ungentlemanly Manner—hustled—robbed—He reprovethe the Mob.—Mr. Budge's Conversation with one of the Mob, more consequential than edifying—Mr Budge concludeth in a Strain of Exultation and Defiance, with less Sublimity than Isaiah on the Downfall of the King of Babylon, but with equal Rage and Abuse

THINGS go on zwimmingly, my Lord;
Dree hundred votes ahead we've scor'd.
Dree hundred ' aye, and more.

Had I ten thousand pounds, d'ye zee,
I wuddn't one brass vurdin gee
To make th' Election shone

To help a lame dog, there's that Fox,
And there's Lord William, with a pox,
And Sheridan the Devil
Aye, let mun go, but poor Burdett
Wull vend to's cost, that zich a set
Wull gee his corn the weevil.

They ride to Brentford to harangue
Lord ! how I lang to shet* the gang !
They make me look dam zour,
With gert good will, vor theese black job,
I'd take my wetch out o' my fob,
And cuss mun by the hour.

In coaches vull as they could stuff,
Dam mun, off zot the Blue and Buff,
Parading dloo the Strand,
Zich holding up of derty paws,
Zich waving hats, and zich huzzas,
Enough to stun the land !

With mizzick too, God damn their bones,
Crouds, hoins, and organs, with their groans,
Zich as we hear in charch
Now, had they ax'd me vor a tune,
Well had Iss* vitted mun, and zoon,
I'd gid mun the Rogue's March.

Amongst the derty lowzy ciew,
There's zich a touse and hallibulloo,
Enew to stun Ould Nick,
With zich a mob, too, to their tails,
Peek'd, I suppose, vrom all the jails,
Leek meggots all zo thick

Vokes talk a deal of Fox, Burdett,
And Sheridan, and make us sweat
To hear their lees†, I doubt mun
Zome cry mun up as thoff divine,
And, if they do in manners shine,
I wish they'd carr't about mun

Peepel shud practise what they know,
Or where's the use of it, I trow?
No, no, I'm not the fool

* I.

† Lies

To think that they have much to spare ;
 Vor he that goeth vor manners there,
 Goeth to a goat vor wooll

The Women too, the bissy jades !
 Zome o' mun gentlevokes, zome trades,
 Push vorth their polls from windors,
 And toss their hankitchers about
 I wish I had the rabble out
 One minute in my gunders ;—

I'd gee the devils zich a squeeze,
 I'd make mun look zo small as meeze*
 Well chow'd by our ould cat
 Iss, iss, I'd gee mun zich a grip ;
 I'd bang mun well, had I a whip :
 I'll warrant mun vor that.

Iss, iss, I'd make the Madams squall ·
 I'd lerrick† mun ; iss, one and all :
 I'd pent their pretty skins
 What bissens‡ have they to rant and stare,
 And hoist their nackens‡ in the air,
 And show their nasty grins⁴

* Mice

† Beat.

‡ Business

‡ Handkerchiefs

What bissens ha Wimmen wey Election ;
That shoud be always in subjection,
And know we be their lords ?
Zwunds, let mun meend their howze and stitching,
And net be vor Election itching :
We want none o' their words.

Their bissens is to wash and mend,
And car and vetch, and Husbands tend,
Make puddins, pies, and tarts ,
Zee that their Maidens meend their broom,
To zweep the spiders, cleanse the room,
And wash the shefts and shirts.

The Ditchesses be mainly blamed .
Vokes zay, they mert be all ashamed
To trollop with the men
My Lord, vor sartinty I know
Thoose Ditchesses must never show
The nose at Curt agen.

If well they wud their zels demean,
Let mun take pattern from the Queen,
That jewel o' a oman ;
Zo good, zo generous to the Nation ;
Zo knd to evry poor relation,
A thing zo main uncommon.

In Windsor when there was zich bustle
About a Member, zich a tussel,

Did she go round to vokes,
And zay, " If you daant vote vor Powny,
Meend, not a vurdin of my money
Shall go to you vor smocks ?"

Did she run round her zell, and Maids,
To shopkeepers and wother trades,
And moil, and make a fuss ?
Zay to the Mercer, " Maister Inkle,"
And to the Vishman, " Maister Wrinkle,
You geef your vote vor us.

" We be great peepels, Maister Inkle ;
We be rish peepels, Maister Wrinkle,
And haf a goote long puss ;
An dan we haf grete power, mine Gote !
Now dink pon diss ; an give your vote,
Vidout more vords, vor us "—

Or did vokes hear zich zounds az thoose ?
" Must vote, must vote, mustn't refuse :
No, no, hæ, hæ ? no, no
Won't buy, won't buy a broom or mop ;
Hæ, hæ ? won't recommend your shop .
My borough, must, must be so

“ My borough this, hæ, hæ, Tape, Tape?
Shan’t come and buy my coat a cape,
Shan’t purchase at your shop.
Must vote for Powny, must, must vote;
Or mind, I never buy a coat.
No, no, man, not one slop.”—

My Lord, you tould me in your laast,
You wish’d to know bout all that past:

My Lord, now you shall hear
A fellow, but we daant know who,
Belonging’ to the wother crew,
Comed vore, and talk’d dam queer;

Comed vore the hustins evry day,
And leek a Lawyer talk’d away,
In a lawyer’s wig and gown:
Made our poor Counsel cursed zick,
Tich’d Counsellor Maddox to the quick,
And nack’d Sylvester down:

Zayd to Mainwaring zich hard things,
Zwear’d that he was a tool o’ Kings,
And kiss’d the tail o’ Pitt;

“ That az vor glory, or disgrace,
Az long as he could hold his place,
He did not care a nit.—

“ That az vor Englishmen, he thort
Twas best their commons should be short,
A gang of saucy knaves ;
That geeves, and whips, and little met,
Wud manners (what they wanted) get,
Full good enew vor slaves ”

The varmint had got wit at will,
And gid the Lawyers rich a pill,
Though a was'nt worth a shilling .
I must zay this, I vow to God,
A was zo commical a toad,
He zot us all a grilling.

Maddox stood buff, and stood it out,
Though soundly pull'd, fath, by the snout ;
He veel'd zom ugly blows .
But poor Sylvester, he, poor soul,
Just leek a mowze, sneak'd to his hole,
And never show'd his nose.

I wish your Lordship had be there,
To zee the saucy dog, and hear
Zome lees, and zome things true :
His Wit was leek a two-edged Sword ;
And I do really think, my Lord,
He was a match vor you.

My Lord, it nearly tern'd my brains,
To zee the vettters, whips, and chains,
They carr'd about the town :
Sound of "Bastille" makth menmy quiver,
And petrifieth then very liver ,
I wish the place was down.

Vor why?—becaze tis sich a name,
I shud not grieve to zee't in flame.
I'm cruelly afeerd
The chains wull do the cause no good .
They push'd mun nearly as they could
Up to Mainwaring's beard.

My Lord, I daant leek Lendon ways .
Vor, hapning mongst the mob to praise
Mainwaring, zounds, at once,
One scoundrel gid my tail a kick,
Anether, with a slammin stick,
Comed souse upon my sounce.

Tis true, my pate was roundly maul'd :
I open'd than my mouth, and bawl'd
" Mainwaring and his cause !"
Bevore I closed my mouth again,
A rascal iamm'd, with mert and main,
A cole-stump in my jaws

And than they hustled me about,
Drode me along (the rabble rout),
And, what was worse (odd chuck it !),
Zoon as I got up vrom the ground,
Where I lied sprawling, Lord ! I vound
The dogs had peek'd my pucket.

My pucket-hankicher and gloves
I neatly lost between their shoves,
(Confound mun, with a pox !)
A corkscrew, and a penny bun ;
And, ah ! (the worst of all the fun)
My poor old backy-box.

" You ought to be ashamed," zaid I
To one o' mun that stude close by,
" To sarve one zich a trick,
Wud Exter vokes ha sarv'd one zo ?"
Quoth I to'n : " no, they wud'n ; no :
They'd zooner zee Old Nick "

Zo then they laugh'd : pon which quoth I,
" I'll tell my Lord of this by'n by,
And zend ye all to jail."—
Quoth one, and winking with his eye,
" What Lord dost mean ?"—" Lord Rolle," zaid I :
" He'll make ye drap your tail."—

"Lord Rollè," quoth he, "may come and kiss
 "My"—"What?" quoth I.—Quoth he, "Why this,"

And then he tack'd his rump.
 Zaid I, "I'll tel'n o't, be ashor'd;
 Dam me if I daant tell my Lord,
 And he shall make thee jump."

Zo zays the rogue, "With all my soul,
 And give my sarvice to Lord Rolle;
 I've heerd a deal about'n."—
 Zaid I, "No harm, ye dog, dost zee."—
 "No, nor no good, by God," zaid he.—
 Lord! how I lang'd to clout'n!

But let mun bluster it away;
 Let the poor Jackasses all bray,
 Their bacon waant be saved:
 Their poverty is plain enew,
 The Devils wull zoon ha all the crew:
 Bald pates be quickly shaved.

Stap, stap a leet, and we shall zee
Who will the lords and measters be,
 They'll ha no cause to laugh:
 There wull be bellowing enow;
 Egosh! exactly leek a Cow
 Just parted vrom her Calf.

POSSKREP.

WULL ye be pleased, my Lord, to go,
Jest run to Gloucester Lodge, or zo,

You know tis but a stap ;
And ax the sarvants, they can tell,
If any old clothes they've got to zel :
Becaze I've got a chap

Or candle-eeends, or zome rich thing,
Belonging to the Queen or King,

Wud vet a perty penny.
Pray trat away, and ax, my Lord ;
And be zo kind to zend me word,
My Lord, if there be enny

I'm told old gowns, zome good, zome bad,
And cheap too, may sometimes be had,
Smocks, hankitchers, and shoes ,
And wother sorts of ladies' geer,
Little the worse, I'm told, wor wear,
That vokes may peek and chuse.

Pray go, and try your hand, my Lord ,
Ax Lady Rolle, and zend me word,
Vor all I zay is true :

I want zome finery for my Dame ;
Zo that, my Lord, I'll do the same
Vor Lady Rolle and you.

And could I get a King's old wig,
Loid ! I shud look zo fine and big,
The parish wud zo stare !
And, as the man's upon the spot,
Ax Curnel Gwyn if he hath got
Zome babby-clothes to spare.

I think I have no more to zay,
But that my Dame and I both pray
Vor your and Madam's soul ;
And hopes (if we may crack a joke)
That Exter and the Devonshire voke
May never want a Roll.

LETTER III

CONTENTS

Mister Budge seemeth in a most terrible Funk about the Election—prognosticateth woefully—Mr. Budge talketh mercifully of his Excellency Governor Aris—repeateth a short and pithy Speech of the Mob to the Soldiers that guarded Governor Aris's Castle, also the loyal and brave Reply of the Soldiers to the Mob, proving themselves to be a Sort of State-machines—Mr Budge panteth the Abhorrence of the People to Governor Aris's Dwelling and Jail, and his Mode of treating his Prisoners—Mr Budge very impartially summeth up the Matter, and subscribeth to the Punishment of Governor Aris, provided his Guilt can be fully established—The same Impartiality likewise in respect to Mr Pitt, the great Friend and Patron of Governor Aris—Mr Budge breaketh out into Strains of Pity—Mr Budge most naturally professeth a Scepticism (that is to say, doubts) concerning the Cruelty of Governor Aris—Mr Budge most heroically supporteth Mister Mainwaring, with his poetical Cat o'nine-tails, belaboureth the Backs of his Calumniators.—He triumpheth in his own Discernment, and becometh positively vain-glorious—Mr Budge descanteth sensibly on the Fallibility of Rumour, and the sad Consequence of believing every idle Report, bringing in Kings and Bishops, and the Lord knows who—Mr Budge talketh of Scandal—not even the most virtuous, the most meek, the most humble, the most economical Lady of the Land, free from the Aspersions of Scandal.—Mr Budge counselleth Sir Francis, and concludeth most epigrammatically

O LORD, my Lord! Lord, what d'ye think?

Our cause, I fear, beginn' th to stink;

But God Almeaty knows

Tis thort by menny that Burdett
Will gee the Justice a damn'd sweat,
And zend'n to the crows.

Zome zay, Burdett wull git the field
The mob vor'n all be mad and weeld,
They doat upon'n zo ;
Because he mounth the stage, and rails,
Forsooth, against Bastilles and jails,
And wantn to lye mun low :

And nack up Aris, if they can ;
Zome zay, a very honest man,
That keepth a sharp look out ;
That watch'th his prisners leek a Hawk,
And dothn't care a fig for voke.—
All very right, no doubt.

Tis zaid his jailbirds all complain,
And daant admire his whip and chain,
Nor Hole as black as Soot :
But Aris swearth they may be damn'd ;
Into the hole they shall be ramm'd,
If he thinkth rert to do't.

Mob wantn to tear un all to rags ;
And pent “ No Bastille ” pon their flags,

And just leek Tigers growl,
 And want to gee the jaulbn d dogs
 The vlesh of cows, and calves, and hogs,
 And dainty vish and vowl

And than they to the Zoldiers zaid,
 " O ye geit fools ! Oh what a head,
 To guard theese place ' vor who ?
 Why, if ye dare speak out your meend,
 In a veew minutes ye wull veend,
 The place was bilt for you."

But twudn't do : the Zoldiers zed,
 " That by their trade they got their bread,
 And lived upon the land."
 And than they answer'd very well,
 " That if they were zent off vor Hell,
 They must obey command "

And yet the peeple cuss Bastille ;
 Zomthing about that place they veel,
 - That gall'th and mak'th mun shiver :
 In short, my Lord, they hate the name,
 And wish it, vrom their souls, in flame,
 And damn the poor man's liver.

Aris, the Governor they call'n,
Their itching vingers itch to maul'n,
 They zay he is zo cruel ;
Stuffth prisners in a vile old hole ;
Crammth men together, cheek by jowl,
 And geeth mun water-gruel

Flogg'th mun az twere zo menny dogs ,
Call'th mun zich names, az though twere hogs ,
 And this he doth vor sport.—
Now this is what the peeple zay ,
It maant be true, and yet it may .
 Then let the knave be cort.

Than let un veel what wothers veel,
In theese most horrible Bastille,
 And drink as wothers drink ,
And eat the trade that wothers eat,
And sweat in holes as wothers sweat,
 And stink as wothers stink.

If Aris be that cruel dog,
E'en let'n suffer vor a rogue ;
 A potcrook let'n veel :
I'd gee'n of whip his belly vull ;
I'd make un bellow leek a Bull,
 And sken un leek an Eel.

And, if Squire Pitt upholdth us in it,
I'd run and tear away, theeze minute,

His howze about his ears .

I grieve to think on the poor souls
That groan amidst their dirty holes,

And wash mun with their tears

But I daan't take it in my head
To credit evry thing that's zed ;

No, no, all is not Gospel .

People tell *hummer*s evry hour ;
Vor which, if I had got the pow'r,

I'd cool mun in a hoss-pool.

Maister Mainwaring's much abuzed,
Most greevously for things accused,

By all the dowlish pack :

E'en let mun all their poison spit ;
My Lord, there is no wooll zo whit,

That a dyer caan't make black.

They try to make the World believe,
He glorieth in a whip and geeve,

And things that can torment ;

And when that Aris is attack'd,
He's always by Mainwaring back'd,

And so scapeth punishment.

I know who's who, and what vokes be;
I haan't yet lost the power to zee,
 No more than that o' veeling
I never make a Gooze a Swan;
A thief may be a gentleman,
 That git'th estates by stealing.

I can distinguish Straw vrom Hay,
Can tell a Cuckoo from a Jay,
 A Peacock vrom a Starling;
Dogs from a Pig that's in the looze,
A Christian vrom a pack o' Jews,
 A Yaffer* vrom a Yarling

I baan't so mazed, to put belief
In evry dirty lying thief:
 It mak'th my hair to bristle.
Zom peeple gee themselves gert airs,
Zay evry thing besides their pray'rs;
 And thoose, agosh! they whistle.

If one believed in evry thing,
God bless his Majesty the King,
 He'd look a little blue:

If zich be martyrs to a hum,
Lord ! then, my Lord, what wud become
Of zich as me and you ?

And than how wud our Bishops stand,
And half the Parsons of the land ?
Scandal's a fine keen blade ;
He meet'th with zomething evry day,
And mainly cutt'th and hack'th away,
And simm'th to know his trade.

That vartuous Lady, our good Queen,
Zo humble, and zo neat and clean,
Caan't even scape the mucks :
The World wull always zomething zay,
To take a body's name away ;
Odd rat their leeing chucks !

But zee ! with all their leeing ait,
They dare not vall upon her heart,
But vall upon her nose,
About her handkitchers and stuff,
And aprons vull of dirty snuff,
And how her nose she blows

And than they talk of poor relations,
And tell zich lees, Lord ! nations, nations ;

O Lord ' iss, lees galore* :
 Lees that a body almost veels ;
 Making one's Hair stand up, leek Queels
 Upon a hadgy-boai

Let Burdett meend his countin-howze,
 And know his zell to be a mowze,
 Or zoon he'll be a ballet ,
 Let'n be humble, zuck his paws .
 A disell†, by an ass's jaws,
 Is thoft a pretty sallet.

Charles Fox and he may notes compare,
 What one wull zay the tether'll zware,
 And zo they stand haranguing ;
 And try to blend us all, d'ye zee
 Iss, iss, leek bells they all agree ;
 Want nothing now but hanging.

* In abundance.

† Thistle.

LETTER IV

CONTENTS

Great Doubts and discouraging Presentment in the Mind of Mister Budge, who seemeth not to like the Posture of Affairs —He is hurt and offended at a Kind of Triumph among some of Sir Francis's Party —Mister Budge comforteth himself with Similes drawn from Cock-fighting and Hunting —Mister Budge meeteth his Lordship's good Friend Pitt, of whom he giveth a most melancholy Account no Nod from the King, no Curtsey from the Queen, and the Avenues of Saint James's shut —Mister Pitt not in total Despondence —Mister Budge seeth Mister Pitt in a broad Stare on Saint James's Clock, and Saint James's Palace —Mister Budge's deep Reflections on the Mutability of Fortune, with a beautiful and original Comparison —Mister Budge more than suspecteth Mister Pitt's boasted Patriotism and Disinterestedness, from the Circumstance of oppressing the Nation with Pensions for his Tools, and Wives and Mothers of his Tools, at the Time of his Dismissal —Mister Budge exhibiteth a splendid Account of Mister Pitt's Table.—He concludeth wittily.

My Lord, I daant leek things to-day
 Things look dam quare, as I may zay ;
 Zomething is in the wind ,
 Zome ambuscade , zome mine, I fear,
 To whisk us all into the air,
 As var az I can vind.

Odswinge, my Lord! we weer long jaws ;
 We summ to hold out tiger-claws,

Without the pow'r of pinching.
 Our foes, the refugees of jails,
 I'm much afeard, wull clip our nails .
 Our corps, my Lord, simm'th flinching.

The Dowl the dirty rogues confound '
 They simm more bould, simm gettin ground ;
 Zich impudence they show '
 " We be cock-sure," the knaves all zay ;
 " Iss, iss, cock-sure to git the day "—
 And zo they peertly crow.

But let mun clow, and flap their wings ,
 We must not simm to meend thoose things ;
 Battles baant got by crowing
 Foxes and hares baant catch'd by nouse,
 By huntin-horns, and yowlin boys,
 By hollowing and blowing.

Zo let us put our trust in God :
 And hope that he hath got a rod,
 A handsome one, in pickle ;
 To warm their pretty little sides ,
 To please their nice and tender hides,
 And gee a pretty tuckle

My Lord, I've zeed Squire Pitt again ;
He shaked his head, and simm'd in pain
Bout Mainwaring's election .
He shrink'th his shulders, wish'th un well ;
But, vur az I can zee and tell,
Caan't gee un much protection

Vor Pitt his zell, I vend, my Lord,
Caan't git vrom one Gert Man a word ;
You know who tis I mean :
No, nor a syllable, I'm tould,
No, truly, not for love nor gold,
Vrom his old friend the Queen.

Agosh ! Saint James's doors be barr'd ,
And that, you'll zay, is cruel hard
But Pitt is still in hopes ;
Stoutly resolv'th to risk his all,
To storm the fortress, mount the wall
By ladders or by ropes

I zee un both by day and night
A look'th a mallancholy sprite ,
Zo zad, zo woe-begone !
He hath most damnably been dish'd ;
And zo must look confounded wish'd ,
When all is zaid and done.

Zome days I zee un go an airing,
And in the streat I've zeed un staring
Against Saint James's clock ,
And when the yard I zee un spy,
" Ah, Loid ' zome people's tails," zaid I,
" Have had a dowlish dock.

" He that was once so gert," thoft I,
" That cock'd his nose zo mainly high,
Zo gert in all the *shows ;
Is now chopvallin, tern'd out o' place :
Among the gold and silver lace,
A daan't put in his nose "

But to my zell I zaid agen,
" It is the common case of men ;
Now up aloft, now down .
Leek boys and girls, a laughing rout,
In flying coaches tern'd about,
In fair and market-town."

And yet, my Lord, I cannot zay
Pitt travell'd with clean hands away .
Vor when at last he vound

* Levees and Drawing-rooms

That all his cunning wudn't do,
And that a must be forced to go,
And couldn't keep his ground,—

What did a do? Why, bad enough:
All that his tribe could carry off,
Ecod, away they carr'd it
Lord Grenville and his mumping Wife,
The Lord knows what they did for life,
Most lovingly they shar'd it.

Agosh ' my Lord, twas leek the French
When they be kick'd out o' the trench,
And forced, the dogs, to run,
They catch up evry thing they ken,
Daan't leave a duck, nor cock nor hen,
All goeth az shore's a gun.—

Zo that the conquerors, when they cum,
Caan't vend a drap o' gin nor rum,
No, nor a rend o' cheese;
All that they leave behend, agosh,
Is nort but mucks, and rags, and trosh,
Bezides the rats and meeze.

And than' one Canning, a poor boy,
Took from a ~~school~~ to his employ,

Once thoft a huge deep thinker ;
 He, like a very duteous son,
 Got mce tud bits for Mother Hun,
 And brother Tom the tinker,—

And zister Peg, and zister Joan,
 With scarce a flannel dicky on,
 As yur as I can larn,
 Broken down Actiesses, they zay,
 That in the country used to play
 Vor herrings in a barn.

Now though this curious young man got
 A hundied thousand with Miss Scott
 (Egad ! a fortune thumping),
 Behold ! a hadn't got the heart
 To give his family a peart,
 Zo zent mun out a 'mumping.

I caan't zay that I leeke the 'plan,
 That evry lab ring sarvin-man
 Shud sweat to nurse their prides ;
 But zome (or there be lying tongues)
 Can very coolly cut large thongs
 Vrom other people's hides—

My Lord, zince Mister Pitt's disgriace,
I often knack in at Park Place

(A liv'th at number vive),

And there I talk with Will and Tom,
About things past, and things to come,
And zee'f they be alive

Vor though they zay the man is poor,
I zee no signs of that, I m zure ,

There's meet for man and mowze
Where tis he get'th it, I caan t tell ,
But fath I leeke his kitchen's smell
He keepth a roaring howze

Sarvants in lace zo fine and big,
And evry one as fat's a pig,
And why vor?—evry minute
Out com'th a bottle and a jug,
In com'th a choice and foaming mug,
And evry nose is in it

While he, poor man' I'm bould to think,
Hath nearly now drink'd up his dink :

He may thank his own self vor't;
If any body might suppose,
And take a guiss from his red nose,
His veins all run with port

You know, my Lord, that people zay,
 How evry dog hath got his day ;
 Now Mister Pitt's was fine .
 And you've had yours, leek all gert men ;
 And now, my Lord, I wonder when
 That I shall look pon mine.

POSSKREP.

I've just knack'd in at Mister Pitt's ;
 The Sarvants half out o' their wits,
 Zich running in and out !
 Poor man, he mak'th most cruel groans .
 Sir Walter try'th to ease his bones,
 And call'th it flying gout.

I daan't know what a mean'th by flying .
 I think the Gentleman is dying ,
 Now that's my sense of things.
 " A flying gout !" well, zo it may ,
 And zoon I think will fly away,
 With Pitt upon his wings.

Excuse the liberties I take,
 And observations that I make ;

God know'th, I'm no great judge.
Having no more to zay or write,
I wish your Lordship a good night,
And rest your sarvant, BUDGE.

LETTER V.

CONTENTS.

A wonderful and unexpected peripetia in the Election Drama, by the Means of the Millers in Ambuscade —Mister Budge seemeth full of Lamentation — His Friends put on sad Faces —Comforteth himself with the Hopes of future Success —Mister Budge desponds—wisheth to have a pitched Battle with some of Burdett's Party but, on Recollection, deemeth it not prudent to exhibit his Prowess, giving an Irish Reason, rather unfavourable to the heroic Character of Lord Rolle and himself—Mister Budge disliketh the Triumphs of Sir Francis, and also the honourable Circumstance of being drawn in his Coach by the Mob-ility —He entertaineth Hopes from the Virtue of a select Committee —Mister Budge telleth a very good Story of Farmer Tab, which seemeth to be known by many People out of Trade as well as in Trade —Farmer Tab's Story endeth, and Mister Budge concludeth

Good Gosh! my Lord, prepare to hear
 Zomething that waan't much please, I vear;
 A two-and-forty pounder
 Zounds! we have nort but loosing tacks;
 We now be humbled pon our backs,
 Lord! Lord! as vlat's a Vlounder.

When all simm'd quiet, neat and snug,
 Safe as a Vlea within his rug,
 Afeard of no vlea-killers,

Up vrom their ambush where they lied,
 And rushing like a main Spring-tide,
 Up leap'd a pack of Millers

To tell your Lordship of our looks,
 It is not in the powr of books

Now, what then shall I say ?
 Why, fath, we look'd as whit as Witches,
 At all those douuty sons of bitches
 Twas horroi and dismay

Su Francis laugh'd . Mainwaring staid ,
 And, thoff a Justice, curs'd and swear'd,
 And zed it could not be
 And all Mainwaring's friends about,
 They kick'd and made the damdest rout,
 Zo down in the mouth was he

Twat sartinly a cunning trick,
 And zo our Cock hath had a nick,
 Iss, iss, we've lost the main .
 His droat is cut, and there he leth,
 He must give up the ghost , he dieth,
 He'll ne'er git up again

It is in vain to curse and zwear,
 Az Frenchmen zay, "fortin a guere "

Tis nonsense to be subbing:
 And though they now have got the battle,
Herearter we may meet the cattle,
 And gee the dogs a drubbing

My Lord, I lang'd to try a bout
 With zum o' Burdett's iabble rout .
 I'd zoon a pugg'd their guts ,
 And gid mun menmy a lammin lick,
 And made mun of Elections zick ,
 I'd gid mun all the butts

And it, tis best as tis, perhaps,
 We mert a catch'd zum arterclaps,
 And be well drash'd vor sterin .
 Iss, iss, I mert a goad to pot,
 And got less credit than we got
 In Ireland by the berrin.

You meend, my Lord, the famous day
 When vrom the corpse we runn'd away,
Afeard the French wud skin us ;
 Dreaving, nor looking once behind ;
 Coosing leek Greyhounds and the Wind,
 Az though the Devil was in us.—

Well, now again for th' old affan
We be zo mad az we can stare,
 Leek Curs we drap our tails,
While Burdett's rogues in triumph run,
And whoop and hollow, make zich fun,
 Zo proud they hoist their sails.—

And, leek gert fools, the rabble rout
Took from the coach the hosses out,
 To drag Burdett along—
Had I beed coachman, I'd a drash'd mun
Leek Jackasses, I'd zo a lash'd mun,
 And wear'd out menny a thong.

The Mob waan't leave bevore they're hang'd,
They want most hugely to be bang'd,
 They caan't leave their vagaries—
Near Cold-bath Fields they lerk about,
To try to git the jailbirds out,
 And flay alive poor Aris.

We talk of scrutinies, my Lord;
The Curt th' expenses wull aford,
 And zom vokes in the city.
We yet may zend mun all to Hell
If we contrive to manidge well;
 And chuse a good committee.

I'm tould, and I believe tis true,
There is not in Burdett's whole crew

Dree honest men among mun
Though carrin, negers, mangy curs,
Oh how I lang to comb their furs !

Oh, damn it, how I'd thong mun !
They shud ha som weow honest men,
At least bout one or two in ten ,

But, zounds ! they've none at all :
And if we sarch the crew all round,
Lord, Lord ! what iz there to be vound ?
Examine gert and small.

With your good leave, I'll zet bevore ye,
My Lord, a midget of a story

Of Farmer Tab, my neighbour.
Zays Farmer Tab, one day, to me,
“ When I begun the world,” zays he,
“ I was obliged to labour.

“ And zo,” zays Farmer Tab, zays he,
“ I thort that I wud honest be,

And never wrong a soul
Ah ! Lord, I quickly went to pot .
Iss, by my honesty, zoon got
Into a dirty hole.

“ Now, what shall I do now ? quoth I .

A bit o’ roguery let me try

And zo I tein’d a rogue ;

And got a mint o’ money zoon ,

Could he abed, agosh, till noon ;

A charming lazy dog

“ But Lord, Lord, Lord ! it was not long,

Poor bird, bevore I changed my zong ;

Iss, I was forced to tridge

Vor writing pon a piece o’ paper

I really thort that I shud caper,

When brought bevore the Jidge

“ But by God’s marcy, and a bribe

Deliver’d to a sarun tribe,

I saved my neck a rope.

Well, whát, quoth I, shall I do now ?

What method take, to speed the plough ?

Ah, Lord ! I’m out o’ hope

“ Not honesty nor roguery do !

Says I, Lord, looking wondrous blue .

And then I scratch’d my pate ;

And fath, scratch’d in a pretty thought,

That grist to mill abundance brought,

And made a good estate.

“ And zo upon a scheme I fix’d
Roguary and honesty well mix’d
May do, zays I, the feat ;
And zo at once to work I went,
And mix’d mun to my heart’s content,
Half honesty, half cheat.

“ And now, thank God, I turn a penny,
Live creditable too as enny,
By maxin mun together.
By this, Jo, thee and thy old wife
May laugh at all the storms of life,
And ha good sunsheen weather.”—

Zo end’th the tale of Farmer Tab :
But Burdett and his crew, the scab,
Treat honesty az nort ;
And, thoff they’ve prosper’d theeze one time,
I hope that vor zom other crime
The devils wull all be cort.

LETTER VI.

CONTENTS

Mister Budge, having finished his History of the Middlesex Election, giveth a History of his Visit at Mister Pitt's House, in Park Place, where a very curious Conversation taketh place between Mister Budge and the Servants, that sheweth what wonderful Liberties Servants take with their Masters behind their Backs

You bid me go, my Lord, and quare

Vor Mister Pitt, zo I went there

And nack'd, and zo stapp'd in

Zays I, "My Lord hath zent to know,

How Mister Pitt doth do, and zo"—

Zo Thomas stroked his chin,

And hemm'd and ha'ad . at last says he,

" Look, Joe , I'll tell thee what, dost zee :

Our Measter is dam bad.

A drink'th too hard, muddleth his head,

And not till vour a goeth to bed ;

That mak'th me cursed mad.

" Measter's a toper evry inch :

Egod, I never know'dn flinch ;

Iss, Measter wull die game.
 He'll never run, I'll answer vor't,
 He waan't forsake the good old Poit,
 And quunch his nose's flame

“ And zo what signifieth the pills,
 And trade, that a large basket vills,
 That Doctor Farquhar zends ?
 Lord, Lord ! why evry sarvant laughs,
 To zee the boluses and draffs,
 While Measter never mends.

“ Ere long, he'll zing another tune .
 I think we shall ha mourning zoon ;
 Death wull be vor'n too cunning.
 We have rare times o't, to be shore ;
 Nō key upon the cellar-door,
 The cœk for ever running.”—

“ Thomas,” quoth I, “ I hugely itch,
 To know if Measter Pitt be rich :
 Hæ, Thomas ? lean or fat ?
 By many peepel I've be told,
 That, was a to be bought and sold,
 A isn't worth a graat.”—

“ Zo many peepel zay,” quoth Tom ;

“ But trust me, Joe, tis all a hum,

A trap to take in ninnies

Pertending to be cruel poor ;

But, az we zay here, that’s a bore.

Our Measter roll’th in guineas

“ Yes, mun, he shams, and foams, and frets,

Pertendin a caan’t pay his debts .

To prove to all the Nation,

He doth not take their goods away ,

Stidding their *int’re*st evry day,

To bring about salvation

“ I, I,” quoth Thomas with a wink,

“ I fear my Measter’s name will stink

Like carrion vore tis long :

Vokes make about’n now no rout ;

They all begin to ven’n out,

And freely gee their tongue.

“ Meend ~~me,~~” quoth Tom, “ ~~the man~~ I know .

To Walmer Castle zoon he’ll go,

And simm zo poor, good Lord !

Pertendin there was nothing sterrin :

Zo make a dinner pon a herrin,

Upon an old deal board.

“ He’ll git a box of wood or tin,
To put his zalt and pepper in,
And munch his meal at noon
Without a rag o’ table-clath ,
And now shall ha a dish o’ brath,
And use a wooden spoon ,

“ Make meals on barely-bread and tates,
Pon trenchers too instead o’ plates ,
Drink nort but dead small-beer ,
And that too from a penny jug,
Not able to avoard a mug,
Poor man ! no, that too dear.

“ Old Chatham did the very same,
To git a little crumb o’ name,
The damdest eat-all glutton.
He too could live, forsooth, pon leet ;
Could feast upon an ounce of meat,
And peck a bone o’ mutton.

“ But when old Pynsant, the mad fool
(Beginning, I suppose, to drule),
Play’d zich a mazeg’rry trick,
And gidd’n all his fine estate ,
(God help the poor old fellow’s pate !
Twas comfortably thick .) —

“ How quickly changed old Measter’s pallet !
Down his long droat, Lord, zich a wallet
 He stuff’d of vlesh and vish ,
Vensun and terbot, evry thing
Fit to be put bevore the King,
 With evry dainty dish

“ Zich slaying, Lord ! vrom morn to night !
The cocks and hens in zich a fight !
 Twas all devour, devour !
The pigs and poultry, ducks and geese,
And terkies worth a crown apiece,
 Cried ‘ Murder’ evry hour.

“ Loads tumbled in of evry kind .
Cook laugh’d, and nearly burst her wind ;
 The sarvants all stood grinnin.
Twas roast, and boil, and fry away :
The spits were ternin all the day,
 And all the jacks were spinnin.

“ Iss, iss, old Chatham dood the same,
That made the kingdom cry out ‘ Shame ;’
 Aye, over, mun, and over
And Measter’s one of the old brood,
The heart and soul, the bones and blood,
 As vur’s I can discover.

“ He trieth to zee the King, I zay,
 Drowing his zelf zo in his way,
 To ketch a wink or nod
 But, ah ! that backy, mun, waan’t smoke ;
 The King waan’t take agen his yoke .
 No, no, a waan’t, by God.

“ The King was hamper’d long enew,
 And now bidd’th leading-strings adieu ,
 Iss, bidd’th mun go to Hell.
 Now this geeth all the world delight :
 The Gentleman is in the right,
 Agosh ! to please his zell.

“ Thou zeest, Joe, that I speak may mind ,
 And trust me, zoon the world will vind
 Our Measter’s virtue fudge
 Tis true, Joe, ev’ry bit, I’ll zwear :
 As true, Joe, as that thee stand’st here ;
 Az true’s thy name is Budge

“ One may zee daylight, iss, iss, faith,
 Dicoo a small hole, the proverb, zaith
 I neither make nor mend,
 O Lord, I daan’t tell all I know ,
 But mun, I’m dumb, I’m dumb, and zo .
 Cats wink that be not blend,

“ Zome friends call now and then to zee’n,
 And little crumes o’ comfort gee’n,
 And tell’n about the King
 Then with a stare he shak’th his head,
 Az much az though his mouth had zed,
 Ah, Lord ! tis no zich thing ”—

“ Now, Tom,” quoth I, “ about reform,
 Thee meendst the geit and merty storm,
 Bevore he got in place ”—

“ Aye, aye,” zayd Tom, “ I meend the day
 When Measter storm’d and fumed away,
 And put up his long face

“ I heerd un often, with his gang,
 Aboo stairs pon th’ affair harrang,
 And joking with the Duke ;
 Yes, fath, I heard their conversation,
 To think how nice the gudgeon Nation
 Got hang’d upon their hook

“ But, Joe, th’ Old Bailey was the worst,
 Where Measter guast his will was forced
 To gee his davy in
 The Curt at once leek Bullocks stared,
 His friends that followed’n were scared,
 His enemies pon the grm.

“ The Jidge, his friend, that wish’d un well,
Wish’d he would recollect his zell.

Ecod, he was near cort
Zo Measter hemm’d, and stettering zaid,
He thort his mem’ry was decay’d,
And cruel, cruel shoit

“ And zo the Jidges zaid they thort ·
And then a wink went round the curt,
And Sheridan, the thief,
Who never spar’th a man an inch,
Gid’n a dam cōnfounded pinch;
Agosh ! was in his beef.

“ Joe, thee’st a zeed a Paper Keet
Heigh mounted, tackle all complete,
When, Loid, the string break’th, snap :
Than how a wheelth ! now high, now zunk,
Dipp’th here and there, leek a man drunk;
When down a tumbelth, zwap !

“ Agosh ! zo our poor Measter vall’d.
Most cussedly the man was maul’d ;
Iss, iss, a zing’d dam smaall.
Twas lucky too ; vor, had the Jidge
Owed’n a spite, or bit o’ gridge,
T’had been a harder vaall.

“ But all’s blow’d over now, friend Joe,
Thee know’st, that happen’d long ago
 Tis now become a joke
But there, Joe, as vor thee and I,
We mustn’t speak our meends, vor why?
 We mustn’t tich gert voke

“ Measter’s a Greandenstone, zo rough,
He is not complaisant enough,
 Not civil to the Crown
And than remember the poor Prince
Loid! how my Measter made’n wince!
 Zwinge! how a let’n down!

“ He did behave t’un cruel hard,
And now he meet’th with his rewaid
 It is too late to flatter
His Royal Highness waan’t forgee’t,
He lov’th un, fath, I plainly zee’t,
 As the Dowl lov’th holy water.

“ Holwood wull by and by be zold,
To make a vieow good bits o’ gold;
 Zo he mak’th wise and frets
But meend, my Maister dothn’t want wit
Ere long, he wull contrive to git
 Zome fool to pay his debts.

“ He caan’t come in agen, vokes zay ;
Too menny bars be in his way
 Bezides, the People hate’n ;
And, could they git’n in their claws,
Ecod, they’d pound his lantern jaws,
 And leek a Bull they’d bait’n

“ Canning the school-boy lurk’d in’ here,
And zaftly whisper’d in his ear,
 He’d git’n from disgrace ;
He’d quickly take’n by the poll, .
And lug’n vrom his dirty hole,
 And make’n show his face

“ He zaid he had be’d sly about,
To veel the Marchants’ pulses out,
 And for subscription caall ,
Vor a brass Image vor the town,
To which the people must bow down,
 And worship leeke old Baal.

“ But this was laughing in his sleeve ,
Contrived to make the King believe,
 That, when he tern’d out Pitt,
Off went the wisdom o’ the Court ,
All that remain’d was good vor nort,
 It wudn’t sarve a nit.

“ The Marchants, thoose that deal'd in loans,
That fatten'd up their skins and bones,

All runn'd into the trap

‘ An Image, Image!’ was the cry

Od dam the blockheads, then thought I .

What! gull'd by zich a chap!

“ That zich a boy shud take mun in!

Lord! evry mouth was on the gun,

Dree pearts of theese gert town

‘ Iss, put the Image up,’ vokes zay,

‘ Iss, put’n, and that very day

We’ll try to put’n down.’

“ And zo they wull, except vokes race

To Newgate vor a strong safe place,

Or inside Bedlam walls .

Or, if the world must zee his phiz,

The Image must be made to quizz,

Aloft upon Saint Paul’s

“ Zo much vor images, friend Joe

But thee and I baan’t blend, dost know ;

I giss, we know what’s what

Well, Joe, as I were zaying, hæ,

Az no more hopes of courts I zee,

I’m looking vor my hat.

“ I’ve made zome hundreds in my place ,
But, az my Maister’s in disgrace,
What must a body do ?
Thou zeest I speak my meend out, Joe,
And, as the Maister’s on the go,
The Sarvant shud go too.”—

Now zich was our discoose, my Lord ;
I daan’t know that I’ve miss’d a word,
No, not a single thing .
And if you shud think fit, or zo,
Your Lordship, if you please, may show
My letter to the King

POSSKREP.

MY Lord, bevore I wrote theese letter,
I heeard the Sarvants grin and chetter
About a thing in hand ;
Tis caall’d a Statue for Squire Pitt,
To honour’n vor his powers o’ wit,
And sense, that saved the land.

They do zo laugh, and make zich jeers,
And (damn mun) zo torment my ears,
And mock’n zo in print :

The cheeldish fools shud wear a bib.—
 And zee, my Lord, a louzy squib ;
 I'm sure you'll zee nort in't:—

THE STATUE

“ EACH good-natured Cit
 Votes a Statue to Pitt,
 For actions enormously evil
 'Tis supposed, very soon,
 At the full of the moon,
 They will order a bust to the Devil ”

O Lord ! O Lord ! I'm pleased enew
 Is this all London Wits can do ?
 Is this all it possesses ?
 I'd hang my Dog up to a stake
 This moment, if a didn't make
 Pon one leg better vesses.

Now this they christen London wit,
 That leek a razor cutt'th Squire Pitt :
 Aye, let mun make their bregs ,
 Against dree straws I'd bet my soul,
 That Stephen Tag, of Nacker's Hole,
 Should beat'n all to regs.

PITT AND HIS STATUE;

AN

EPISTLE TO THE SUBSCRIBERS

STAY but a little month or so,
Your fondness will be much abated,
Even your own hands will overthrow
The Idol that ye have created
No more your Pyramid supports its rat,
Your tiger dwindles to a mangy cat

ALSO,

LORD BELGRAVE AND HIS MOTIONS,

&c &c.

You call yourself a Pillar of the Nation.
I fear your Lordship means to boast
Pray make a trifling alteration,
And, 'stead of pillar, say a post

PITT AND HIS STATUE.

So then, Messieurs, ye Men of Loans,
Who eat our flesh, and gnaw our bones
Clean as a dog would pick them, all so white;
With goodly gratitude ye look
To your great friend, the old State Cook,
And kindly offer him your mite
To rear a statue to support his fame;
On crutches hobbling, rotten, lank, and lame.

'Tis very kind in ye, I'm sure,
Yet 'tis but rouge on an old whore,
That can't conceal the wrinkles and the scab :
The Nation's eyes are vastly clear,
Their scrutinizing power severe,
Discerns a Vestal from a dirty Dab

What sort of Statue will ye have,
To snatch his glory from the grave,
That seemeth in a terrible decline?
The vulgar Statues to surpass,
Let it be form'd of kindred brass;
In pure Corinthian let your Hero shine.

Colossal it will be, no doubt,
To push his head among the Gods ,
Cocking his pert imperious snout,
Much like the Bully of Old Rhodes.

Upon the pedestal his worth,
And great achievements, will start forth
In staring capitals I mark " REFORM ,"
With Colonel Sharman's volunteers,
With pointed muskets, swords, and spears,
To raise for dying Liberty a *storm.

There shall we see the name of " War,"
That many a soldier sends, and tar,
To sleep with their still fathers and still mothers ,
For War, though seeming very dread
By knocking thousands on the head,
Makes comfortable elbow-room for others

In letters too all large and fair,
" Old Bailey" on the eye may stare ,
Where Justice, with her sharpen'd shears,
Has lopp'd off many a har's ears

* The Letters sent to Ireland by a noble Duke and his associates, in order to force themselves into power, would have furnished the neck of an author of such treason, of the present day, with a halter

In letters, too, superb and bold,
 The name of "Income-tax" be told,
 That made so many millions blest,
 And eke of poor old "Penny-post,"
 That gave so sweetly up the ghost,
 T' oblige the gaping Treasury's chest* —

* On Mr Pitt's silly, cruel, and unproductive imposition on the Penny post Letters, I felt for the humbler classes of society, who seem to be born with passions somewhat of the same quality, with those of our lofty Rulers, and composed a pretty little Elegy, called the Tears of the Penny-post. The following stanzas are faithful extracts from that tender performance, which on some future day may probably be given entire, for the gratification of the Public —

AFTER a most pathetic exordium, Madame Penny post thus lamenteth

THE pensive Housemaid, pretty Susan, sighs,
 Susan, a soft, a sweet, and tender lass,
 Susan, with rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes,
 And pouting lips that might for Cherries pass
 "Oh, the vile Pitt," she cries, "poor folks to rob!
 Thus with my humble wages won't agree
 With pleasure twice a week I wrote to Hob,
 And Hob, dear Youth, wrote twice a week to me
 "Now only once a week can we afford
 To breathe our souls on paper, harmless blisses!
 But what is that to him, the savage, Lord!
 Who careth not three straws for woman's kisses!
 "Soon as a maggot crept into my head,
 I caught a stump of pen and put it down
 'What is a penny?' to myself I said,
 So sent it Hob, a dozen miles from town

Now tell us where ye mean to place
 Your favourite Hero's brazen face?
 Even at famed Newgate let him soar,
 And swinging grace the Debtor's Door

" Unmoved by love is Pitt, for lo, at College,
 He felt no charm in faces, feet, or hips,
 But hunted, with the Proctor, to my knowledge,
 Poor Girls that lent young Gentlemen their lips ;—

" And when they caught one, like a brace of Bears
 They griped her, swearing she should pay for sunning ,
 And, deaf as Haddocks to her squalls and tears,
 Lugg'd her away, and set her to hard spinning

' But they were paid in their own coin again,
 For clawing the poor creature, huffing, snubbing,
 For, with their sticks, with all their might and main,
 The good young Gownsmen gave the Brutes a drubbing.

" O genium ! how I should like to spin
 A hempen cord, th' unnatural rogues to throttle,
 That give up Beauty for a Glass of Gin,
 And leave nice Girls, to hug a nasty Bottle !

" But some low fellows, wretches let me say,
 (But not my Hobby, I am proud to think,)
 Think eyes were only made to see their way,
 And mouths for nothing else but meat and drink.

" The very Birds their time on love employ,
 And see our Pigeons, how they kiss and coo,
 And nod, and bill, and flap their wings for joy,
 And fondly whisper, ' Dovey, how d'ye do "

Ye make too much of this poor man,
 Stifling your creature with caresses,
 A simple Goose is not a Swan.
 Ye ought to blush at your addresses.

“ What a great soul is William Pitt !
 What mind ! what energies ! what wit !
 Give him a statue ; vote him money
 Great creature ! greatest thing alive,
 The labouring bee of our large Hive ;
 Fill his dear throat with half the honey.
 His wants are many , ease him, ease him .
 Even let the Nation starve, to please him .’

How like Lord Froth and his Dog Faddle,
 Who makes his Family’s head addle
 With orders, cautions for his Pug !

“ When Hobby leaves me with a kiss and squeeze,
 All brisk as Bees my Spirits in a minute,
 I twirl my mop about with so much ease,
 And scrub and sing away like any Linnet

“ With such good will indeed I do my work,
 Thinking of Hob’s caresses all the while,
 I feel my Heart a dancing light as Cork,
 And feed the pigs and poultry with a smile

“ Thus, thus I swear . Though hungry as a Hound,
 - The stomach shall not steal the bosom’s bliss,
 True to love’s passion shall these lips be found,
 And lose even beans and bacon for a kiss ”

Faddle has got a four-post bed,
With pillows for his gentle head,
Nice sheets, and comfortable rug,
With curtains of the finest chintz,
Fit for the chamber of a prince*.

Faddle, the favourite of Lord Froth,
Is comforted with richest broth,
And victuals too of sweetest picking,
And while the servants of the house
Can scarcely give their plate a mouse,
Faddle enjoys his roasted chicken.

Is Faddle sick, Lord ! what a yelling !
Heavens, what a bustle in the dwelling !
Susan and Molly, turn and turn,
Watch the poor creature night and day,
And such solicitude display ,
And sigh, and hang the head, and mourn ;
And tread with cat-like step the floor,
And with such softness shut the door !
Such whispers, and such tiptoe stealings,
For fear of wounding Faddle's feelings !
And straw is also strew'd before the door,
That coaches may not spoil his pretty snore

* This Dog story is not imaginary Portman Square knows all about it, and enjoys its laugh

My Lord too, half his time attending, -
 O'er his sick Favourite kindly bending,
 Administers himself his pills and potions,
 Tucking, with sympathizing tears,
 The bed-clothes round his chin and ears,
 Examining too all his motions,
 For fear that Faddle's tender tripes
 (Poor thing!) might suffer by the gripes:
 And quitting him at night, there's such caressing;
 When, bishop-like, he leaves the Dog his blessing.

Now tell me, every candid Cit,
 The difference between Pug and Pitt*.—

* I this moment am informed of the actual death of poor Faddle! The Ladies are locked up in their rooms, to indulge their melancholy—a death like silence surrounds the kitchen, not a jack flying, not a spit turning, nor a poker stirring his Lordship inconsolable, carrying about the house his lifeless Companion in a box, kissing his cold black muzzle, and bathing it with tears. Cards of condolence are expected from every quarter, and the Dog is to be sent, with all pomp, to W—, to be interred with due funereal honours, and to whose precious memory a monument (peradventure a statue, by the hand of our female Phidias, the Honourable Mistress Damer) is to be erected, with a suitable inscription

Multis ille bonus flebilis occidit

Nulla flebilior quam tibi, Frothi

It is universally avowed, that Faddle was killed by kindness. Mr Pitt, the great favourite of his Pensioners, Placemen, and Loan men, seems to be dying in the very identical manner. A parallel between the manners of Pug and Pitt, may probably form the subject of a future effusion.

Now, to be serious, if we can,
Speak, are ye laughing at the man?

What! to a wolf a Statue give,
That scarce would suffer us to live,
Tearing, poor bleating sheep, our fleeces!
Should Honour, Glory, ever stray,
And meet this Statue midst their way,
They'd pull the folly all to pieces;—

Exclaiming thus. “A statue, Gods,
To one that mischief only plods,
A nation's horror, such a known defaulter!
If something to his fame must start,
Let Master Ketch employ his art,
And weave the gentleman a halter.”

I think subscriptions will be thin,
For flattering our great Nation's hope.
Heavens! how the guineas had pour'd in,
'Stead of a statue, had it been a rope!—

Before I finish, let me sing
(Sweet Nightingale) before the King,
And warbling tell him, that this fellow,

This Pitt, whose virtue damns a *punk,
 (Though not averse to getting drunk,
 Even in his soberest moments mellow,)
 Wants much to mount the old State-coach again
 If Majesty will give his hand the rein

Yes, much he wants to mount the old State-car,
 And hear a World his highness hail
 But humbler stations suit him better far,—
 What think ye, Sirs, of the car's tail?

His Majesty in wisdom shone,
 Soon as he brush'd him from the throne;
 Just to his glory, to his kingdom just
 Yet see! the worm crawls round its feet,
 Wants much to enter it to eat,
 And render it a heap of rotten dust

As for his knowledge in finance,
 Not far his Majesty need dance
 Before he found one of a happier wit

* It is a known fact, that when at Cambridge, Pitt delighted in hunting down, with the Proctors, the poor unfortunate Damsels that came fresh from the country, who only endeavoured to sell their lilies and roses to the young Gentlemen, and sometimes to the graver Dons, of the University —

The man that has not woman in his soul,
 Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils

In this good Nation may be seen,
And felt, state-razors full as keen
For shaving us, as Master Billy Pitt
Pitts are as plentiful as crabs,
Or shall we say, Saint Giles's drabs ?

With nice old proverbs some old books are stor'd ;
One I remember of a fowl
“ A man must be hard driven to find a bird,
Who offers two-pence for an owl.”

Talk of an Irish face of brass,
While Pitt exists ! let tongues be still
A Common, to a Blade of Grass ,
An Ocean, to a creeping Rill !

Why come again upon the heath ?
Already we have lost our purses
We've nought to give but blasting breath,
Deep sighs of poverty, and curses

Pitt licks his lips again at pow'r,
Just like a Bull-dog that has tasted blood.
Wants the bull's nose ; ripe to devour,
And split his belly with the vital flood.
Pitt brings to mind a Pupil of the Gallows,
Part of whose history is as follows —

THE THIEF.

• A ROGUE, by Honesty long left,
Was by Dame Justice order'd to be stripp'd,
And whipp'd,
For burglary, that is to say, a theft.—

A work perform'd by men and boys,
Studying the natural history of shops,
Who most ingeniously, without a noise,
Contrive to ope their unsuspecting chops,
Drawing forth money, watches, muslins, laces,
With other tinkets that supply the Graces,—

Assisted much by Mistress Night,
Of whom the Bow-street authors write;
A Lady who, the World believes,
Keeps the bad company of thieves.

The cat o'-nine-tails to his hide
Was most ingeniously applied,
Graving upon his memory the word “shop.”
Puss, Pitt-like, deeply drank the purple flood;
But, lo! the Rogue with Stoic patience stood,
As though Puss had not drunk a single drop!

As soon as Justice had perform'd her part
Upon the Rogue's unwincing hide,
He calmly turn'd his back upon the cat,
And, musing, roll'd his eyes from side to side
With a most solemn, philosophic face
Like my Lord Eldon, on a crabbed case,
Which often comes into the Court of Chancery ;
Where his grave Lordship, and grave wig,
Both with the first importance big,
Are very often puzzled how to answer ye ;
So very undecisive in decision,
Leaving for future Chancery-traps provision

“ Well, what art thinking of ? ” exclaim'd Jack Ketch
“ Thy brain seems devilish hard upon the stretch ”—
“ I'm thinking,” quoth the Thief, with sharpen'd ken,
“ Of gutting that there shop to-night agen. ’

Now, gentle Sirs, pray ope your eyes,
And learn the art of being wise.
Your schemes are idle wholly, wholly ;
Ye show a wondrous want of wit
Th' immortal Statue raised to Pitt,
Immortalizeth too your folly.

Stay but a little month or so,
Your fondness will be much abated ,
Even your own hands will overthrow
The Idol that ye have created
No more your Pyramid supports its rat ;
Your tiger dwindles to a mangy cat

LORD BELGRAVE

AND

HIS MOTIONS.

PROEMIUM.

WITH a set of weak timbers most miserably put together, with neither mast, sail, rudder, compass, nor ballast, Lord Belgrave undauntedly ventured to launch his lugger on the surge of politics, which, as might naturally be expected, became the sport of every puff of wind. As the trifling intellect is too frequently and unfortunately ambitious of exhibiting its imbecility, his Lordship has been often indebted to the compassion of the House. The star that refused him ability, was not wanting in the gift of presumption. A stranger to the wisdom of political debate, yet resolving to be something in the annals of Parliament, his Lordship has of late dealt in motions. The principal motion was, for a vote of thanks to Mr Pitt, for his great services to his Country. Lord Belgrave places his chief glory in fighting under the banners of the Heaven-descended Minister; whom may God, of his infinite mercy, for the interests of this Empire, take to himself again as soon as he pleases! The sooner the better.

What an Herculean labour, to impose silence on petulant loquacity, and convince Folly that she possesses not talents! Ask Lord Belgrave his opinion of himself; “he shines in discrimination.” It was his profound judgment that led him to his golden-calf idolatry. Through this error of the mind, he mistakes the Humming-bird for the Eagle; spiritless Declamation for Eloquence; Inanity for Solidity; the mephitic and deleterious vapours of a Dungeon, for the open and pure air of Vitality; and the cold, greasy, wandering light of a Will-o’-the-wisp, for the fervour and steady radiance of a vertical Sun.

GREAT Lord of Greek, it is my humble notion,
That yours was verily a paw-paw motion:
Much like a motion, by the Doctor’s art
Produced, by jalap or by sal cathart.;
Working for Cloacina and her Maids,
In water-closets and embowering shades.

You've learnt to face a knock-down laugh ;
 And, though detected in a blunder,
 And though your fancied Corn be Chaff,
 You will not keep your windmill under
 No matter how folks grin, or what folks say ,
 'Tis your own Mill, and Mill shall grind away.

Too many a Goose hath deem'd itself a Swan,
 And many a Monkey thought himself a Man .
 With reason too , for, 'mongst the Monkey nation,
 I've met with many a happy imitation ,
 Nay, if to speak the truth compell'd,
 I've seen the originals excell'd

How many a man, because he has two eyes,
 Thinks himself capable of seeing ;
 And, finding he has motion, and calf-size,
 Believes himself an animated being !

Discovering in his mouth a tongue,
 He must not its palaver balk ;
 So keeps it running all day long,
 And fancies the red rag can talk —

• Your Lordship tells me that I joke,
 Swearing you never saw such folk .

If that's the case, upon my word,
You keep no looking-glass, my Lord.

Numbers are fond of hearing themselves chatter ;
• Promising Wine, and giving Milk-and-water,
Or that most mawkish mess call'd Water-gruel.
This is not fan, my Lord , 'tis very cruel

Most men of splendid fortunes, glittering titles,
Think that in wisdom they must also shine ,
As though a house whose front is very fine
Could not want handsome furniture and victuals

You thought a speech would be the bladder,
To speak more pompously, balloon ,
Nay, let me rather say the ladder ;
To mount your Lordship to the Moon

It was a fatal resolution
(Ambition oft mistakes its aim)
'Twas not the ladder of your fame,
Alas ! but of your execution

If Pitt was wonderfully great,
With wisdom, wit, and fire, replete,
Sublime, gigantic, half a God,

'Tis strange he should descend to you
And yours, so ignorant a crew .
This is a puzzling case, and odd

And yet we see, without surprise,
A log of wood, a needle, nail,
O'er the fierce Lightning oft prevail,
And lure the Tyrant from his skies ,
Send him about, a poor tame thing,
Just like a Lap-dog in a string.

There is a certain and true saying,
Of animals inclined to braying ,
(My Lord, I hope to be forgiven :)
“ An ass's voice ne'er reach'd to Heaven.”

There lives a Lady, christen'd Vanity,
Companion often of Inanity,
Much like a Finch that feeds the Bird of May
Call'd Cuckoo , a most silly bird,
Resembling, my dear Grecian Lord,
Resembling speakers that have nought to say :
For words are not ideas, although words
Are in such plenty found with noble Lords.

'Tis said, some men may make their wills
On their thumb-nails, for aught they can bestow ;
And pray, my Lord, whose voice Saint Stephen's fills,
I should be very glad to know

If all your wit's and eloquence's grace
Might not be all bequeath'd in the same space.

Had I the power, my first endeavour
Should be, to stop your mouth for ever .

And really I am pleased when Sherry,
With his smart stick,
Unto your shrugging shoulders gives a lick ;
Making the pleased spectators merry.

And yet, in spite of Sherry's sneers,
And my admonitory metre,
Your eloquence must drown our ears,
Must flow ; labitur et labetur.

In short, this motion sad of thanks,
Seems one of Folly's weakest pranks.

Great is Imagination's pow'r ,
Fancy bolts bran, and thinks it flour .
And thus, when Pitt was bolted on the Nation,
Numbers, to superstition given,
Thought it a meteor dropp'd from heaven ,
Such was the effort of Imagination. .

Yet, if we judge from deeds and fiery face,
This Meteor issued from a hotter place.

My Lord, I hold your knowledges dog-cheap,
Sad work indeed, indeed, you make
You're like one ambulating in his sleep,
That does the actions of a man awake ;
Leaps, runs, stands, listens, rides , and then Unconscious goes to bed agen

“ And am I that poor mechanism ? ” you cry.
My Lord of ~~Greek~~, I say it with a sigh.

You call yourself a pillar of the Nation ;
I fear your Lordship means to boast .
Pray make a trifling alteration,
And, 'stead of pillar, say a post.
You cannot make, my Lord, I fear,
A velvet purse of a sow's ear.

I grant your life a virtuous life :—
I had it from the Baker's Wife *,
The fascinating Muffinella ;
Who, visiting your Lordship's villa,

* Pious and pretty, residing in the vicinity of Milbank , much addicted to methodism, and one of the elect

Inform'd you how the Fiend with foot all cloven,
 And horns, and tail, and goggling eyes,
 Tried to take people by surprise,
 And that he lurk'd within her Sunday's oven *
 And then she begg'd your Lordship's help, to stop
 Her oven, and drive Satan from her shop.

The tears of piety and sweet devotion
 That trickling wash'd the roses of her cheek,
 Produced, undoubtedly produced, the motion ;
 What's strange, without one syllable of Greek
 A motion that most humbly hop'd
 The Lady's oven might be stopp'd.

'Tis said moreover, that the Spouse
 Of this same honest Milbank Baker
 Has charms, has beauty, that might rouse
 A smile on any Undertaker

But what of that ? 'Twas not the smile,
 Nor eyes that might a Saint beguile,
 Nor Muffinilla's dimple sleek,
 That won upon the Lord of Greek

* A strict observance of the Sabbath-day had long engrossed his Lordship's pious and sublime speculation. The wicked Bakehouse fell first in his way, and, had not the motion been smelt and smoked by the House, his Lordship had proceeded in his triumph to a most tremendous attack on Milk and Mackerel.

Nor was it Muffinilla's cheek,

The blushing rival of the rose ;

Nor, swelling with desire, her neck,

Fair rival of the Alpine snows

Nor was it Muffinilla's waist,

The throne of chastity, her pride ;

Whose zone, so chaste, so very chaste,

None but the Baker's self untied.

Nor was it Muffinilla's arm,

That might a cold Marchesi warm ;

Nor hand possess'd of such nice points,

Such fingers, all so round and taper,

Whose touch would make an Angel caper ;

And then, such sweetly dimpled joints !

Nor was it Muffinilla's foot,

Nor ankle clean, nor tapering leg,

All, near Milbank, in high repute :

These ne'er had made him stir a peg.

No. 'twas a rage for curbing evil,

And drubbing that vile dog the Devil.

No : 'twas to break the legs of Sin,

Who dances in the pie and pudding ;

A bramble, hooking Christians in,

For ever blossoming and budding.

And yet the World won't give you credit :
 They say it, and have boldly said it,
 " Who work for Virtue ? poh, a pretty story !
Who would not rather toil for Vice,
 Her pay and pleasures great and nice ?
Who fish for Haddock, that can hook John Dory ?

" Let Virtue preach, and Beauty ogle,
 To gain the soul, Lord ! which will win ?
 A pair of minutes ends the struggle
 Poor Paison Virtue must give in "—

" 'Tis no fair bet," the Million cries .
 " Pit Virtue 'gainst a pair of Eyes ;
 A Peacock and a rusty Wren
 Jove's Eagle 'gainst a cackling Hen

" A roguish leer from charming Phyllis,
 Of which th' interpretation's clear,
 Viz.—' Look, Sir, please to buy my lilies,
 My cherries, and my roses here ?'
 (Most archly pointing to her neck,
 And pouting lips, and crimson'd cheek,)
 Even Metropolitans of London
 Would find their pious efforts undone ;—

“ And eke the solemn saints of Canterbury
Might from their holy office slide,
Feeling of love a strong spring-tide,
And passions bustling, running hurry-scurry.

“ Nay, Metropolitans of York
Would find it an Herculean work
To keep the Imp of Darkness under
If so, a weak and carnal lord,
With little stock of grace on board,
For him to founder where’s the wonder ?”

Thus cries the World, my Lord, all sneering,
On Muffinilla’s beauty leering.

Now, my good Lord, if you think fit,
We’ll leave the Baker’s Wife for Pitt —

Some gratitude is due, I own,
To your staunch patron, Billy Pitt.
He took much care of you, ’tis known;
A louse most surely loves its nit.

Yes, Pitt took most especial care
To shield his stupid friends from harm;
And, when the day of trouble came,
To keep them safe, and snug, and warm.

Full oft he saved them from hard knocks
Of wicked Sheridan and Fox.

Thus, when old Mother Hen, for food,
Is prying, scraping, clucking, picking,
Amidst her scudding, squeaking brood,
The poor weak band of hungry Chicken,
Soon as the Winds begin to sing,
Or rather play their overture to thunder,
Immediately she spreads her wing,
For all her trembling Chicks to huddle under

For God's sake, talk no more of Pitt,
His taste, his wisdom, or his wit
A man with Music in his soul,
Would never keep vile squalling Parrots;
Nor leave a Haunch and Salmon's-jowl,
To dine upon Sheep's-heads and Carrots,
Whose palate wish'd to be thought chaste,
And get some small repute for taste

Yet Pitt could keep his squalling Parrots,
And dine upon Sheep's-heads and Carrots,
When Nightingales had waited on his wish,
And every Table-dainty, flesh and fish.—

Now why that stare, my Lord? By God, 'tis true .

Ye Moths that flutter'd in his ray,

The favourite insects of the day,

I talk of you, and you, and you, and you.

What need I name what all the World supposes ;

The Belgraves, Windhams, Giffords, Cannings, Roses?

My Lord, I've not one grain of spite ;

I only wish to set you right,

And save your future hours from folly :

Of idle vanity the slaves,

Our Men of Rank are food for Knaves ;

A common fact, and melancholy .

Keen parasites, whose cunning gains

Most plenteous crops from barren brains.

They bid you talk . my honest Song

Bids you for ever hold your tongue

Silence, with some, is wisdom most profound ;

Crack'd pipkins are discover'd by the sound.

Now, good Lord Belgrave, to conclude .

Since so unmannerly, so rude,

The Devil is pleased our hearts to harden

Against your state-schemes and devotions ;

Whene'er you choose to make more motions,

Begin and end them in the garden.

PROH IMPUDENTIAM!

AN ODE.

PRETENDING love for his dear Country,
 Not love for his dear self and dear relations,
 Pitt came with all the family effrontery,
 And took possession of the highest stations .
 Began of politics the game,
 Gambled and lost ,
 But who must answer for the cost ?
 Not he indeed, a duck confounded lame : .
 Not unattended, waddling · no , the Nation
 Sent after him her warmest execration

 How like the Gambler betting high,
 A thousand on the spinning die ;
 For him, poor devil, a large amount !
 He lost ; but how must he account ?
 “ Well,” quoth the fellow, “ Gemmen, kick away ,
 For curse me if I’ve got one doit to pay ”
 Pitt brings to mind, a Father to his Son .
 “ Tom, you are going into trade
 A handsome fortune may perhaps be won ;
Perhaps you fail ; don’t be dismay’d,
 And let your modesty ~~ambition~~ stifle ;
 So do not be a bankrupt for a trifle .”

TEMPORA MUTANTUR

AN ODE.

FOND is the human Heart of pow'r ;

Indeed, it cannot be denied :

We see the tyrant every hour,

Stuff'd like a Pincushion, with pride

Pride is a very stubborn evil

Set but a beggar on a horse,

Lord ! what will be the fellow's course ?

The knave will gallop to the Devil.

Pitt with his green bag once look'd small,

Could beg and pray in yonder Hall,

Courting the honour of a brief ;

Ready to plead for any thing,

Jacobin, traitor to his King,

And every despicable thief.

But leaving off, at length, brief-mumping,

And strangely into office jumping ;

Adieu the modest asking face !

Features assume a different form :

The calm is banish'd ; and the storm,

With all its blustering insolence, takes place.

Nothing his grandeur could withstand ;
 Hustling and bullying, such a rout !
 In short, the noblest of the land
 Were just like Footballs kick'd about

How like the Negro on his Mule,
 Tormenting him beyond all rule,
 Beating him o'er the head and ears ,
 His spurs into the creature sticking,
 Abusing, damning, cursing, kicking !
 For Blacky like a Christian swears

His quondam Master, passing by,
 Beheld the Beast with pitying eye .
 " You scoundrel, hold , is murder your design ? "—
 Quako turn'd round, with a broad grin,
 Not valuing the rebuke one pin
 " Massa, me was your Nega ; dissy mine "

WHEN Pitt is the subject, I scarcely know when to remit the lash, he is such a feast for Satire Should he be restored to that power which, let me say, he in a manner usurped, and which he now fawningly courts, our liberties will have reason to tremble. The calamities of Kingdoms have often been produced by the sole ignorance of a Minister it is to be hoped, for the sake of humanity, that our late misfortunes arose solely from that pitiable source; and not from the dark, turbid bosom of malignity and vengeance.

END OF THE FOURTH VOLUME.